

INSTITUTE MAN HUNT FOR VILLA

OLD-TIME LEADER RELENT-LESSLY PURSUED BY GOVERNMENT TROOPS.

TAKES TO MOUNTAINS

"Don't Come Back Without Him,"
Are Instructions Given to Soldiers.

El Paso, Texas, Feb. 5.—Gen. Francisco Villa, the one-time hope of Mexico, has faded into the past, and in his place stands Doroteo Arrango, blood-thirsty bandit of the Sierra Madre Mountains!

History is repeating. Blood is telling in this brown-skinned man of the hills, who is now the object of the greatest man hunt on record—greater even than the trailing of old Geronimo across the Mexican boundary by United States troops.

Price On Villa's Head.
Since the Santa Ysabel massacre of Americans, there has been a price on Villa's head. Sandoval City and Juarez to take up the trail.

"Don't come back without Villa—dead or alive!" Gen. Trevino told his commanders. He smiled as he said it, for he knew that Villa would never come back alive. That is not the way of the mountain men, and the outlaw knows every foot of trail, every mountain lookout and every cabin stronghold in the Sierra Madres.

Banditry is no new game with Villa. As a boy he was driven back into these same hills of the Guerrero district, and forced to turn bandit to save his life from the Diaz Rurales, who hunted him as only one bandit can hunt another.

Reversion to Type.

Villa's metamorphosis from a Mexican General, in gold lace and diamond-set medals, to an unshaven, ragged, dirty bandit has been a clear case of reversion to type.

When he was offered an amnesty, which he knew was only a Mexican trick to make him a victim of the firing squad, he showed his yellow teeth like a wolf and hissed back at the courier:

"Go and tell them to come and get me. I am here. I will be waiting for them with a reception so warm that they will never see Chihuahua City again."

It was the answer of the desperado Doroteo, not the diplomatic Pancho, the Commander-in-Chief of the Army of the North.

All of Villa's veneer of civilization has dropped from him like a serape, say men who have seen him since he took to the hills. He no longer shaves. There is vermin in his clothes and his bristly, hoglike beard is many weeks old, adding a sinister look to his ugly face and satyr-like mouth.

Wild Animals Abound.

Nature has set a stage for this manhunt that is awful in its rugged grandeur. There are no man-made roads. This is the Guerrero district where the very name (war) brands its human offspring. Great, shaggy mountain lions pad thru the soft pine needles of the mountain sides. Wolves howl the nights out and sing their song of hate to each other from peak to peak of the Mother of Mountains.

Against such a background, hundreds of little brown men in slate-gray uniforms and with sinister Mausers strapped across their broad, little backs, tramping, tramping, tramping, day after day in search of one lone individual whose apple-shaped head is more precious than the gold the dare-devil prospectors search for in the upper regions of the mountain streams.

There is order in the apparent disorder this man-hunt in the Sierra Madres. For weeks these same little men have been covering the mountain inch by inch in a great drive, and now they have forced Villa and his 300 tarnished Dorados—Golden Guards—back and back until they are in a giant trap, formed by the four walls of a mountain range and cut off by a raging mountain river.

Cover Advance Guards.

First come the Taramara Indian scouts, some naked except for a soiled breech cloth. As they go, they wind in and out of the pine trees and rocks, keeping away from the trails and squatting low to blend their brown bodies with the landscape. When they are forced to cross an open place, they patter a jig-dance which raises a cloud of alkaline dust to conceal them; and makes any watcher in the mountain tops think it is the whirl of a "sand devil" blown about by a passing wind.

Unlike the Taramaras, they carry their carbines with them, for they are to cover the Indian advance guards, who are armed only with primitive bows and arrows.

Bringing up the rear are the foot soldiers, baggage pack mules and the machine gun, to be used in dislodging the bandits should they undertake to make a stand in some mountain fastness, once they are cornered for the kill. Squat, lean little men they are. But theirs is the leanness of the mountain wolf. They can out-march any army in the world with their shuffling stiff-kneed trot.

Slouching on one side of his Mexican saddle rides Gen. Carlos, Cabeos, master of the hunt, who was picked from a hundred eager commanders for the Villa hunt because he was born in these mountains and, like his quarry, knows every inch of trail and every mountain lair.

