Cornerstone Will Be Laid For Another Fine Catholic Church.

Father Willett Erecting Magnificent Temple in the Highlands.

Bishop O'Donoghue and Many Clergy Will Conduct Ceremony.

FATHER CRONIN WILL PREACH

Tomorrow will be a memorable day for Rev. Father Eris Willett and the people of the parish of St. James the Apostle, for it will mark the laying of the cornerstone of one of the finest and most picturesque Catholic churches in this diocese. This congregation, started only a few years ago, has outgrown the present frame church, and will erect the new edifice at the corner of Edenside avenue and Bardstown road. It will be of Spanish-Gothic architecture, generously designed after the great thirteenth century Cathedral of Sivona, and will cost $50,000.

At the ceremonies tomorrow afternoon Bishop O'Donoghue will be assisted by the Rev. John T. O'Connor, pastor of Holy Name church, a deacon, with the Rev. Celestine Brey, pastor of Holy Cross church, as sub-deacon. The cross-bearer will be the Rev. John D. Kalaher, pastor of St. Columba's church, and the acolytes the Rev. John T. Hill, pastor of St. Ann's, and the Rev. George Weiss, pastor of St. George church. The Rev. Dr. Schumann, pastor of St. John's, will be master of ceremonies. The sermon of the occasion will be delivered by the Very Rev. James P. Cronin, V. G., pastor of St. Patrick's. The services will begin at 4 o'clock.

St. James church is being built in the Spanish Renaissance style, the exterior being principally of colored enameled terra cotta and brick, and will have a most harmonious appearance from the color point of view.

Outside dimensions, 78x134 feet. Beiry tower, 160 feet above grade line. Inside dimensions of auditorium, seventy-four feet from north to south. A new "cove" planned by the architect, extending from the main porch to inner vestibule doors, ninety feet. The principal arches supporting the dome will be forty-one feet above the floor level. Dome, fifty-six feet in diameter, sixty-five feet high from floor to top of inner shell. Chancel, thirty-five feet wide, twenty feet deep, basicalia style with domed ceiling forty-two feet above chancel floor.

Below the spring line of chancel dome and above the main altar will be placed seven windows in art glass of the seven sacraments in full view of most any part of the auditorium. The auditorium floor will be inclined to the communion rail. The communion rail one step from the auditorium will be two feet high and extremely open in design.

In the first story of tower is placed the baptistry with vaulted ceiling, and lighted with four appropriate size art glass windows, at side of the baptistry the office. Above the baptistry and office is placed the music room on level with choir gallery. In the second story above the loggia and vestibule is placed the organ loft with sounding board ceiling and a liberal size choir gallery.

The confessionals are alcoved outside of the north and south transept walls. The stations are placed in a unit of seven each on the north and south transept walls, and can be seen from all portions of the auditorium without obstructing columns breaking the view. The stations will be completed in iridescent mosaic glass, framed in Spanish plaster relief of architectural character.

Above the three cluster columns at each corner of auditorium are placed one quarter sphere shell twelve feet diameter, base of which are to be ornamental in angles in sculpture relief. The parts sprouting up to a point at base of dome are the most interesting features of this church interior, and due credit must be given the Rev. E. E. Willett for his ideas in much of this work. In those corbels or cusps will be placed the emblems of the four Evangelists, St. Matthew, St. Mark, St. Luke and St. John, in art glass lighted from borrowed light by day and from indirect electric light by night. At the side of the emblems and adjoining the four main arches are built eight sculptured angels of heroic size, sixteen feet or more from tip to tip of wings, each holding a tablet on which are inscribed the Eight Beatitudes.

BISHOP MAES' RETURN.

The Right Rev. Bishop Maes, who has been attending the Eucharistic Congress at Vienna, will sail today from Antwerp on the Lapland and will reach Covington about October 2.

DEDICATED.

The greatest Catholic event of recent years in Kansas was the dedication on Thursday of the handsome St. Mary's Cathedral at Wichita, erected at a cost of $150,000. Cardinal Gibbons conducted the dedicatory ceremonies and Archbishop Glennon preached the sermon. There were present five Archbishops, twenty-two Bishops and more than a hundred priests, all from different parts of the United States, and Kansas Catholics witnessed the greatest church dedication ever held in the Sunflower State. St. Mary's, the finest Roman church building in Kansas, is built of granite and white rock. A dome over the high altar is 130 feet from the floor of the church to the top of the dome.

