

FARMER CAN'T HELP BUT TELL OTHERS ABOUT IT

Fuller Says After Suffering 12 Years From a Complication of Troubles Tanlac Has Completely Restored His Health.

"I'm now enjoying better health than I have in years, and can't help but let others know how thankful I am for what Tanlac has done for me," said B. M. Fuller, a well-known farmer of Mendon, Vermont.

"For twelve years I suffered terribly from a complication of a stomach trouble, indigestion, and nervousness, and could find nothing that would relieve me until I ran across Tanlac. Sour gas would form on my stomach, bloating me up, causing my heart to palpitate dreadfully, and at times almost cutting off my breath. I was badly constipated, had awful headaches, and often became so dizzy I could not stagger and could hardly walk on my feet. Black spots would appear before my eyes, and I would get so faint and nervous I couldn't even think of a member. My kidneys bothered me a great deal, and I had severe pains in my back, and was simply miserable.

"I read so much about Tanlac in the newspapers that I got a bottle, and began improving from the very start. I have only taken three bottles now, but it has already freed me from bloating, palpitation, shortness of breath, constipation, headaches, dizziness, and nervousness, and my back doesn't trouble me enough to notice. Why, I can eat such things as pork, am gaining strength every day, and feel better in every way than I have in a long time. Tanlac is too good for all suffering people not to know about, and I hope my statement will be of benefit to others."

Tanlac is sold in Brattleboro by the Brattleboro Drug Co., and in South Londonderry by Geo. G. Smith.—Adv.

HARDING YIELDS TO JOHNSON'S PLAN

His Rejection of Treaty of Versailles Complete Endorsement

HIS SPEECH CAUSES MUCH SURPRISE

League of Nations Now Real Issue — Hint of New Fiscal Policy Which Will Increase Price of Liberty and Victory Bonds.

By DAVID LAWRENCE. (Special Dispatch to The Reformer Copyright, 1920.)

MARION, O., July 23.—Senator Warren G. Harding has surrendered to Senator Hiram Johnson and is in favor of scrapping the treaty of peace which contains the present league of nations. Mr. Harding proposes, if elected, to make a separate peace by congressional resolution and to ask the nations of the world to create a different league of nations from that proposed by Mr. Wilson.

Senator Johnson had threatened to bolt the Republican nominee if he did not accept the interpretation of the Republican platform which the California senator had enunciated. Unless Hiram Johnson reveals himself merely as a poor loser, there is nothing in the Harding speech of acceptance as it relates to the league issue to which he can take objection.

Unquestionably Senator Harding doesn't believe the league which is now in existence in Europe has much of a hold on the American voter and he has taken his place therefore alongside Hiram Johnson who has managed in the East, at any rate, to rouse a considerable following for his views.

But the speech of Mr. Harding comes as a surprise to those who had expected the presence of Elihu Root in Europe and the record of the Ohio senator in voting for the treaty of Versailles with reservations would commit him to an endeavor at least to fashion something out of the present international structure. But Mr. Harding rejects it absolutely and calls for "a new association" of nations.

Irrespective of how many reservations, interpretative or otherwise, may be proposed by Governor Cox, the Democratic platform commits him to the present league of nations and the ratification of the treaty of Versailles. To the extent that President Wilson sought a clear-cut issue on the league his wish has been gratified for Senator Harding throws overboard the treaty of Versailles and calls for a new peace agreement with the nations of Europe. Naturally the Democrats will say this means a new peace conference and more international negotiation and confusion and delay.

But the whole tenor of the Harding speech of acceptance indicates that he believes the Johnsonian view of the league issue is more popular than any other. He unhesitatingly subscribes to it.

As for the remainder of the speech, the Ohio senator has written an eloquent oration with solemn warning in it to the ever-increasing demand of labor for more wages which he says cannot be heeded unless accompanied by efficient service in return.

The Ohio senator goes into detail skillfully on the subject of farmers and operative organizations thereby appealing to the agricultural vote. He goes back to the old Panama canal tolls fight of 1913 and practically reverses the position taken by Senators Lodge and Root at the time who claimed that for American ships to be immune from the payment of tolls was a discrimination against British ships and a violation of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty between the United States and Great Britain.

However the Irish voters opposed that repeal of the Panama canal tolls act and the presumption is that they still feel indignant about it.

Throughout the Harding speech there is a tone of dignity and conservatism. Not a word of denunciation of President Wilson by name occurs in the speech. There are only implicit references to one-man government and autocratic rule. The Ohio senator gave in his address an impression of earnestness and conscientious desire to do the best he could if elected to the presidency. His phrase "No man is big enough to run this great republic," has its curious counterpart in Woodrow Wilson's speech of acceptance in 1912 when, in referring to the Roosevelt desire for a third term, the then Democratic nominee said "There is no indispensable man."

