SAVE FERTILIZER ELEMENTS.

Ingredients Existing in the Soil Should Be Utilized and Developed. In the unusual conditions existing in the fertilizer trade, says a statement just issued by the secretary of agriculture, it is important that all fertilizing materials on the farm, especially those containing potash, should be conserved. The fertilizer ingredients already existing in the soil should be utilized and developed to the fullest extent. A great deal can be accomplished in this direction by deep plowing, constant cultivation and thorough tillage. There should be a proper system of rotation. Especially where one crop has been grown for several years a different one should be planted this year. Green manures and cover crops should be used as much as possible in their proper rotation. Of the organic substances manure, both solid and liquid, is the most important and should be utilized whenever possible. All material of an organic nature, such as leaves and bedding of various sorts, should be composted and the compost applied to the soil. Special attention should be given also to the conservation of wood ashes. Depending on the character of the wood, they contain potash in quantities varying ordinarily from 3 to 10 per cent. All tree trimmings, brush cuttings, etc., should be burned and the ashes derived therefrom utilized. The application of lime to many soils is of undoubted benefit. Though the availability of the fertilizing elements in the soil may not be greatly increased by its use, the resulting improvement in physical and bacterial conditions may increase considerably the productiveness of the soil.

A Screen Coop. This drawing shows the plan of chicken coop we designed and have been using the last ten years. The coops are made in the winter time when the men are not busy with other work. They are made of twelve and six inch soft pine boards. They are twenty-three inches long, eighteen inches wide, eighteen inches high in front and a foot high at the back. The roof extends over the side walls about three inches on all sides. The floors are hinged on, as shown, and the coops are painted inside and out. Wire screen is put in the ends, as shown, to provide ventilation. The little slide door permits chicks to come and go. The material in each coop costs about $1. We use the coops from year to year, as they are cleaned out every fall and put away in a dry place during the winter. I have never yet lost a chicken in these coops, either by drowning, smothering or through having some animal get in.—Mrs. S. M. Gephart in Farmer's Mail and Breeze.

offer the energetic and enterprising home seeker the best farming opportunities on the American Continent today. Fifty and sixty bushels of wheat to the acre, oats and barley approximating 100 bushels were not uncommon this year. Alberta's climate is temperate, healthful and invigorating; free from extremes of heat or cold, in fact, ideal for man or beast. Alberta's soil is world famous, uniformly fertile, and almost 100,000,000 acres are available as FREE LAND FOR SETTLERS. Alberta is the stock growers' paradise. Its cattle, pigs and horses have never been surpassed. Mixed farming will make her the Denmark of Canada. Her inexhaustible coal beds, timber, minerals and water power, have hardly been touched. Three transcontinental railways with branches radiate throughout this marvellously rich country. Provincial Government Demonstration Farms and Schools of Agriculture in combination are well distributed, affording needed information for the settler and free education for the farmer's boy.

For full information regarding these free lands call on
