"You Never Know"

The man was a mystery to all but himself. None knew whence he came, why he was there nor whence he was going. Those whom you suspect may be your best friends. Silence is often painful, but it pays good dividends many times.

Is it wise to trust a dishonest person? Why is a dog called man's best friend? Is there such a thing as love at first sight?

It has you guessing! It keeps you guessing! If you like to know, SEE

GLOOM PERVADES EAST CONFERENCE

Rival Claims of Hostile Countries Discussed With Great Seriousness

CAPITULATIONS BY TURKEY ON TODAY

Kemalists Making Hard Fight to Terminate Special Privileges to Foreigners—Must Not Be Longer Hampered by Foreign Control of Finances.

LAUSANNE, Dec. 2 (Associated Press).—The question of Turkish capitulations is on the Near East conference program for discussion today. Ismet Pasha and his associates are preparing to make a hard fight to sustain the claim that the Kemalists government has successfully terminated the special privileges accorded to foreigners under the Constantinople regime.

The progress of the capitulations discussion in the conference is being watched with great interest at Ankara, as the more extreme Nationalists insist that the privileges have been so galling to Turkey that the country will never again submit to such a brand of inferiority to the western powers.

The Nationalist spokesman will attempt to prove to the conference that all capitulations have been waived by the Ankara government, that Turkey must no longer be hampered by foreign control of her customs and financial affairs and that the necessity no longer exists for foreign consular courts to administer justice to other Nationals living in Turkey.

The Ottoman debt was also a topic to be called up today. Gloom hangs heavily over the conference most of the time, but there is an occasional smile. When Bulgaria and Greece were presenting claims for the possession of Dedagatch, Miss Stancoff, acting as spokesman for Premier Stambouliski of Bulgaria, said in French: "Bulgaria has only two ports on the Black sea and no outlet southward. Greece has scores of ports. Surely she can spare us one."

M. Venizelos interrupted with great earnestness: "God Almighty! Himself placed Greece with water all around her. Please don't blame me for that."

Lord Curzon and other delegates who understood French laughed heartily. Premier Stambouliski joined in their laughter when Miss Stancoff explained what Venizelos had said.

PUBLIC HEALTH WORK.

said is decreasing materially. Dr. Leach told of the examination of 500 school children in Springfield (Vt.). On the first inspection a child with good teeth was the exception, but now the exception is to find a child that has defective teeth. The child with enlarged tonsils on the first examination that has not been corrected is rare, most of those found in the last examination being with children never in the school before.

For the special interest of the Vernon committee, nine members of which were present, Dr. Leach told what was found in the examination of the children of that town. Out of 81 children 44 were found to be normal; some of the 37 others had more than one defect. Twenty had defective permanent teeth, no record being made of temporary teeth in any examination; nine had defective throats, which meant diseased tonsils; nine had defective vision, which included children who could not see properly without glasses, children with muscular weakness in other eyes, and children with children with glasses that were not correct; 35 children were 10 per cent under weight.

In Miss Kuhn's talk the public health service of the state was referred to as compared with such work in other places. In some places a nurse is employed in each town and in other instances a group of towns join in employing a nurse. The eyes of Vermont, she said, are on Windham county. Everywhere she goes she said she hears of what Windham county is doing for the health of her people and in many other counties such a service as has been launched here is desired. She gave illustrations of what is being done in health work in different towns and urged the teachers to send to headquarters for material to help them in junior Red Cross work.

Miss Helen M. Sanderson, public health nurse for the southern district of the county, told of clinics which had been planned in several towns, also of baby conferences, speaking of specific cases where corrections have been made. Her report for the month showed the holding of 13 home hygiene classes, making of arrangements for two babies to be admitted to preventorium at Pittsford; made 20 visits to schools and 32 other visits; two new home hygiene classes formed with enrollment of 20; gave five talks, started 12 health clubs, attended social workers conference, teachers meetings in two towns and committee meetings. During the month she traveled 740 miles.

