Yesterday, Sunday, April 24, was the burial day of J. D. Beatson, one of the prominent men of the Paxville community. Here has been his home almost continuously for the sixty-seven years of his earthly existence, and the esteem in which he was held was shown by the vast crowd which assembled at his funeral in the Paxville Baptist church and followed the corpse to the ceme-

Mr. Beatson saw hard and arduous service in the great war of 1861-65, and gained an honorable name among his comrades for gallantry on the battle-field and faithfulness to duty. One of the younger men present at his funeral spoke to your correspondent of the effecting scene when the gray Confederate veterans stood around the coffin looking into the marble face of their dead fellow soldier of former days. The following ex-Confederate soldiers were present at the funeral: J J Broadway, B L Broadway, DJ Bradham, S H Bradham, Thos J Tisdale, T Martin Mims, W W Geddings and Rufus C

Out of the life of this community has gone one of its oldest inhabitants. We feel the shock that has stricken him down, removing him forever from our midst. May we bow to Him in whose hand are the issues of life and death. Old men, ye who have walked with J D Beatson on this long path, of sixty years and more, give, more heartil than ever you have, the few years that remain to you to the service of the Master and by this serve better than ever the interest of men around you.

Younger men, you who hope and confidently expect a long life and to see many days, can you not turn from the burial, yesterday, feeling that though life be long, it is soon cut off, and that the ripest old age is only useful and glorious in proportion as life is spent in the service of the Redeemer. God bless to us all the memory of our