Up on the crest of a sugar loaf, two eyes watch the approach of the hunters. The eyes are those of a Villa outpost, and the bandit-general himself with his followers will be warned in time to change their camp. It will be many a long day before Pancho is caught napping.

Has Used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for 20 Years.

"Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been used in my household for the past twenty years. I began giving it to my children when they were small. As a quick relief for croup, whooping cough, and ordinary colds, it has no equal. Being free from opium and other harmful drugs, I never felt afraid to give it to the children. I have recommended it to a large number of friends and neighbors, who have used it and speak highly of it," writes Mrs. Mary Minke, Shortsville, N. Y. Obtainable everywhere.

NURSE COMMITS SUICIDE AFTER GIVING DRUG

Pittsburg, Pa., Feb. 5.—The body of Miss Hazel Schoenfeld, age 20, of Altoona, was found floating in the Allegheny River here today.

Miss Schoenfeld, who was a student in the school for nurses at the Allegheny general hospital, yesterday gave medicine, prescribed by one of the hospital physicians, to the wrong patient, according to Herbert Beamer, who yesterday relinquished his position as superintendent of the institution, and who identified the body.

Miss Schoenfeld admitted her error and was dismissed. She at once put on a heavy coat, and hurrying to the river, three blocks away, walked into the water until it covered her head. Pedestrians who witnessed the act from a bridge, were unable to save her, and her identity was not disclosed until the body was recovered.

ROCKEFELLER TO AID WORST BOY

WILL KEEP PROMISE MADE TO
'MOTHER JONES' DURING STRIKE.

SELECT YOUNG CONVICT

Will Seek Pardon and Then Try to Reform Murderer of Three.

Chicago, Ill., Feb. 6.—The youngest lifer, in Joliet, Herman Coppes, convicted of the murder of Mrs. Maude Sleep and her two children, will be freed from the penitentiary if the efforts of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., "Mother" Mary Jones, Jack Robbins and Attorney William A. Cunnea are successful, it was learned today.

Coppes is 17 years old. Three years ago he shot and killed Mrs. Sleep, dropped her body into a cistern and then, fearing that the children would tell his crime, killed the two with an ax. He confessed the murders, was tried and sentenced to Joliet for life.

Nearly two years ago, a militiaman at one of the Colorado Fuel mines, controlled by the Rockefellers shot and killed Harold Snyder, twelve years old. His death did more to bring young Rockefeller to the mines to personally investigate conditions there than anything else.

While the younger Rockefeller was in the Colorado mining district he met "Mother" Jones, friend of the laboring people. He had reason to remember the meeting for "Mother" Jones termed him the "Murderer" of Harold Snyder.

Mr. Rockefeller told Mother Jones to find the worst boy, to spare no expense and to send all the bills to him.

"Mother" Jones came to Chicago recently. It was natural that she should meet her friend, Jack Robbins big brother to all wayward boys. She told him of Rockefeller's offer.

"I know the boy," Robbins said. And he told her of Herman Coppes the youngest "lifer" in Joliet penitentiary, the youngest life prisoner in any United States penal institution. He was called the worst of bad boys. And yet, Robbins knew he could be reformed.

"Mother" Jones wired Rockefeller that the worst boy had been found. She told him what it would cost to reclaim the life and to make recompense for Harold Snyder, murdered in Rockefeller's coal fields.

Rockefeller's answer was terse. "Spare no expense necessary." Attorney William A. Cunnea, was informed of the situation and he began immediately an investigation of Coppes' incarceration. Upon the action of Governor Dunne and the Board of Pardons depends the success of the plan of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and "Mother" Mary Jones. If the Governor consents to grant Coppes a pardon, "Mother" Jones wants it to be a full pardon with no strings attached to it.

"I don't want him to come out of the prison with anything of the prison on him," she said. "We want to give him a chance, something he never had before."

Mr. Rockefeller feels responsibility will not end with the boy's liberation if it is accomplished. He will stand sponsor for the young murderer until "Mother" Jones is assured he is a man worthy of a place among real men.

