DAYS OF THE PAST.

A Georgian Sighs For the Scenes of His Childhood.

Editor Herald and News: In reading over again the Annals of Newberry county, I like the district better. Seeing so many names of people and places with which I was once familiar causes my mind to sweep over the buried years, as they have come and gone, filling me at times with indescribable sadness. By these thoughts and feelings the following little poem was suggested, which I should like you to publish.

I sigh for my own, my dear native land,
For the scenes of my childhood and youth,
Where I was tenderly led by the hand,
And where I first learned of the truth.

I sigh for the old and humble homestead,
Where I first saw the light of the day;
For the wide fire-place and my own trundle bed,
Where close to my mother I lay.

I sigh for the dear old rock-bottom spring
That flowed at the foot of the hill,
To which in my romps my thirst I could bring,
And lie down and drink to my fill.

I long for the plum and the mulberry trees,
Which afforded us childish delight,
The holly hock's bloom, home of the bees,
Sipping in honey from morn till night.

I sigh for my comrades of boyhood days,
For the ground over which we did run,
The old-time school house and the boyish plays,
Where we reveled in pleasure and fun.

I sigh for the faces I once did love,
So beautiful, so gentle and sweet,
But many of these have gone up above,
And are now walking the golden street.

I long to rest 'neath the clods of my state,
When the warfare with sin shall be o'er,
Which is ebbing away in quick rapid rate,
Bearing us on to eternity's shore.

But dear to my heart as these thoughts may be,
A sadness comes over my dream;
For I think of those I ne'er more shall see,
On this side of death's icy, cold stream.

My father and mother lie buried there,
In the cold, silent City of Rest,
My sisters, too, who were ever most dear,
Have joined them in the land of the blest.

A Card.

Mr. Editor: Tuesday of next week, the 30th instant, is election day, at which time it will be incumbent upon all good citizens to discharge a most important duty. We will then elect the officers who will represent and act for us—the people of Newberry county—in the general assembly, and in all matters pertaining to the administration of our county affairs. For all of these offices we must have good, true and loyal men, otherwise our county and state will suffer, and we, as a people, will retrograde rather than progress. There are valuable candidates standing for the various offices to be filled, let us, therefore, select the best in our judgment, cast our ballots accordingly, and thereby discharge a high duty that we owe both to ourselves and to our state. One of these candidates is our present, true, loyal, and most efficient sheriff, Capt. M. M. Buford, who is standing for re-election. Has he discharged the exacting duties of that high and responsible office well and truly? Has he fulfilled our expectations and measured up to that high standard of efficiency made by many good and capable men who have filled the office before him? If so, then we should re-elect him. And if these things be true, can anything else be given in his favor still further to incline us in his favor? With many of us there is. His record from 1860 to the present time is an open book wherein there are recorded the deeds which show up the patriotic, true and loyal citizen. When a boy of sixteen he promptly answered the call to arms, and during the trying times of those fearful years, in the camp, on the march and on the battle field, those inestimable and priceless characteristics of the brave, good and honest citizen were then early evinced. Old Comrade.

A "White Ribbon" Story.

Mrs. Robert J. Burdette was talking one day about the white ribbon that is the sign of total abstinence, says the Louisville Herald.

"There are some persons," said Mrs. Burdette, "who don't wear the white ribbon with sincerity. They wear it, perhaps, about as hypocritically as it was worn by an employee of a certain brewer."

"This employee, after years of disipation, appeared one day at the brewery with the white ribbon on his breast. Nothing was said to him and he wore it for several months. Then one day the head of the firm happened to notice the man's badge, and approached him.

"Why, Frank," he said, "it is strange to see you, a brewer wearing white ribbon. Why do you do it?"

"It is like this," said the workman, "I wear the ribbon because it makes men like to tempt me, and when I'm tempted I succumb, sir."

The talkative age is passing out. The world is turning more and more to people who do things.