Was Anniversary Celebration of Mackin Council Sunday.

Mackin Council, Y. M. I., last Sunday celebrated its nineteenth anniversary in a most creditable manner. Early in the morning the members assembled at St. Anthony's church, where an anniversary high mass was celebrated by the Rev. Seraphin Schlang, the pastor, and an excellent musical programme rendered by the Gregorian choir under the direction of Prof. Kollross. Headed by President Frank Adams and James Shelley, Mackin's first executive, the many young men who occupied the center aisle proceeded to the altar and received holy communion, presenting a very edifying sight. In the afternoon the members attended solemn vespers at St. Cecilia's and listened to an instructive and interesting sermon by Rev. Father Conrad, now acting pastor of that church. Returning to the club house a social session was held, when every former President was called to the chair and delivered a short address congratulating Mackin upon its good fortune and success. Light refreshments were served and it was not until "civil time" that the happy assembly dispersed.

ORANGEMEN
Working Great Injury to Belfast's Commercial Interests.

Belfast press dispatches say that however the Orange "covenant" works out, one fact is impressing the business men of that Ulster city very deeply. This is that the Orange propaganda of opposition to home rule is hitting trade and commerce very hard. It is even possible that the great economic consequences may soon put a period to the whole sorry business of breathing violence against Nationalism and self government.

Some firms are considering quitting Belfast for some peaceful city, and if one took the decisive step it is likely others would follow. Such a development would go a long way toward putting out the fires of Orange hostility. Many extremists are inclined to cavil at the decision to limit the Ulster "covenant" to a pledge not to obey a Parliament in Dublin. They agree with the Saturday Review that "passive resistance is a poor thing. Obedience is respectable; rebellion is respectable. No intermediate course is possible."

TRINITY COUNCIL
Hear Enjoyable Lecture Delivered by Frank J. Martin.

One of the largest attendances of the year was present at Trinity Council, Y. M. I., last Monday evening to hear the lecture delivered by Frank J. Martin, son of Attorney A. F. Martin, and the audience was well repaid for its attendance, the young speaker's lecture being adjudged one of the best ever heard in Trinity's hall. His subject was "Plus X, the Pontificate of the Blessed Sacrament," and Mr. Martin's talk showed careful study in preparation of his theme. President P. J. Sandmann occupied the chair and on behalf of the council thanked the speaker for the evening's entertainment. In addition to the lecture three candidates were obligated and two applications received, all indications pointing to a big class for the initiation on Sunday afternoon, October 6.

RABBI ENLOW.

Rabbi H. G. Enlow, late of this city, began his work last week as associate rabbi with Rev. Dr. Joseph Silverman, of Temple Emanuel, New York City. Dr. Silverman is the one whose name was used by the Guardians of Liberty, and which body he denounced in a letter to Cardinal Glennon.

EUCCHARISTIC

Congress at Vienna Attended by Thousands of Catholic Clergy.

Splendid Closing Spectacle Was Named by a Chilly Rain.

Archbishops and Bishops From the United States Were There.

WILL MEET NEXT AT MALTA

According to Vienna press dispatches the concluding festival session of the Eucharistic Congress was held Saturday morning in the rotunda of the Cathedral of St. Stephen. It was attended by a great crowd despite an incessant downpour of rain. Several members of the Austrian Imperial family and a great number of aristocrats also were present. The last speaker was the Papal Legate, Cardinal Van Rossum, who previously had celebrated Pontifically at the Cathedral in the presence of an immense congregation. Emperor Francis Joseph received the principal members of the congress at the Hofburg in the evening. The attendance of Cardinals, Archbishops and priests at the congress from outside Austria is estimated at between 4,000 and 5,000. Among the principal representatives from the United States are the Archbishop of San Francisco, the Bishops of Milwaukee, Joliet and Covington, and the assistant Bishop of St. Paul. From Great Britain came Cardinal Boynne, Archbishop of Westminster; Cardinal Logue, Archbishop of Armagh; the Archbishop of Aberdeen, the Bishop of Salford and the Benedictine Abbot, Dr. Gashuett. Dr. Paul Peter of Vienna, in the course of a discussion on the subject of homes for theological students, deplored the scarcity of candidates for the priesthood in Austria and Germany and the inadequate provisions for training candidates as compared with the excellent provisions made for the students in the colleges of the United States. The next Eucharistic Congress will be held at Malta on April 24, 1913.

