Died at his home in Sumter last Wednesday, William C. King, aged 52 years. The deceased was a brother of Mr. J H. King of St. Paul, and was formerly a citizen of Clarendon, living at Paxville where he was engaged in farming. He leaves a widow and several children.

Rev. E. P. McCordes, of Louisville. Ky., conducted services at the Presby terian church Sunday morning and again at the Methodist church in the evening. Those who heard him were well pleased with both of his sermons, and it would not be surprising if an effort is made to call him to the Manning church.

There will be a meeting of the Teach er's Association of Clarendon county Saturday January the eleventh A goodly number was present at the last meeting, but we hope to have more next Saturday. Besides discussing plans for Field Day, the following program will be carried out: 1: Why manual training should be taught in the schools-Miss Etta Sue Sellers. 2: How manual training can be made practical in the schools—Miss Elizabeth Bailey. Reporter of S. I. A.

The family of Mr. W. B. Dickson will make their home in the future at Fair Bluff, N. C. Manning dislikes to lose such people, but as Mr. Dickson has arranged to engage in the hardware bus iness it became necessary for his family to accompany him. The people of Man-ning wish for the Dicksons good health and success in their new home, and hope that it will not be always before they come back. We heartily comme this family to the good people of Fair Bluff, and vouch safe for their being a good acquisition to the community.

The Manning Hardware is now in its new home at the Lenard corner in the splendid store built by J. A. Weinberg, Esq. The patrons of this reputable concern will find when they visit them in their new home, one of the best equipped hardware stores in this section of the State, and that their stock is full and up-to-date. The object in moving was to get more commodious quarters for their increasing business which has been built up a s the result of doing business on business principles, giving to the trade the best for the least money, and by being thoroughly reli-

In Memory of Mrs. Mattie Stakes.

She was all that a sweet Christian mother could be. We talked to her as our earthly comforterer and she was devoted to her children. She has spent her last days to our comfort. While we are grieved we have the blessed assurance that she is safe in the arms of Jesus. Her example will be one sweet memory,

We love each furrow in thy face, The silver in thy hair; There's naught but beauty we can trace, There is none one-half so fair; The love shines out from those dear eyes How well the sign we know, Of kindness, sweetness—all that's good

Dear Mother, Mother-Mine. You nursed us through our infant years You loved us as children, You shared with us our hopes and fears With counsel good and mild, And when our erring footsteps strayed How sad that heart of thine. You loved us better than before,

Dear Mother, Mother mine. and now when those dear eyes grow dim And pain clouds that dear face, The love that you still have for us, Who oft' times gave you pain, Will yet bear fruit—a hundred fold, In love, dear heart, like thine, More precious far than virgin gold; Dear Mother, mother mine.

Seeking Information.

Editor Manning Times:-Will you please give me some information regarding the election or appointment of trustees for Manning graded school? If elected when and where is election

If appointed, by whom? When once elected or appointed, is it PATRON.

The Times editor replies to the above questions as follows: The trustees of the Manning graded are appointed by the county board of education.

There is no law providing for an election of these officers.

Their term of office is the same as that of the county board, four years. The position of school trustee is not "a life time job," nor is it a position that should be a political plaything.

BY PRODUCERS TO CONSUMERS.

The report treats of the movement of farm products from the farm to consumer through a great variety of channels. The simplest distribution is the direct one of delivery by farmer to con-sumer, and next after this is the delivery by individual farmers or associations of farmers to individual consumers or associations of consumers. In these direct forms of distribution, the middleman is eliminated, although of course intermediate services are performed either by producers or by consumers or by both parties.

INTERVENTION OF MIDDLEMEN.

Among the varieties of middlemen concerned in the marketing of farm products are the traveling bucksters who go from farm to farm gathering eggs, butter, poultry, calves, and other commodities, which they sell to shippers, jobbers, or retail dealers. The country merchants is often the first receiver of such products as eggs, farmmade butter, poultry, wool, hides, cotregions where grain is the staple product, the tendency has been to displace the country merchant by the grain buyer and the local elevator man.

Farmers commonly sell through commission merchants and to some extent directly to wholesale dealers and also to retail dealers. The farmer who employs a trustworthy commission merchant who will handle his products honestly and honorably will get the current prices for them within the range of the commission merchant's business, but the farmer often finds himself in the hands of a commission merchant who faisely reports that the products were received in damaged condiwill only stick to his job and make himself felt. Amony many things he said: "We must put our start and a second process of the start of the said of t received by him for the products. Worse than this, it is by no means rare that the commission merchant has sold the products and failed to return the net

Samples of transactions in which only one middleman intervenes between pro-ducer and consumer include the commission man at a large market who recrives consignments of live stock from farmers and sells to packers; the factor to whom the planter consigns his rice or cotton and from whom purchases are made by millers; the warehousemen who manage the sale of a Virginia planter's tobacco.

The intervention of two men between producer and consumer is a common oc marketed through the aid of two mid dlemen, the city commission dealer and a retail merchant.

MORE THAN ONE INTERMEDIARIES. A series of three middlemen may include first the local buyer of the shipper; second, the commission dealer or the wholesale merchant; and third; the retail merchant. In the sale of fruit by auction, which is common in large cit-ies east of the Mississippi river, the auctioner is an additional middleman. He may sell for a commission dealer, to whom the consignment may have been made by a country buyer; and the pur-chaser at such an auction may be a job-cerned in such a transaction. Onions raised in Kentucky are some shipped to Louisville; here they may be put into sucks and consigned to a New York wholesaler or a commission man who in turn sells to a New York retailer. Eggs and poultry frequently pass through the hands of at least four mid-

The marketing of clover seed is an example of a transfer from one farmer to-another through a number of mid-dlemen. The first middleman may be an Indiana jobber, who consigns to a commission dealer in Toledo, Ohio; here the seed may be purchased by a merchant and shipped to a wholesale dealer in a distant city. The last middleman in this course of distribution is a country storekeeper or a city dealer in agri-

MARKET PLACES AND WAREHOUSES. Public market places are established in a number of cities and towns, and in these places consumers may buy such ucts, poultry, and eggs direct from farmers as well as from dealers. Another institution which aids the producer to dispose of his crop is the public warehouse. Illustrations of this are afforded in the marketing of tobacco in Virginia and North Carolina ool from the northern Rocky Mountain States, and to some extent rice in Louisiana and Texas. The growers or their representatives, with their produce, meet the buyers at these warehouses.

While farm products are in transit by rail, there are certain points at which the consignor may designate a final des-The purpose of this practice tination. The purpose of this practice is to enable the consignor to find the best market for his goods. This is the plan followed in shipping fruits and vegetables by rail from California to the East and from Southern States to ways" to principal markets. the North

ASSOCIATIVE MARKETING.

The Secretary of Agriculture has much to say concerning associative marketing by farmers, and the economic advantages are stated in detail. "A survey of the systems of marketing of marketing, properly itemized, and farm products clearly discovers what the farmers can best do to their advan- farm and with consumers' prices; a detage.
