MARY ECKAR. A SCHOOL FOR YOUNG WIDOWS." WIDOWS."

This beautiful story increases in interest as it progresses, and no one, whose taste has not been perverted by high spiced fictious of the French school, can read a single chapter without a desire for the whole of it. Calculating on the intrinsic excellence of the work to make its own popularity, without the aid of poffing, we have laid aside a few hundred complete sets of the present volume, containing all the chapters as far as published, and for which there it now a daily demand.

and for which there it now a daily demand.

If we could only make up our minds and our mouths to blow our own trampet, we might easily with noise enough about 'The School for Young Widows' to create an excitement in the public mind, and arouse the curious in literary matters, to a loud call for the anonymous author much prefer to leave our resders to find out them-selves, what is good, without prompting. To pre-face every thing which appears in our columns with a puff, would be quite as distasteful to our-selves, as insulting to the judgment of the reader. No man would thank his cook to stand behind his chair while cating and comment upon each dish upon the table. As 'good wine needs no bush,' and good deeds no praise, so good books and good din nees will be sure to go down without the aid of outfling.

The story of 'Mary Eckar' is written by a lady The story of 'Mary Eckar' is written by a lady altogether unknown as an authoress, who has thrown off this soontaneous production as the flowers yield their perfume, and the birds sing their songs, not for money or for fame, but, as the poet says, 'from Love's excess'—the natural inflorescence of a true woman's heart—

'By rentle feelings long subdued,
Subdued and cherished long.'

The interest of the story mainly centres in the character of the betoine, Clara Annesley, the day her of a poor English Clergyman, who dies, leaving the lovely orphan slone in the world, with no inheritance but the fatal dower of beauty. Like all heroines she is fair and sweet and good-

These celebrated Pills have been used to great advantage in curing the Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bronchitis, Liver Complaint, &c.

They are an infallible medicine for Female Complaints generally, and especially for removing those obstructions, which are the source of their ailments, at certain periods; they possess the eminents advantage over most other purgatives, that while they operate gently, they produce neither costiveness, debility nor too great excitement.

Whenever there is a predisposition to receive disease from marsh effluvia, or from a too copious use of ardent spirits, or from a viriated state of the bile, these Pills will assuredly counteract it.

Dr. Dyott's Anti-Bilious Pills being an antidote

WILD CHERRY.

Consumptives, or those whose lungs are affected slightly, should take this Syrup without delay, by which they may prevent the fixing of that dire disease fully and firmly. How important then, to avoid it. Never live a day with a cough when this Syrup can be had, and you are nearly certain, with proper care, to avoid destruction by Consumption.

DR. SWAYNE'S COMPOUND SYRUP OF WILD CHERRY was the first preparation from that valuable tree which was ever introduced to the ublic, and ample proof is afforded of its success y the country being flooded with "Balsams," Candies," and "Mixtures" of Wild Cherry, not one of which is prepared by a regular ph sician, although they have assumed the names of respectable physicians to give currency to their "Nostrums" And there is an "Impostor" who has come out within a few days, with a Compound Syr-up of Wild Cherry, clinging still closer to the origi al name, that persons might be deceived did not bear in mind the name of DR. SWAYNE Therefore the public should be on their guard, and not have a worthless mixture palmed upon them for the original and genuine preparation, which is only prepared by Dr. SWAYNE, N. W.
