MUSIC MEMORY CONTEST

A history of each selection to be used in the contest which is being conducted under the auspices of Community Service and which will be demonstrated in the schools, music stores and other places, will be printed in this space as it is to be demonstrated—four each week, with a review the fifth day.

SELECTION 10.

Liebestraum (Dream of Love).
By Franz Liszt; Born near Odenburg, Hungary, 1811; died in Baireuth 1886.

The wonders of the piano—We hear the piano played so often that we frequently forget the wonders of the instrument. What a band or orchestra needs many different players and instruments to do, can, to a great extent, be done by the piano with a single performer. The piano can render many parts and can suggest the tones of many instruments. Much of the extraordinary development of piano music is due to the composer of today's selection.

A musician and a patron of musicians—Franz Liszt was a Hungarian, and to this ancestry doubtless owed his strong emotional life. He was the most capable pianist of his century and was a worthy composer in many branches of music. His piano pieces appear on every artist's program, for they display piano and performance at their best. But he won a unique place in music through his generous heart. Although himself a composer and performer of the first rank, he seemed entirely free from jealousy and petty feeling, even of men who sought to rival him. He was always ready to aid other musicians with money, appreciation, and instruction. Many artists were the recipients of his goodness. Richard Wagner could probably never have accomplished what he did had it not been for the help of his friend Liszt.

A tone picture—This Liebestraum (Dream of Love) is the third of several compositions of the same type which Liszt wrote. It is a song without words which leaves much to the imagination of the listener. Beginning with a simple, warm, tender melody, Liszt tries to reveal the joy of a lover who is dreaming of his beloved. Lydian mode is employed free flight, because as the composition proceeds and enthusiasm rises many ornamentations, trills, and runs appear to suggest the wonderful flow of music which comes to all of us in our most comfortable dreams.

BRATTLEBORO LOCAL

A special meeting of the board of directors of Brattleboro Community Service will be held at 7.30 o'clock tonight at the Board of Trade rooms.

Miss Frances Martell entertained the women clerks in Houghton & Simonds' store last evening at the rooms of the Business and Professional Woman's club.

Scott Dunklee, formerly of Brattleboro, narrowly escaped death at his hand pit on the Gill road in Greenfield, Mass., yesterday, when a bank of sand caved in on him and John Wunsch, one of the workmen. Mr. Wunsch was digging at the foot of the bank and Mr. Dunklee, fearing a slide, went to him to warn him. Before he could speak the bank slid, burying both men. Raymond Moreau and Charles Smith of Turners Falls were near by and dug out Mr. Dunklee and Mr. Wunsch, neither of whom was injured seriously.

BRATTLEBORO LOCAL

About 25 members of Wantastiquet lodge of Odd Fellows went to South Londonderry last evening to attend the district meeting. Hope lodge, No. 52, of Manchester Depot worked the first degree, which was exemplified in a fine manner. The Rebekahs of South Londonderry served an excellent supper before the meeting.

In municipal court in Keene, N. H., yesterday Oscar Guheen of Brattleboro, through his counsel, Philip H. Faulkner, pleaded nolo to speeding in Westmoreland on Oct. 8, also to driving around a curve where view was obstructed at a rate of speed greater than 10 miles an hour. A fine of $15 and costs of $8.70 were imposed. Guheen was arrested by State Traffic Officer William B. Burnell.

The annual meeting of the Baptist World-Wide guild was held last evening in the church parlors, when the following officers were elected: President, Helen Hopkins; vice pres., Ada Felch; sec., Etta Leach; treas., Mrs. Clarence Smith; program committee, Elva Robbins; literary com., Maybelle Hazelton; social com., Mildred Dampier; membership com., Marjorie Clapp; the business where cross work was done. Refreshments of wafers and punch were served.

John J. Gilmore of Greenfield, Mass., who married Miss Charlotte Hildreth of this town and who for four years was with the Mangle Bros. Co. and Fred W. Tirrell, also of Greenfield, have become associated in an automobile business in Greenfield, handling the Hudson and Essex cars in that territory. Both Mr. Tirrell and Mr. Gilmore have been in the sales department of the Weldon garage. Mr. Tirrell being employed there the past six years and Mr. Gilmore the past two years.

BURGLARIES LAST NIGHT.

at E. L. Hildreth & Co.'s printing plant, and Officer Merrill A. Stark, who lives in the apartment above her.

Officer Stark and Mr. Switzer made their way quietly down stairs and when they entered the lower rooms the door leading from the kitchen to the dining room had been closed by the burglars, who apparently had retreated to the kitchen. The house lights were flashed on and when the two men went into the kitchen the visitors had escaped through the kitchen door, which was open. As far as she could ascertain, Mrs. Switzer said nothing had been taken, the thieves apparently having become frightened before they had made up their minds what they would take for booty.

The time of the other break was not definitely fixed as Mr. Adams, who is employed by Dunham Brothers Co., did not discover that his house had been broken into until 6 o'clock this morning. At that time Mr. Adams went into the bathroom, and he noticed that the screen had been taken out of the window. Further investigation revealed that the screen was on the ground outside the window, and a small box had been placed up against the house under the window to assist the intruders in gaining entrance. Mr. Adams then realized that someone had been in his house and he called the attention of Mrs. Adams to the matter. She found that her black leather shopping bag and her leather purse which she had left last night on the kitchen table had been stolen. The purse contained nearly $4 in money. Mr. Adams found also that 18 cents which he had in his trousers pocket had been taken, and a pair of kid gloves which he left last night in the kitchen were found outside the bathroom window on the ground.

Mr. Adams said that neither he nor his wife nor their son, Francis, who sleep in the front part of the house, heard the intruders while they were at work in the house. Apparently the thieves confined their efforts to what they could find in the kitchen as nothing was missed from the dining room, which is adjacent to the kitchen and which is between the kitchen and the sleeping rooms. The police were notified early this morning, and they are working on the case.

In view of the many breaks here of late the villagers are beginning to wonder if Brattleboro is the mecca of thieves. Some townspeople believe that as those who made the breaks six weeks ago were not apprehended the general uneasiness of the situation and the noting out of such stiff sentences as will cause burglars to realize that Brattleboro is a good place for them to keep away from.
