THE MURDERER.

In a cell at the court house is a man who has committed one of the worst possible offenses against society, that of taking away the right to live, which the Creator has given to every human being. Sentenced to twenty years hard labor because of the crime, this man who was brought up in the free out door life of old Kentucky will spend nearly all of the remaining years of his life with no individuality save a number, without the companionship and loving sympathy of those he loves, in narrow quarters where no sound of the busy and progressive outside world will reach, with every man's hand against him and stigmatized with one of the worst epithets in our vocabulary, that of murderer.

How comes it, that this man, who is in his prime, at an age when man physically and mentally should be at his best, is in these dire straits. Is it because Davis is without moral sensibility? This cannot be. A man who can admire flowers and nature and feel the refining touches of sentiment such as he has displayed upon several occasions is not a brute. Is it because of inherent criminal instincts? We doubt that too. The only conclusion we can arrive at then is that he was, according to the testimony given in the court, delicious with whisky, when he extinguished the spark of life in his victim. Davis little thought that he was observed when he fired the fatal shot. There was no one present at that dramatic moment. But the eye of a Power higher than man's was fixed upon him and the tragedy was witnessed. He little thought that the eye of his God, which does not permit even a sparrow to fall without His notice was watching his movements, and that sooner or later he would pay the penalty of his outraged Creator.

Soon the closing act in the drama will be completed. The curtain will close upon the scene and the actor remove his mask showing a face lined with regret for the past, and sorrow for the future. The wife and relatives of the prisoner will pursue their various paths in life without him, and he will be as a member that has been lost from the family circle, to be always alluded to as one that is dead, in tones tinged with sorrow, but above reproach. Davis will soon pass from our midst, but the tragic picture his life presents to us will be hard to forget.

JUSTICE PALMER

A BENEFIT TO MAN

It was long and green,
With a curly stem—
An' a justice brought it in
'Twas raised too in the valley,
For the appetites of men.

From "Kipling."

This morning as the humble scribes, the busy editors, and industrial typographical workers and office force gathered around to start the day at the headquarters of Wenatchee's news factory they were surprised to see a singular figure entering through the door leading into the business office.

At first it was thought that a wandering minstrel down on his luck, or a strolling player with more wit than material goods was about to make a touch, or that a tourist printer had become imbued with strange passions for agricultural achievements. Then a moment later they saw their mistake, for behind the queer combination of green and white they saw the smiling countenance of Justice Palmer, Wenatchee's impartial administrator of justice to humanity's drifting wood on the stream of life. And in his hands he had a monster watermelon. There will be a cutting this afternoon. Plates will be laid for paid up subscribers.

The Ladies' Aid Society, of the Methodist Episcopal church will serve ice cream and cake in the basement of the church next Friday evening. A good attendance will be appreciated.

IRON SHOPS AT THE JAMESTOWN EXPOSITION
This is one of the buildings that will be visited by the Winner of the World-Advance Contest.

ONLY THREE DAYS MORE

Miss Mable Simmons Now Leads the Contest.

Today's count places Miss Mable Simmons in the lead once more, making the big jump by turning in 114,000 votes this morning. Miss Garton and Miss Cushing promise a good and exciting race with her and that's not all—look for surprises later on. Miss Anne Davis of Leavenworth came from the bottom of the list up to fifth place today.

A free trip to Jamestown Exposition is not picked up every day and the work entailed upon winning, while not hard, has nevertheless been done to gain an end.

Candidates who have subscriptions promised them should begin to gather them in so as to avoid as much as possible the rush of the closing day. The last day of the contest will be exciting enough as it is and those who desire to turn in subscriptions should do so in plenty of time so as not to be hampered at the last moment.

Very little can be told from the published list of votes how the contest really stands. Many of the contestants are holding a heavy reserve till Saturday when they will be dumped in by the thousands.

The only way to win is to "keep busy"—get all the votes you possibly can. Keep at it—don't give up.

All votes must be deposited with contest manager at the World office before 9 o'clock Saturday evening—so be on time. Don't wait until the last moment to see what the other fellow is going to do.

Following is the list of contestants as they stand today:

| | |
|--------------------------------|---------|
| Mable Simmons, R. F. D. No. 1 | 135,338 |
| Estelle Garton, Wenatchee | 34,920 |
| Madge Cushing, Wenatchee | 14,847 |
| Winifred Lyons | 10,802 |
| Anne Davis, Leavenworth | 13,775 |
| Vida Van Cleve, R. F. D. No. 1 | 690 |
| Ruby Burge, Winchester | 346 |
| Perl Whisman, Wenatchee | 285 |
| Gertrude Cowan, Entiat | 223 |

Change in places and votes can be noted in each list and shows that the contest is to be a spirited, good-natured battle for prizes we offer. Subscriptions are what bring the votes, so hustle!

Following is the list of prizes offered by the World to the successful ones:

- GRAND PRIZE—Trip to Jamestown Exposition and Return.
- SECOND PRIZE—One Scholarship in Wenatchee Business College, worth $60.00
- THIRD PRIZE—One Scholarship in Wenatchee Business College Night School, worth $45.00.
- FOURTH PRIZE—Six Months' Scholarship in Acme Business College of Everett, Washington.
- FIFTH PRIZE—Mandolin with Case, Instruction Book, Book of Music, Picks and Strings and Also an Ocarina now on exhibit at the Chas. Piano House, worth $25.00.

Big Peach Yield.

Seven Early Hale peach trees on the J. A. Gellatly orchard adjoining town, which were planted two years ago, yielded 35 boxes of fruit. Two trees bore eight boxes each. Considering the fact that these trees were so young that they are not considered old enough to bear, this was a record. He received 60 cents per box.

MAKES A RECORD AT PACKING FRUIT

Mrs. P. E. Wise Packs Ninety Boxes in Nine Hours Yesterday at Millerdale.

Mrs. P. E. Wise made a record yesterday when she packed ninety boxes of peaches in nine hours time. The day before she packed sixty boxes up till two o'clock. She made a remark to that effect and her statement was questioned. Accordingly she started in yesterday morning and by night had a big stack of fruit of ninety boxes.

Friday she will endeavor to make a record pack in one hour's time.

Representative of Art Millinery.

Miss Julia Mahoney has returned from Seattle where she went for the purpose of buying the newest and most approved ideas in the art of millinery from the eastern and foreign markets and will open a millinery store in the rear of Marshall's. Miss Mahoney expects to have her opening in a short time.

Loading Cars.

On Tuesday and Friday of each week I will load cars for Bellingham Commission Company at Bellingham and on Mondays and Saturdays will load for A. N. Herritt, Seattle.

All consignments to us will receive prompt attention and prompt returns. References, First National Bank, Bellingham, Washington Trust Company, Seattle.