FASHION TIPS FOR THE LADY READERS

The mid-season hats are here and among the most attractive and popular of these are sailors made both of patent leather and of kid. The brims of many of these are lined with straw, and they are trimmed simply with bands and buckles. The crowns are low, the brims rather broad, and altogether they are very smart.

New straw hats are of the popular toque shape but very high of crown made higher by stand-up trimmings of net or ribbon to the height of a foot.

According to one woman the girl who does not wear all of the sailor hats and all of the pink and rose colored gowns that she can pile on while she is young, is going to spend the years of middle and old age in vain regrets.

There are many wonderful sales of laces at this season and among the sorts found on the bargain counter are edges of linen slinky six inches wide with insertions to match which will do splendidly for the linen bed covers and every housekeeper now makes.

Palm Beach sets consisting of a white silk hat, scarf and little bag to hold the inevitable knitting, are now on display on the counters.

Covers for card tables made of material which looks like Belgian linen but is not, and finished with a narrow lace edge, sell for twenty-five cents.

There are even reductions in china and these should certainly be taken advantage of, for as every housewife knows fine china is more expensive and harder to collect than silver.

The cape, ranging in size from the one that reaches to the shoulder to the one that extends far below the waist, is an important part of the mid-season gowns.

If news from Paris is to be believed the materials for summer gown will be lovelier than ever, with voile still immensely popular.

GREEN RIVER ASSOCIATION TO GO OUT OF BUSINESS

Owensboro, Ky., Feb. 5.—The Green River Tobacco Growers' Association is preparing to go out of business at the end of the present tobacco season, about June 1. This statement was made this morning by W. G. Riney, president and general manager of the association.

What disposition will be made of the loose leaf floor system, which the association controls, Mr. Riney could not state other than say that there will be no loose leaf house operated under the name of the association. "It is evident that the farmers want a new organization," said Mr. Riney, "and it seems that the new association recently organized is going to meet with the approval of the people."

CHANGES IN RULES FOR BASKET BALL

Cleveland, O., Feb. 5.—George Hepburn, representing the Amateur Athletic Union, and authority on basketball rules, here on a speaking trip to basketball coaches and players, said today he is considering a suggestion for a change in the rules of the game made to him by Karl Kist, local Y. M. C. A. physical director. Kist favors dropping the present method of tossing up the ball to the centers at the opening of the game and after each field goal. He would substitute tossing the ball in from the side lines, just as is done when it goes out of bounds.

This, he says, would do away with the advantage which a tall center gives to a team, and would permit a team to consist of five all-around athletes rather than four experts and one "string bean."

BULLETS FLY TRUE IN MOUNTAIN FIGHT

Lexington, Ky., Feb. 5.—A general battle has been fought on Rough and Tough creek in the Floyd county mountains news reaching here today by visitors from that remote section.

Anse Miller was shot dead, Louis Miller, Harrison Miller and Alfred Miller badly wounded, John Meadows and Walter Osborne, members of the opposing faction, are reported in jail at Prestonsburg. Meadows was living on land claimed by the Millers.

The latter, it is alleged, armed themselves and attacked the house. Meadows and Osborne, being warned, barricaded themselves and the battle raged some time, the attacking party fighting behind trees and rocks. The house was riddled with bullets.

Wouldn't Leave Jail.

Norristown, Pa., Feb. 5.—A dinner of stewed lamb was the bribe that finally induced Giuseppe Zepa, of Ambler, to leave the county jail here and go home, after he had already been freed.

The day after Zepa was turned out a free man Warden Roberts found him sobbing on the steps of the jail. He said he'd been treated so kindly and the weather was so bad he preferred to stay in jail.

To Erect Huge Telescope.

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 5.—Preparations were made to freight up the steep trails of Mount Wilson a huge sectional telescope tube, which, with the largest lens in the world, will be installed at Carnegie Solar Observatory. The tube in four sections, arrived here from New York aboard a steamer which traveled around Cape Horn.

The sections of tube, which with their cases weigh 47,250 pounds, were refused by railroads for shipment because they were too wide for flat cars and too high to go thru some transcontinental tunnels.

Work on the lens which weighs four and a half tons, has been in progress several years. It will be completed early next year.