The brilliancy of the great procession concluding the twenty-third Eucharistic Congress Sunday was marred by a continuous downpour of rain and a chilly temperature. From 7 o'clock in the morning until 11 in the afternoon, when the Emperor followed the Papal Legate, Cardinal Van Rossum, with the host, rain fell unrelentingly, drenching many thousands walking in the procession as well as thousands of spectators along the route. Parts of the parade showed little but lines of umbrellas, beneath which tramped Catholic societies, clergy, venerable Bishops in full canonicals and others, through mud ankle-deep and under such conditions that it was impossible to hold the celebration of mass in the open air on the top of the burger court. The procession simply passed through the Helden-Platz from the Ring-strasse into the inner court of the Hofburg, where the Papal Legate, the Cardinals, the Emperor and Archduke Franz Ferdinand entered the Hofburg chapel and deposited the host.

The city was early astir for the glowing feature of the Eucharistic Congress, the people beginning to gather for the first part of the procession before 8 o'clock. Several hundred marshals arranged the various groups, and the procession began to move an hour or two later. Only men and youths were permitted to participate. Along the spacious Ring-strasse the houses were decked with flags and the route was lined with troops. The miners from Tyrol, in quaint costumes, headed the procession and were followed by the bakers' guild from Munster in picturesque attire. Then came the various Catholic societies and the representatives from foreign countries in national groups, including Belgium, Bavaria, England, France, Switzerland, Spain, Albania, Hungary, Croatia and Bosnia. The four groups last named wore gorgeously colored peasant costumes.

The second division was composed of the clergy and Bishops and civil authorities to the number of 10,000. It was headed by the seminarians, and these were followed by members of the Reichsrath, Provincial Diets and the City Council of Vienna and Government and municipal officials. The clergy, to the number of 8,000, were in full vestments. The court division, a mile and a quarter in length, formed the last part of the procession. The Emperor drove in a magnificent state coach of plate glass and gold, drawn by eight horses led by grooms in black and gold liveries from the Hofburg to the Cathedral to attend the removal of the host from the high altar to the state coach of the Papal Legate. Privy Counsellors and the highest officials of the court and empire went first in court carriages and then the Archbishops and Cardinals.

The Cardinal Archbishop of Olmutz, one of the wealthiest of the Austrian sees, drove in a splendid golden wagon built in the reign of Maria Theresa. It was drawn by six fine horses brought from Olmutz for the occasion. Following these dignitaries came the Archdukes in state coaches and last of all the Emperor.

Brilliant Opening of Campaign in Bluegrass City Thursday.

Louisville Democrats Present in Large Numbers Enthusiastically Received.

BULLITT A POPULAR CHOICE

Democracy in all its glory reigned supreme at Lexington Thursday at the opening of the State campaign, and if there ever was a doubt of Wilson and Marshall receiving an overwhelming majority in this State in November that doubt was dispelled, as Democrats, large and small, from all parts of the State gathered in the Bluegrass city to partake of its hospitality and hear the doctrines of Democracy expounded by State and national leaders, among them being Senator Kern, Speaker James Clark, Senator Gore, Senator Champ, Gov. McCreary and Lieut. Gov. McDermott.

The speakers were preceded by a big parade of all the different clubs, among whom was the Moss Green Club of Louisville, who were heartily cheered along the line for their neat and uniform appearance. The Louisville delegation was headed by Mayor Head, Col. John H. Whalen, Frank McGrath, Scott Bullitt, Al Emmer, Pendleton Beckley, Rush Watkins, Judge Herman Goetz and Dr. J. T. Chalk. Lexington did itself proud as a host, nothing being too good for its guests, the big barbecue containing enough food for more than the large crowd present. Twenty-five thousand gallons of burgoo were brewed under the direction of Gus Jarbeau, in addition to the killing of 200 sheep and twenty-five hives for the barbecue.

