NEWBERRY, SOUTH CAROLINA, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 28, 1910.

TWICE A WEEK, $1.50 A YEAR.

FIVE YEARS IS SENTENCE.

Last Step in Case Against Milton A. Carlisle—Notice of Appeal is Given.

Greenville News, 27th.

Five years in the Atlanta penitentiary, is the sentence imposed yesterday morning by Judge Brawley upon Milton A. Carlisle, former president of the Newberry National bank, who was convicted last week of misapplication of the funds of that institution on five counts of an indictment containing 162, in the United States district court.

Will Prosecute Other Directors.

It is stated on good authority that indictments will be made out in the near future against three of the directors of the bank who were associated with Mr. Carlisle in these alleged corrupt transactions. There was also some intimation of this during the trial of Mr. Carlisle during arguments upon objections between Mr. Cochran and Mr. Dominick.

During the trial, the defense brought out considerable evidence during the cross-examination, tending to show that several of the other directors of the bank were heavily indebted to the bank in the same manner as Mr. Carlisle, when they were possibly not able to pay back this money and also tending to show that the directors were somewhat negligent in the supervision of the affairs of the bank. Just when these indictments will be made public, is not known, but it is not thought likely that they will come up during this term of the court.

The trial of Mr. Carlisle has aroused considerable interest throughout this section of the State, both on account of the fact that Mr. Carlisle was well known, and also since this is the first case of the kind brought against a national bank president in this State. The indictment was returned as a true bill during October, 1909, by the grand jury of the United States district court in this city, shortly following the visit to Newberry in August of Mr. Sherrill Smith, government banking accountant.

BURIED IN HOME SOIL.

Frank Minnaugh, Who Died in Denver, Was Laid to Rest in Columbia.

Columbia Record, 25th.

The funeral of Mr. Frank P. Minnaugh, of Denver, formerly of Columbia, who died Friday evening in the Colorado capital, was held Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock in St. Peter's church on Assembly street, the pastor, the Rev. T. J. Hegarty, officiating there and also at the interment, which was in St. Peter's cemetery, on Elmwood avenue.

The body arrived early in the afternoon on Tuesday from Denver, accompanied by Mr. Evans, who was associated in business with Mr. Minnaugh at Denver and by Mr. James A. Minnaugh, of Newberry, a younger brother. The third brother and the oldest of the trio is Mr. John L. Minnaugh, of Columbia.

Among those attending the funeral was Mr. O. G. Goodhand, of Mills & Gibb, a New York wholesale house, dealing in linens, laces and fancy goods, with which Mr. Minnaugh had been associated for about nine years—in fact, ever since he left this State. Mr. Goodhand came under telegraphic instructions from the house. Among the floral tributes was a large pillow of roses from the Messrs. Mills & Gibb. Mr. Minnaugh was at first an assistant salesman for the firm on the Pacific coast. He made such a good showing that he was soon given the Northwest territory, with headquarters at Denver. His success had been such that his office had been enlarged from time to time. At present there are four assistants.

"Mr. Minnaugh was most highly esteemed and beloved by his house," said Mr. Goodhand. "There was never a man who made and kept friends more readily. He was a genial, affable gentleman and throughout the country there are many today who mourn his going off."

The pallbearers were: Messrs. W. D. Melton, John J. Cain, J. Caldwell Robertson, John H. Bollin, Iredell Jones, Jr., Willie Jones, George G. Moseley and John Jacob Seifels.

Mr. Minnaugh was 52 years old. He had never married. He came to this country as a youth, his brothers, John Lantry Minnaugh and James A. Minnaugh, having come before him. He was associated in business with Mr. Jno. L. Minnaugh here for some years and later lived for a time in Greenville.

Edmondson-Seabrook.

The wedding of Miss Katherine Edmondson and Mr. William Buehler Seabrook will be a pretty event which will take place on the evening of Wednesday, November 30, at the home of the bride's father, Mr. John L. Edmondson, on North Boulevard.

The maid of honor will be Miss Frances Seabrook, of Westminster, Md., sister of the groom, and the groom's best man will be Mr. Roger Winter.

The ribbon bearers will be Miss Jennie Lowry, Miss Obie McKenzie, of Montezuma, Miss Louise Peddy, of Newman; Miss Nancy Hopkins and Miss Margaret Beck.—Atlanta Constitution.

Mr. Seabrook to Marry.

Mr. William Buehler Seabrook, formerly of Newberry, will be married November 30 in Atlanta to Miss Katherine Edmondson of that city.