Miss Clara E. Hoffman, nurse for the West River valley district, explained the purposes of the health clubs in the schools and of other work she had been called upon to do in addition to what was shown in her report, which included: Fifteen visits; 10 home hygiene classes, two of which were new with enrollment of 26; visited 39 schools, inspecting 208 pupils, of whom 103 were found defective—13 vision, 82 teeth, 9 throat, 3 skin, 32 were 10 per cent under weight, six 20 per cent over weight—started 23 health clubs. She also attended conferences and committee meetings.

WALL STREET

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—Stock prices continued their move to higher ground in today's stock market in further correction of the over-extended short position developed during the recent reaction. Some exceptional gains were made by a number of specialties, but representative shares, as a rule, moved only moderately higher. High grade railroad shares were bought freely and there was an increased volume of speculative operations in industrials.

Acute weakness in International Harvester, which dropped nine points, failed to unsettle the rest of the list, although a few other weak spots developed from profit-taking. Woolworth was depressed 4 points. Fisher Body 3 and New York Central, Pan American and Associated Industries each.

Some of the outstanding gains included American Smelt, up 10; All America Cables, 7½; National Cloak and Suit, 5; United Fruit, 3½; and Omaha and Studebaker, 2. The closing was strong. Sales approximated 525,000 shares.

VILLAGE IN DARKNESS.

ries 2,300 volts and its lights also were put out when the wires were grounded.

The village lights went out at 8.40 and after a few minutes people at home realized that something serious had happened when the lights failed to come on. Candles were gotten out by householders and were used to good advantage until the lights flashed on again 25 minutes later. On the streets the light of an almost full moon helped out wonderfully, and on Main street the constant coming and going of automobiles served to keep the street fairly well illuminated.

At the Auditorium the lights went out just at the close of one of the choruses in the Oh Baby show by the Marcus Producing Co. Announcement was made that a tree had broken a high tension wire, but that light would be furnished in a few minutes. A later announcement was to the fact that the lights would be on in half a minute, but it was about 20 minutes after the second announcement when the current came on again. Meanwhile there were cat-calls from the audience and exchanges of remarks from various parts of the house. Occasionally someone would light a match, and after a time some candles and pocket flashlights appeared. To fill in the time the orchestra played two or three selections and members of the company put on some additional numbers. The lights came back just as preparations were being made for going on with the show with the aid of meagre illumination afforded by the pocket lamps and candles.

Within a few minutes after the six wires were grounded, the current was switched off at the Vinton paper mill and a gang of four men employed by the Twin State Gas & Electric Co. went to work to repair the break on the railroad bank. In the meantime word was sent to the Vernon plant of the Connecticut River Power Co. and at 9.15 the latter switched over its current and the town was lighted once more. The four repairmen worked on the broken wires until midnight when permanent repairs were completed.

The fire department was informed of the fire at Harris place by Patrick Fleming, jr. Upon reaching the scene the men laid a line of hose and as soon as the current was shut off the gas fire was extinguished. Several of the men also went to the Vinton paper mill immediately after the oil switch burned out, but outside of the burned switch no damage was done.

The high wind also blew down three poles on the high tension line at West Dummerston, but no damage was done by the wires which were carrying current.

Electric repairmen employed by the Twin State company are in accord in the opinion that much danger is present throughout the town due to the condition of many of the trees. The men say that there are a countless number of trees with rotten limbs that are a menace to people walking on the streets. They intimate that every windstorm is likely to invite a repetition of last night's occurrence unless some action is taken by the village toward removing these hazards.

About three-quarters of an hour before the fire department was called out by the broken wires the men responded to a call to the house of W. A. Morse at 10 Elm street, where a chimney was ablaze. Charles E. Little lives in the

The two-century-old house, once Fletcher's Tavern, was damaged, but antiques prepared for an auction were saved. Deeds for the sale of the property, which includes a 150 acre farm were to have been passed by Mr. Twombly today.