Aside from a belief in the protective tariff, efficiency in government bureaus, a general proposal about more equitable taxes, a less belligerent statement full of hope and optimism about our relations with Mexico which carries in it no threat of violence, the speech of acceptance introduces a new suggestion that is bound to make a popular appeal when the stump speakers get hold of it—namely requiring the government to make its Liberty and Victory bonds worth all that its citizens were paid in purchasing them. Of course bonds will ultimately be redeemed at par but the Republican nominee hints at a new fiscal policy that he hopes will raise the price of bonds.

Thousands upon thousands of visitors crowded this little town to hear Senator Harding speak. The whole thing seemed more like an old-fashioned political rally in a state or county than a national affair. It was a gathering principally of plain folks in which the visiting politicians from the urban centers seemed in conspicuous minority.

Senator Harding is in the old McKinley atmosphere and yesterday's ceremony breathed the spirit of the old days of Republicanism in Ohio.

GOVERNMENT SEES BIG EUROPEAN WAR

Fears England and France Cannot Stop Bolsheviki at Border of Poland — People Oppose Fighting.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—Without official information regarding the decision of the cabinet to furnish military aid to Poland in her struggle with the Bolsheviki, government officials refrained yesterday from formal expression of opinion, but unofficially professed to see in the new situation most of the elements of a European war on a broad scale.

Army officers and officials of state department generally were frankly skeptical as to the ability of France and Great Britain to place armies in Poland in time to check the Russian advance before Warsaw falls and many of them were skeptical of the power of either France or Great Britain to drive their war weary populations into the struggle without a serious unbalancing of domestic affairs.

Although technically the President still is endowed with the specially conferred war powers there was no disposition in official circles to assume that he would involve the United States in a war between Bolsheviki and the allies, unless action might be justified by some overt act against the army of occupation on the Rhine. Reports to the state department indicate increasing tenseness between the conservation and the pro-radical groups in Germany and it was generally believed that unless the radical element gained the ascendancy the chances of the United States becoming involved in the new situation were slight, although a suggestion of American cooperation from France and Great Britain was regarded as probable.

PRIORITY IN COAL FOR NEW ENGLAND

Railroads Promise Cars to Take It to Tidewater—Interstate Commerce Commission Must Act.

NEW YORK, July 23.—New England will be given a priority in coal shipments, according to an agreement reached here yesterday at a conference between railroad executives, coal operators, and James J. Storrow, representing New England.

Col. D. P. Wentz, president of the National Coal association, and Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, will submit the agreement to the Interstate Commerce commission in Washington early today or Saturday. The commission will be asked to issue an order granting priority to New England on virtually the same terms as were embodied in its order of Tuesday giving priority to the Northwest.

The plan has been worked out in detail, it was said, but it will not become effective until the Interstate Commerce commission issues the necessary order.

Chief efforts of the railroads to relieve the New England situation, it was explained, will be towards providing sufficient cars to carry coal from the mines of Newport to water shipping points like Newport News, Baltimore and Philadelphia. Enough ships are available for coal cargoes, it was said, thus confining the problem to transporting coal to tidewater only.

The railroads have agreed to supply the mines with necessary cars, it was stated, and the operators have assured Mr. Storrow that these cars will be loaded.

FOR NEW PREVENTORIUM. Building With 32 Beds Planned—Hope to Have It Ready by Winter.

BURLINGTON, July 23.—Thomas Magner, president of the Vermont Tuberculosis association, has appointed as a committee of three to have charge of the building of the new preventorium, Fred A. Howland of Montpelier, Daniel D. Burditt of Pittsford and Dr. Edward J. Rogers, superintendent of the Vermont sanatorium.

The architects have been instructed to submit tentative plans as early as possible and every effort will be made to have the new building ready for children before winter. The plan is to provide for 32 beds but make the administration department big enough to accommodate double that number in the expectation that later a cottage dormitory will be added.

ANTI-SALOONERS NEUTRAL. Will Simply Compile Record of Presidential Candidates on Prohibition.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—The Anti-Saloon League of America will not endorse any presidential candidate for election this year, but has ordered a compilation of facts as to the prohibition record and present stand of each candidate and will make this public. This announcement was made by the executive committee of the organization last night after an all-day session in which superintendents of many of its state branches participated.

A special committee headed by Dr. P. A. Baker, general superintendent of the league, was authorized by resolution "carefully and impartially to obtain the official records, public utterances and present attitude of each candidate for the information of the constituency of the league."

GOVERNOR COX IS SILENT. Does Not Discuss Harding's Speech of Acceptance.

COLUMBUS, O., July 23.—Preparation of his address for acceptance of the Democratic presidential nomination on Aug. 7 was the principal task today before Governor Cox. He was to leave here at 2:40 o'clock for his home near Dayton, where he will be notified. Governor Cox refrained from indicating the viewpoint of Democratic leadership on the acceptance address yesterday of Senator Harding, the Republican presidential nominee.
