A WAR TRAGEDY.

Pathetic Incident at the Siege of Port

Hudson. At the slege at Port Hudson, La., there was one gun commanded by Alphonso Dubreuil. He was a young sugar planter who had opposed secession, but maintained that if Louisiana room. seceded he would go with his state. Dr. Chatrand, his neighbor, was a viclent secessionist, and Dubreuil and the company and proved so brave a Confederate that the doctor, who had opposed his daughter's marriage, readily consented, and the pair were married. His bride was accorded special permission to go into the bomb proofs of the fort, where in comparative safety she could be near her husband. There she saw him operating his enormous gun, but her heart was torn with fear for his safety. Suddenly she became excited by the noise of firing and, rushing out from her place of safety, was struck by a piece of shell and fell back lifeless. Dubreuil ran to her side, saw death in her face and went back bravely to his gun.

The next morning was beautiful, and the sun shone gloriously. There was cessation of hostilities that the dead might be buried. Thus engaged, a request came from the enemy to allow the body of a young lady to pass through our lines. It was granted. The little cortege came, preceded by a military band playing a mournful dirge, and halted at the outpost. The old musket box used as a bier was accalmly and slowly, but his face betrayed the greatest grief. A detail of Confederate privates acted as pallbearers. Our men uncovered their heads. All were blindfolded and led through

ASLEEP UNDER WATER.

One of the Funny Incidents Possible In a Diver's Life. As showing how much at home a man may be today under water I may relate an amusing story. Some months ago while a great battleship was at Malta one of the seamen divers went he disobeyed her command in a cerdown to clear her propeller from some tain matter. Temptation overcame flotsam that had become entangled, him, and when his mother proceeded and he failed to come up. It chanced to fulfill her duty sobs of anguish filled that the rest of the battleship's divers | the room. were ashore, and grave concern was s went on, but in dismay, fearing some strange trag-big brushes and other tools came floating to the surface, and thereupon the navigating lieutenant sent ashore an urgent message for one of the other divers. The man came on board, dressed immediately and went below, only to come up full of indignation.

"Why, that fellow's been asleep all this time!" he said wrathfully. It was true. The man had just had his lunch, and, finding the work much less serious than he had thought, he finished it in a few minutes and then sat comfortably on one of the giant blades of the battleship propeller and went to sleep with inquisitive fishes swarming around him, attracted by the dazzling searchlight on his breast. The officers were so amused at the occurrence that no punishment was inflicted on the lazy one .- St. Nicholas.

Long Necked Belles.

Eastern standards of beauty differ, like the customs, from those of the west. In Malacca, we are told, the small waist and velvet eyes do not count, but instead the length of the neck is the criterion of beauty. The girl of Malacca at a very early age is fitted with a metal collar, which compels her to keep her head erect, and as she grows the collar is dicreased in size, and by this means the neck is gradually elongated.
