NAVY SUMMER SCHOOLS OPEN

Youths Between 16 and 20
Are Paid for Attending Them.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, July 15.—Summer schools for the training of youths between the ages of 16 and 20 years were opened today at the Hampton Roads and Great Lakes Naval Training stations. Enrollments for the schools were received at the naval recruiting stations and the applicants were required to pass the ordinary qualifications for enlistment in the navy.

Provision for these schools was made in the last annual appropriation bill. Those attending are required to enroll for three months in the naval reserve force. They will receive the pay of apprentice seamen for the six weeks' course, amounting in all to about $50 and also transportation back to their homes. In addition, the navy furnishes all subsistence, uniforms and equipment.

While the schools will observe a naval routine in outdoor drills and exercises, there will be no "book" and it is purposed, officials said, to conduct them as much as possible on the lines of a "summer camp." Physical development, "education of character" and cultivation of naval tradition are set forth as the principal objectives. About 40 commissioned and non-commissioned officers have been assigned as instructors at each school.

While no actual cruises for attendants are planned, there will be numbers of small naval vessels available for their inspection and training in addition to yachts and other small craft for recreation purposes.
