Congressional Orgies.

The House was given up to-day mainly to the district of Columbia business and fun. In the last it rather out-did itself, and the acting Speaker at last declared an adjournment to get rid of the turbulence, while half the members were shouting for a yeas and nays vote.

Had we a Shakespeare in these times, what a theme for successful tragedy would he find in the American Congress. He could study human nature in a new and melancholy phase, and develop and personity it in character that would eclipse the fame of Hamlet or Othello. It is doubtful if a scene similar to the one described has been enacted in the nineteenth century. The law-makers of a suffering country given over to fun and turbulence.

While hundreds of thousands of brave men have gone forth at their country's call, and death is holding high carnival in their midst-while sorrow for the fallen pervades nearly every household in the MINER'S LAMPS land, and anxiety is depicted on every countenance, Congress devotes its day to

Gold at a large premium -the finances of the country tottering-the public confidence exhibing symptoms of alarm-all prices advancing-speculation rearing its air castles soon to be dissolved into nothingness and the great heart of the nation throbbing audibly with anxiety and fear, yet Congress waxes merry over the spectacle and indulges in a day of fun.

The energies of the people are taxed to their utmost-sacrifices are called for and freely made, such as find no parallel in modern times-the arm of labor is weakened, productive industry curtailed, selfdenial and privation made necessary to persons of limited means, the windows of the political heavens seemed open and

"The tempest weaves its thickening gloom," yet Congress heeds not the awful reality, and in mockery of the public grief, revels this thing to last? I vet know of an sufficient reasons why a man may not testify to the benefits he believes. himsely to have received from any simple preparation, in the hope that he may thus contribute to the benefit of others.

I do this the more readily in regard to Hoofland's German Bitters, prepared by Dr. C. M. Jackson of this city, because I was prejudiced against them for many years, under the impression that they were chiefly an alcoholic mixture I am indebted to my friend Robert Shoemaker, Esq., for the removal of this prejudice by proper tests, and for encouragement to try them, when suffering from great and long continued debility. The use of three bottles of these Bitters, at the beginning of the present year, was followed by evident relief, and restoration to a degree of bodily and mental vigor which had not felt for six months before, and had almost despaired of regaining. I therefore thank God and my friend for directing me to the use of them. J. NEWTON BROWN.
