POPE PIUS.

Up to the hour the Kentucky Irish American went to press the news concerning the condition of Pope Pius X. was conflicting. All this week the Rome dispatches proved most uncertain, first reporting an improvement in the Holy Father's condition, soon followed by others indicating that his case was hopeless. That the Father of Christendom is critically ill can no longer be doubted, as the three American Cardinals have arranged to leave for Rome at a moment's notice. In the meantime the prayers of the Catholic world are being offered for the Pope's recovery. Dr. Amici again visited the Pontiff Thursday afternoon and found little alteration in his condition since morning. The temperature of the Pope was slightly increased, but as a whole the condition of the patient was stationary. Hope was contained in another dispatch, which tells us the Holy Father himself says he is better. When Dr. Amici visited him at noon Thursday and asked him how he felt the Pontiff replied: "This is the first day since my relapse that I feel generally relieved."

MUST NEED MONEY.

The Baptist Book Concern, located at 650 Fourth avenue, is circulating the following advertisement: "The Priest, The Woman and The Confessional," by Father Chiniquity. It is very interesting and gives the dangers of the confessional practiced by the Roman Catholics. Twice has the plates of this book been destroyed by the foe. This book is hated by its enemies because it exposes their dangerous heresies. It should be read by all who desire a more perfect knowledge of the dangerous doctrines of the Catholic church. Order today, $1.69 postpaid.

The Baptist Book Concern fails to enlighten the prospective buyers on a fuller identity of the author of this sensational work, but the Kentucky Irish American will furnish the following brief description for the benefit of this Christian (?) publishing house, which is depending on the sale of suggestive publications for a livelihood and invites you to have them in the home for the children: Father Chiniquity was an unfortunate priest, dismissed for immorality, and was taken up by the Presbyterians, who made him a minister, but later dismissed him for embezzlement. He was therefore immoral and a thief, and the above publishing house should offer an apology for its conduct through the Baptist local organs.

WOULD SAVE WOMAN.

"Suffrage or the right to vote and the right to hold office," writes Cardinal Gibbons, "are ambitions that some women have that are really rights of similarity and not of equality. Seeking those so-called rights alienates the feminine spirit from its foreordained and guarded haven—the home. To debar woman from such pursuits as suffrage, or from doing a man's work, or from wearing masculine attire, is not to degrade her. To restrict her field of action to the gentler avocations of life is not to fetter her aspirations after the higher and better. Our President, our statesmen and our judiciary hold the high office of framing or interpreting or executing the laws. But our Christian women, wives and mothers, hold a higher place, for they mould the character of our statesmen and jurists in their childhood and install virtue in their hearts. Our greatest statesmen have loudly and unanimously proclaimed their indebtedness to their mothers."

WILL PASS BILL.

There was little of interest in the cable news this week from London, the smooth political waters being stirred only by the introduction of a bill to abolish plural voting. The present pause in the ferocity of party conflict in the House of Commons over Government measures will probably disappear in a few weeks, when the Government resumes discussion of the Irish and Welsh bills, and especially when Asquith proposes the drastic gullotine closure giving but a few days for their resumed discussion. There is now no doubt of the passage of the home rule bill, the opposition realizing that any obstruction upon their part will prove futile.

We can not improve on this paragraph taken from the Western Watchman, so we reproduce it: "We offer our condolence to Archbishop Glennon upon the death of his father in Ireland. The world knew little of him; but to have raised such a son was honor enough for any man. May he rest in peace."

Socialism was never known to put a single penny in the pay envelope of the workman. Thus declares Peter W. Collins, who knows the truth of his words. It is also true that Socialism never aided organized labor, but has used every effort to check its progress.

Kansas City has passed a law expelling clairvoyants, palm readers, trance mediums and other persons laying claim to the possession of mystic arts. Such a law should be passed and enforced in all cities.

Democrats should treat the constitution with care. It has stood well, and mutilating it with amendments should be strenuously opposed.