Mr. Seabrook is very well known in Columbia. He was for several years a reporter on the Augusta Chronicle. For two years he rambled about over Europe, earning the money required for his expenses by writing travel letters for American newspapers. Since his return he has been on the city staff of the Atlanta Journal.—Columbia Record.

Mr. Seabrook is the son of the Rev. W. L. Seabrook, who was pastor of the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer in Newberry for several years. He is a graduate of Newberry college in the class of 1903, and began his newspaper career in the office of The Herald and News as a reporter for the daily Telegram. The Herald and News also printed his descriptions of his European trip and has always taken an interest in his career and feels proud of the success which has attended him.

THE RED MEN OF PROSPERITY.

A Large Tribe of This Noble Order Instituted in a Good Place.

Wednesday night the following members of the local tribe of Red Men went to Prosperity: Messrs. Cannon G. Blease, W. Smith Langford, J. H. Chappell, P. F. Baxter, J. B. Shackelford, O. O. Smith and I. M. Sligh. They accompanied Great Sachem Otto Klettner, O. S. Goree, degree master of Bergell tribe, and the members of the degree team for the purpose of instituting a tribe of their order at Prosperity. The occasion was a great success. A very large and enthusiastic tribe was instituted in that fine town, which shows the wonderful influence and success of Great Sachem Klettner as well as the fact that the helpful principles of the grand order of which he is the worthy head are being eagerly taken hold of by the people in large numbers everywhere.

The tribe at Prosperity was instituted with 104 members. As 15 or 20 more who desired to be present, were absent, the list of charter members was left open until tonight, Friday, when the great sachem will revisit the new tribe and close the list, which will show a charter membership of at least 120. This is fine. The order of Red Men is growing at a remarkable rate in South Carolina, and especially in Newberry county, under the wise administration of Great Sachem Otto Klettner.

The Clemson Booklet on Nepotism.

Mr. Editor: The booklet of Prof. Riggs, acting president, in regard to the nepotism existing at Clemson college, leads one to infer that this nepotism is the result of the action of the last two presidents of the college. But the booklet does not show one of either president's relations enjoying their nepotistic professorships. And the more reasonable inference and the one generally accepted is that the recommendations of these presidents were due to the wishes of members of the board of trustees of the college.

The position as president of Clemson college has not been a secure one. And this booklet might have shown that these last two presidents had to resign, while the nepotistic professors continue to hold their places.

A teacher in a New England grammar school found the subjoined facts in a composition on Longfellow, the poet, written by a 15-year-old girl.

"Henry W. Longfellow was born in Portland, Maine, while his parents were traveling in Europe. He had many fast friends, among whom the fastest were Phoebe and Alice Carey."—Everybody's Magazine.

WEDDING AT MT. PLEASANT.

Miss Erline Weinheimer Becomes the Bride of Rev. I. E. Long, of Newberry.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized in St. Paul's Lutheran church at Mount Pleasant Wednesday evening, October 19, when Miss Erline Weinheimer became the bride of Rev. I. E. Long, of Newberry, S. C. Dr. A. G. Voigt officiated. The church was beautifully decorated with golden-rod, ferns and ivy. At the appointed hour "O. Promise Me," was very sweetly sung by Mrs. M. K. Palmer. Immediately after, the bridal party entered to the strains of Lohengrin's "Wedding March," which was rendered with much skill by Miss May Lunden. First came the two ushers, Mr. Charles A. Weinheimer, brother of the bride, with Mr. M. L. Koester. They were followed by Miss Wilhelmina Moessner, with Mr. W. E. Pugh, Miss Annie Anderson with Rev. H. J. Black. Then came the maid of honor, Miss Josie Weinheimer, sister of the bride, followed by Miss Isabelle Koester, the flower girl. The bride entered with her father, Mr. Charles A. Weinheimer, and was met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Mr. J. S. Wessinger. The ring service was used, and immediately after the ceremony the bridal party left to the strains of Mendelssohn's march. The bridesmaids were attired in handsome white lingerie dresses, daintily trimmed with lace, and they carried bunches of golden-rod, tied with yellow ribbon gauze. The maid of honor wore a beautiful yellow brocade silk, very daintily trimmed with gold bands, with gloves and slippers to match. She also carried goldenrod. The little flower girl never looked sweeter than she did in her white embroidery dress with yellow ribbons. She carried a lovely basket of golden-rod, which she gracefully strewed in the bride's path. The bride was handsomely gowned in a net robe over white satin en train. Her veil, which was caught up with lilies of the valley fell to the bottom of her skirt. She carried an armful of bride's roses with long white tulle streamers. Immediately after the ceremony the many friends of the bride and groom gathered at the home of the bride, where a reception was held. The home was beautifully decorated with golden-rod and pot plants. Japanese lanterns were strung the length of the piazza. The numerous presents showed the popularity of the bride and groom. Among the many presents was a lovely silver service. The groom is a recent graduate of the Theological seminary of Mount Pleasant and has made many friends in Charleston as well as in Mount Pleasant, during his stay here. The bride is a very sweet young lady, and is loved by her many friends. Mr. and Mrs. Long will be at the home of the bride's parents until after the meeting of synod, which will be held in Charleston, November 9. They will then leave for their home in Pomaria, S. C., with the best of wishes of the entire community.—Charleston Evening Post, 22.

