"The Smugglers." a five-act sensational meladrama by Augustus Wolford, Nearly a carload of special scenery and mechanical offects is used in the play, giving it the same production as at the Lincoln thester, Chicago, where it had a very prosperous run at the beginning of the season. The Smugglers' is made up with a bright and interesting dialogue composed of herote speeches and thrilling climaxes, arousing the strongest passiona and the tenderest emotions, blending the most exciting incidents with the most laughable situations, throwing a search-light on a phase of life never before pictured on the stage. Its characters are real men and women, the scenes real places of interest known to the world, in fact, it is everything that science, art, semins and money can produce—this great play at the opera house Monday night.
