HAYES WILL HANG.

Supreme Court Has Denied Oconee
Wife Murderer New Trial.
The State.

Unless Governor Heyward intervenes with pardon Hoyt Hayes, convicted before Judge Dantzler at Walhalla last November of the murder of his young wife on the 26th of the preceding April, will hang this summer, the supreme court having refused his appeal for a new trial. The decision was handed down yesterday affirming the judgment of the lower court. Hayes will be resented to hang at Walhalla on the 11th of next month. The coroner's jury at first exonerated the husband, the suicide theory having been accepted, but her relatives became suspicious and employed counsel and reopened the case. The first trial in July after the killing in April resulted in a mistrial. Hayes had been married to the woman less than two years and apparently they had been happy together throughout. No strong motive for the crime came out in the evidence but strong proof was put up to show that Hayes forged the note found in the room just after the killing. The note said: "I am treated well by Hoyt, but I had rather die than have the pain and sickness of motherhood. Therefore I write to let you know I did it."