Chairman Johnson Camden and other party leaders were much enthused over the splendid campaign opening and feel that from now on their duties will be light, as the Democrats are united in this State as never before in years. Many of the leaders left at the daily 12:30 train for the Louisville and Nashville.

Frederick Tillman, aged forty-seven and residing at 1325 Highland avenue, died Wednesday morning, following an illness of three months' duration. He was a native of Ohio, but for twenty-eight years had made this city his home. Besides his wife he leaves ten children. The funeral was held yesterday morning from St. Martin's church, of which he was a faithful member.

News of the death of George W. Norton, the twelve-year-old son of Norton, 714 West Hill street, brought sorrow to their many friends throughout the city. Taken ill in April, the youth was thought on the road to recovery, when he suffered a relapse and died Monday. His funeral was held Wednesday morning from St. Ann's church, Rev. Father Hill officiating at the ceremony. To the bereaved parents is extended heartfelt sympathy.

Following an illness of several weeks Harry Burke, son of Patrick Burke, 1301 Highland avenue, was called to his eternal reward Wednesday evening. He was a most exemplary young man, popular and well known, and up to the time of his illness was bookkeeper for the Louisville Tobacco Company. Besides his parents he leaves three sisters and two brothers, to whom their friends extend sincere sympathy. The funeral took place Friday morning from St. Brigid's church, which was thronged by mourning friends and acquaintances.

FATHER FELTEN RETURNS.

Rev. Father Felten, pastor of St. Augustine's church on West Broadway, arrived home last week from Europe, where he has been spending the summer. While in Rome Father Felten had a special and private audience with Pope Pius X., from whom he received a special and particular blessing for St. Augustine's congregation. Sunday he was given a royal welcome home, the church being thronged with his parishioners and friends from all parts of the city. Father Felten is in excellent health, and it is interesting to hear him relate his experiences while abroad.

WILL OPEN NEXT YEAR.

The Panama canal is to be opened to traffic in the fall of 1913. This statement was made officially at the Navy Department today in an announcement that the Atlantic fleet would be rendezvoused at Colon this winter before the water is turned in. The navy's estimate is based upon the latest reports from the army engineers. The entire length of the canal from deep water in the Atlantic to deep water in the Pacific is about fifty miles. Its length from shore line to shore line is forty miles. The estimated cost of the canal is $375,000,000. The force actually at work is about 35,000 persons, and of these about 5,000 are Americans.

REAL LOSS.

The Mackin Council Bachelor Club will suffer a great loss Thanksgiving day, for then genial Dan Weber will lead to the altar Miss Julia Shaughnessy, daughter of Thomas Shaughnessy, 408 North Twenty-eighth street, one of the most popular and lovable girls in the West End. With this loss the club now consists of only three members—Frank Murphy, Charles Raids and George Simons. The lucky groom is in the grocery business with his father and is the possessor of a snug fortune. After their wedding the worthy couple will spend two weeks in Chicago, and upon their return will occupy the new and elegant home erected for them at 2526 Slovin street. To them we extend in advance our hearty congratulations.

MADE LAST POST.

Surrounded by members of his family, Thomas J. O'Brien, one of the oldest and most widely known members of the Louisville police force, was called to his eternal rest Wednesday evening, after an illness of several months of diabetes. He was born here fifty-two years ago and had been a member of the police force since 1884. Twenty-nine years ago Officer O'Brien married Miss Nora Garrahan. The celebration of

UNTRUE

Are Reports That the Government Will Delay Home Rule.

Loss of Gladstone's Seat Shows Favor of People to Policies.

Will Pass Through All Stages During the Autumn Sitzings.

THE TORIES ARE NOW DISMAYED

Specials from London say that in spite of confident Conservative predictions of an early appeal to the Country, Prime Minister Asquith is believed by his supporters to be planning for a general election at the end of 1914. There have been reports that the Irish were beginning to fear the Government would "dash" them by delaying the home rule bill. But the latest news is that this is untrue—the Government being anxious to pass it speedily through the Commons. They feel sure the Lords will throw it out and by the end of two years the Commons can pass it over their heads. But it will not come into operation in that event before well on to 1915 and meanwhile the election will have been fought, and aided by the new franchise reforms the Liberals hope to pull through once more.

