Atmospheric Phenomeno...

A singular atmospheric phenomenon recently noted along the western coast of South America, is a bank or band of cloud extending for 2,000 miles, from Ecuador to the center of Chill, and following the trend of the coast range of hills. The cloud band is between 10 and 20 miles broad, floats at an elevation between 2,000 and 3,000 feet, and has a vertical thickness of not less than 1,000 feet.

This curious phenomenon is as cribed to the prevalence of cool southerly and southwesterly winds blowing obliquely along shore, and having their moisture condensed by the const hill range just sufficiently to produce

MINNESOTA CROPS IN EXCELLENT CONDITION

(By United Press)
St. Paul, June 9-All growing crops in Minnesota are in excellent condition, according to the June federal crop report for Minnesota prepared by Paul H. Kirk, statistician for the Minnesota co-operative crop reporting service.

to A decrease in spring wheat and earley, but no change, in the acreage of gats; was reported. The condition of winter wheat is slightly, higher than on April 1. The condition of 83 per cent of normal indicates a vield of 17.4 bushels per acre or a forecasted production on June 1 of 1,745,000 bushels. The production in 1921 was 1,288,000 bushels The condition of all hay is reported at 95 per cent of normal. The alfalfa acreage has been increased 10 per cent over last year. Wild peas 98 per cent, blackberries and gaspberries 92 per cent, cabbage 95 per cent, oats 99 per cent and watermelons 92 per cent.
