Please Pass the Salt.

A real romance occurred lately in a hotel in Montreal. In the hotel the road agent of a respectable company boarded while in the city. In the same hotel an American young lady was domiciled. The lady was pleasant and accomplished. The young gentleman at first viewed the lady admiringly at a distance, but too timid to approach. Day by day his interest grew stronger. He had never spoken to her, nor she to him, and so far as he was concerned this and, so far as he was concerned, this was what he most earnestly desired she might do. In this dilemma he applied to a friend for advice. "Do you eat at the same table?" asked the friend. "Yes," was the reply. "Then I would advise you the next time you dine to ask the lady to pass the salt." "All right," sighed the lovesick hero. The following day he intended to put his friend's advice into operation, but was most delightfully balked by the lady asking him "to please pass the salt." From that moment the ice was broken, till at last the lady asked for the gentleman's card. in order that she might know whom she was conversing with. The gentleman at once handed the lady his business card. Matters then went on smoothly, all the while the couple enjoying each other's company at concerts, operas, etc. At length this state of matters was brought to a crisis. The lady was about to return to the States. The lover was perplexed and again applied to his friend for advice, who at once advised him to pop the question and thus settle anxiety. She was willing to become one with him. The question then came, when the happy day would be. She replied "to-mor-row." To this the gentleman at first demurred, as he had certain business matters to fix. She told him to leave them alone and write to his employers re-igning his position and leave the rest to her. He complied; they were mar-ried and went to the States, when the Canadian gentleman learned that he had married a young widow worth $250,000. In his happiness he did not forget the friend who advised him. He sent that gentleman a check for $2,000 with a letter of thanks for his kind advice in enabling him to become a rich and happy man, through the possession of a handsome and loving woman. The gentleman who tendered the advice felt dubious as to the reality of the check, and did not present it at the bank for some days. At last he put the matter to the test, and was informed the money had been lying in the bank at his order for a number of days. And so the romance ended, to the satisfaction of all persons interested .- Canadian Paper.

The Hawk and the Hen.

A Fish-Hawk who had a way of throwing three cards about in a dexterons manner, one day met a Hen and invited her to bet on his game.

"But I don't understand it."

"Why, all there is about it, I toss these three cards so, and so, and you bet that you can pick up the Ace of Spades, for example."

"I don't want to take your money," protested the Hen.

"Oh, as to that, you are quite wel-"Well here's an X that I pick up the Ace."

The Hawk smiled as he thought how easy it was to throw snuff in a Hen's eyes, but, lo! Biddy picked up the card she had named and raked in the sugar. "I'll be hanged if I am not completely discouraged trying to make an honest living!" cried the Hawk, as he flung down the cards in disgust: and he there upon not only turned Robber, but ate the Hen to boot.