Charities and Correction.

Greenwood, S. C., Oct. 22.—The second annual State conference of Charities and Correction will be held at Florence, S. C., December 8-9 next. The first session held at Columbia a year ago was highly interesting and brought together for conference and discussion the representative philanthropic workers of our State.

It is hoped that all persons interested in dependent children, in the relief of suffering or correction of wrong doing, will realize that they are invited to attend the approaching conference. A program is now being prepared by the executive committee and will be announced in due season.

A. T. Jamison,
President.

At a picnic in Orangetown county, S. C., merely as a joke a young couple went to a minister and went through a "mock" marriage. It was not until the knot had been tightly tied that the groom remembered that South Carolina was the one State where such proceedings were not taken as a joke. His friends got a judge to declare the ceremony null, on what grounds it is a little difficult to fathom. Fake weddings are a stock form of entertainment in every other State, but South Carolina has never been able to discern the humor in them.—Charlotte Observer.

ABOUT HOG CULTURE.

Thousands of Dollars Are Sent West for Meat When Farmers Could Furnish Own Supplies.

Washington, Oct. 17.—The people of the South should keep at home the thousands of dollars which they are annually sending into the West for meat and the farmers of the South can bring about this much desired condition and can at the same time realize handsome profits for themselves if they will engage in the raising of hogs more extensively, declares Prof. Dan T. Gray, of the Alabama Polytechnic institute, who has charge of the department of animal industry of the United States department of agriculture, in "Farmers' Bulletin 411" entitled "Feeding Hogs in the South," just issued by the department.

"Hogs can be raised as cheaply in the South as any where else and in many cases more cheaply but hogs can not be raised profitably on corn alone," says Prof. Gray, and in the bulletin he gives in full detail the proper methods of feeding hogs in order to realize a profit. Figures are given showing the results obtained from the use of various feeds in experiments conducted at different points in the South. The bulletin should prove of much value to any Southern farmer and its circulation will doubtless result in a greatly increased activity in hog raising. President W. W. Finley, of the Southern Railway company, who is greatly interested in having the South raise its food supplies at home will be glad to have a copy of this bulletin sent to any farmer in the South who will address a request to him at 1300 Pennsylvania avenue, Washington, D. C., or request may be made directly to the department of agriculture.

Before going into the details of the proper feeding of hogs Prof. Gray makes some very interesting observations, showing how the raising of more hogs in the South will prove a benefit to the whole section. He gives figures showing the consumption of home-raised and western animals in Birmingham, Ala., in 1907, proving that in that year alone more than a million dollars went out of Birmingham into distant States, all of which should have gone into the pockets of Southern farmers. Other reasons why Southern farmers should raise more hogs are stated as follows:

"Pork can be made as cheaply, and perhaps more cheaply, in the South than in any other section of the country. And there are many reasons why our Southern farmers should introduce this line of animal production into the farming system. One of the reasons is mentioned above—the money spent for meat by Southern people would be kept at home. Another is the influence it would probably have on the price of cotton. It will never be possible for the South to control the price of cotton until the Southern farmer places himself in position that he can hold the crop after it is produced.

So long as all the farmers are required to sell the entire crop of cotton each fall, so long will its price be an unreliable and unstable one. The only way by which a farmer can place himself in a position where he will not have to sell all his cotton each fall is to produce something in addition to cotton; and unquestionably one of the best supplements to the cotton crop would be raising of hogs. The hog business can be so managed that the owner can have money coming in from it at least twice a year, which would enable him to hold his cotton as long as he pleases.

"Furthermore, the hog is especially adapted to the farmer with small capital, as but a small amount of money is required with which to begin the business, and returns begin to come in a few months after it is started. The sow is a rapid producer. Money is turned over rapidly. With $125 invested in one boar and five to eight sows it is easily possible to have for sale from 5,000 to 8,000 pounds of pork, live weight, in a year. In other words, the yearly sales should be from two to four times the amount of the investment.

A Boss Just the Same.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch.
Accepting Col. Roosevelt's differentiation, we conclude it is a poor boss who can't be defied both ways.
