ISRAEL UNDER JUDGES.

LESSON IX, FOURTH QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, DEC. 2.

Text of the Lesson, Judges II, 11-23. Commit Verses-Golden Text, Heb. iii, 12-Commentary by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

In studying the history of Israel it is neces-In studying the history of Israel it is necessary to keep in mind that the Lord God had chosen them to be a special people unto Himself, above all people upon the face of the earth; an holy people unto the Lord their God, that He might dwell among them, and that they might magnify His name before the nations. He only asked of them a cheerful and whole hearted obedisnes and submission remaining on His part that they should sion, promising on His part that they should be made to enjoy the greatest possible tem-poral prosperity and be the head of all untions, no one being abla to stand before them.
(Ex. xix, 5, 0; Deut. vii, 6; xxviii, 1-14.)
Their history during the forty years that Messaled them is found in the books of Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers and Deuteronomy. We have just been studying their history under the leadership of Joshua, as recorded to the book of Joshua and now we come to their history under the Judges for about 450 years, as recorded in this book.

IL "The chilifren of Israel did cyll in the right of the Lord, and served Baalim." At ist seven times do we find this statement nearning their doing evil in this book (ii, 1; iii, 7, 12; iv, 1; vi, 1; x, 6; xiii, 1), and a reason is given in the preceding verse, that a generation had arisen which knew not the nt, nor yet the works which He had done

"They forscok the Lord God of their fathers." Some of Joshun's parting words were: "If ye forsales the Lord and serve grange gods, then will be turn and do you have and consume you? (Josh. exiv. 20), but thes words are now forgotten or unicoded; and werse still, the Lord who brought them out of the lord of Egypt, and made them a nation and gave them this good land, is for-

id. "The anger of the Lord was but against et." In the account of this sin written in ovi. Si-30, it is said the "wrath of the Lord kindled against His people, insomuch that He abbetied Libs own inheritance, and He gave them into the band of the beathen." fn Jot xi), 7, concerning a later sin it is written; "I have given the dearly beloved or my soul into the hand of her memiss." It was because of His great love for them that He thus chastened them for their ains, as it is written: "You only have I known of all the families of the earth; therefore I will punish you for all your impaties." Amos iii, 2. 15. "The hand of the Lord was against them for evil, . . . and they were greatly discressed." The way of the transgressor is hard (Prov. xiii, Lb), but they were the redeemed of the Lord and His hand was upon them for evil only to make them see the evil of their ways and turn from it, that He might do them good.

16. "Nevertheless, the Lord raised up judges which delivered them." Nevertheless, lie reparaled them all thou when the heard their cry; and He remembered for them His covenant (Ps. cvi, 44-45). Do not our hearts say: "O, foolish people, way grieve and turn away from such level why not abide in such a friend; why not constantly rejoice in such powers" Then a voice whispers: "Thou art the man; local's sin is just tuine own, and the same God of Israel regards today the cry of the oft erring, oftrepenting one, and de-livers those who call upon Him, such as call upon him in truth. Why not abide ever in

"Turned quickly out of the way." Alough He heard their cry and raised then up judges who delivered them, they soon fel away into sin as bad as ever, and would no hearken to the judges; their hearts seemed ally set in them to do evil. Love seemed l st upon them, and past warnings some torly in vain they were full of self and sin model appeared to be useless to do anothing for thom; not the lovest toom and for this names sake forgave them and restored them many a

18. "The Lord was with the judge." If it were not so the judge could have done nothing. The Lord was wen Moses, and Joshua, and David, and the kings who did right in His slight, and the proposes who cross in His name. And the same Land says to us to-day:

The Late Rev. Charles Fay, D. D.

At the ripe age of $0 years, the Rev Dr. Fay departed this life on the morning of November 5. In the city of New York. He had arrived there with his auxious wife at the house of his eldest daughter. Mrs. M. F. Petrce, scarcely four days previously, suffering from heart disease. Telegrams summoned six of his grown children from Chicago and Cambridge, Mass. while other relatives came from Brooktyn and New York and Burlington, Vt. The sor rowing group were also joined by a few more friends, so that at the private celebration of the holy communiou on the following evening by Rev. Newton Perkins, the body of the revered, loved and honored dead was wholly surrounded by those whom he had best loved. Once more it was made evident that "angels and living saints, and dead, but one communion make."

The remains were then removed to Cambridge, Mass. Most of the relatives accompanied them. There, another taughter, Mrs. Kate F. Stone, welcomed them to a sad hospitality in her bome, where he had so often been her beloved mest in recent months and years. And sow the sorrowing direle was increased by he early friends of 80 years—(for Cambridge was Dr. Fay's childhood home)—and his sister and brother now also came o take the last farewell. At 11 a.m. Friday, N. v. 9, the funeral services were conjucted at Christ church, that city (they James F. Spaiding, rector) from which he had been christened 80 years before. The complished organist of the church of the Advent, Boston, brought his admirable urpliced choir of singers, men and boys, and truly indeed were the services most impressive. At their close, the tender care of his loving children reverently pland the body of their belove father, by his