T. P. O'Connor takes a hopeful view of the home rule situation. The loss by the Liberals of Gladstone's seat in Midlothian at first seemed to be the greatest blow the Liberals have received during the last two years and dismay and rage at first was universal, but a couple of days' reflection restored their equanimity and now they look at the political situation remained precisely where it was before. The chief reason for this restoration of equanimity and courage is the examination of the figures. The Tory represents the minority in the constituency, for the two progressive candidates between them represent a majority of 2,400 on the entire poll. Both of the progressive candidates, though fighting for different parties, professed exactly the same principles. Both were favorable to home rule, the Wind church disestablishment, the reform of suffrage, free trade and even the insurance act, and all of these principles accordingly gained a majority of 2,400. Even the Tories have acknowledged that the whole fight turned not on home rule or tariff, as both or the looks as if they were deliberately in the background, but on the insurance act. Finally the small Tory majority of thirty-two was obtained by a tremendous rally of outworkers who came from all parts of the world to strike a blow at the Ministry.

It is unfortunate of course that such a defeat should come just at a moment when the Orangemen are rehearsing their theatrical demonstration in the north of Ireland, and of course they proclaim the Tory victory as a pronouncement by Scotland against home rule, but this is a palpable misreading of the plain facts. The election deceives nobody, and plainly the Orangemen are not shaken in their determination to proceed steadily with their programme, and especially with their determination to insist on passing the home rule bill through all its stages during the coming autumn sittings.

Winston Churchill pronounced on the very eve of the Midlothian defeat one of his most defiant speeches, and this represents the prevalent mood in the Liberal party. Chancellor Lloyd-George during the brief vacation spent many hours in preparing his campaign on land reform, which he soon will proclaim, and which probably will rush to the front in a moment when the Liberals are not shakely in their determination to proceed steadily with their programme, and especially with their determination to insist on passing the home rule bill through all its stages during the coming autumn sittings.

In the Emerald Isle there are indications that baseball will soon become an active feature of Irish athletic life. Many young men who cultivated a love for the game during their residence in the United States and have now come back home are encouraging the practice of the American national pastime in their respective districts. J. J. Flanagan, the famous hammer thrower, formerly of the Irish-American Athletic Club, New York, is endeavoring to Limerick. It is also making headway in Cork and Tipperary, where there are quite a number of returned exiles. Hurling is of course the Irish national game, but it is attended with so many elements of danger that only the most enthusiastic young spirits care to follow it consistently. Baseball, like anything else that contains a feature of American life, will always find patrons among Irishmen at home, so the game stands a good chance of commanding popularity. Cricket has no longer a following among the young men of Ireland, while golf and tennis find patronage only among a select few. Robert Burke, of Nenagh, Tipperary, the well known San Francisco man, is lending his support to the baseball movement in the South.

FORTY HOURS.

A quierist asks what is meant by the Forty Hours. It is a devotion in memory of the forty hours during which the body of Our Lord remained in the sepulchre. When properly carried out, it is a most impressive service. It was begun in Milan in 1534, and was introduced into Rome by St. Philip Neri in 1548. If our non-Catholic friends will attend the Forty Hours they will find the service most edifying and we are certain they will realize that they are in the presence of God.

DEATH'S VICTIM.

The funeral of Patrick Burke, for over thirty years employed as foreman of a construction crew on the Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern railway, who died Tuesday evening at his home, 1928 Center street, New Albany, took place Friday morning from Holy Trinity church, of which he was a highly respected member. Mr. Burke was stricken with paralysis last Saturday at Deputy, Ind., and was brought to his home. He was fifty-six years old and came to New Albany from Cincinnati about twenty-five years ago. He is survived by his wife and eight children. They are Charles Burke, of Louisville; John, Mary, Anna, Dennis, William, Josie and Daniel Burke, of New Albany. He also leaves a brother, Daniel Burke, of Lawrenceburg, Ind.
