ALDERMEN AND THE STATION

Resolution Adopted and Then Referred to Committee of 15.

Seemed to Favor Petition of Rutland Railroad Company, Which Includes the Closing of Main Street in Plans for Station.

A lively tilt occurred in the meeting of the board of aldermen Tuesday evening in connection with a resolution relating to the proposed new station, introduced by Alderman Barnes.

In brief, the resolution stated that the city of Burlington hereby acquiesces in whatever action the public service commission may take with respect to the proposed station and lands which the Rutland railroad wishes to use, it being the sense of the board that the city should make no opposition to the granting of the petition of the Rutland company, or such part thereof as the commission may deem it expedient to grant, upon full hearing, and that the city attorney be instructed to act in accordance herewith.

In explaining the resolution, Alderman Barnes said that the station matter had been going long enough, that things were in a muddle and should be straightened out. He demanded that the city should try to help the Rutland company, and that the city should try to help the Rutland company, and that the city should try to help the Rutland company.

Two instructors in the high school last year have finished their service here, and have gone to Massachusetts. Isaac K. Ellis, who taught mechanical drawing during the past two years, has accepted a position in a school near Boston, and will begin his duties there in a few days.

Everett V. Perkins, who joins the teaching staff of the high school for the first time this year, is a graduate of the University of Vermont in the class of 1906. He has been principal of the high schools in Lyndonville and Enosburg Falls, successively, and his record has been a very successful one. His wife was Miss Eliza Reed of Essex Junction, who is a graduate of the Burlington high school and the University of Vermont.

Mrs. Mary Deyette, formerly of Burlington, is a graduate of the local high school and the University of Vermont. She has had many years of experience, and was recently principal of the Shelburne high school. She possesses great force and ability.

Miss Eleanor Marshall is a graduate of Smith College and comes to Burlington highly recommended. Miss Jennie Caruthers has taught in Vergennes and Randolph. Miss Evelyn Enright is a graduate of the Burlington high school and Smith College. Miss Mildred Small has had a very successful record in teaching outside of this State, and, like Miss Caruthers, she is a college graduate.

A teacher training course made possible by act of the State Legislature in 1909 will be offered in the high school the coming year.

Miss Joanna D. Croft, a graduate of Bridgewater normal college, and a successful teacher, has been assigned by Hon. Mason S. Stone, State superintendent of education, to take charge of the work. This course is open to seniors and to graduates of approved high schools and academies of the first class and requires three or four periods of work daily for one year.

The course will give training in the theory of teaching and observational and practice work will be required of each student in certain graded schools in the city designated for the purpose. Successful completion of the course entitles the student to a certificate which shall be a license to teach in the public schools of the State for a period of three years.

IN THE GRADES.

Mrs. Kerch is a teacher of long experience, who supplied during a part of the spring term in place of Miss Nellie D. Butts, who has been granted a leave of absence extending through the fall term. During this time Mrs. Kerch will continue to supply.

Miss Ethel Derway is another graduate of the local high school, and she has been a pupil teacher and a special assistant in the city schools. She succeeds her sister, Miss Anna Derway. Miss Marjorie Johnson was a pupil teacher in the Champlain school last year, and, like Miss Derway, is a graduate of Edmunds.

Miss Keating has taught in Chittenden county for several years, and Miss McKillop is a graduate of Miss Wheeler's kindergarten training school in Boston. There is a good story of an actor who was depicting on the boards a powerful pathetic part.

He was made up marvelously to look starved to skin and bone, tottering on the verge of death from starvation, gasping for breath, and weak from emaciation.

Still, he had on his fingers a flashing diamond ring, and the sarcastic gallery reproved him for it one night.

At the crucial moment the hero faltered out in agony to the gallery: "Good heavens! If this falls, what shall I do?"

The answer came down unexpectedly from the top seats:

"Tawn yer ring!"

LABOR MEN IN PARADE

Music and Speeches.

Column of 250 Labor Men Marched through City—Ex-Mayor James E. Burke and G. A. Armstrong Spoke upon Local Problems.

Labor day was duly observed in this city Monday with a parade of the various organizations of labor men and a short program of speeches and music in City Hall Park. The spirit of the day was in favor of making the occasion one of recreation, rather than of giving up a large part of the time to celebration.

The labor organizations formed for the parade at Battery Park, moving up North street about ten o'clock. The formation was headed by a band of police, after which marched Sherman's band. The local branch of the Central Labor Union followed, and next came the representation of the American Federation of Labor, the Lumber, Cigar Makers' local, the Painters, Paperhangers and Decorators, in their white suits, and Carpenters' union. The Eagles' band and the life and drum corps of the M. W. A. furnished music at other points in the column.

LINE OF MARCH.

The line of march was up North street, south on Third, through Church street, west along Pearl street, and through St. Paul street to City Hall Park, where the parade was disbanded, and the labor men and a large crowd of other citizens gathered to hear the speeches.

Mayor Roberts, who had been out of town, was detained, and the address which he had been scheduled to deliver had to be omitted from the program. Ex-Mayor James E. Burke was therefore the first speaker of the morning.

JAMES E. BURKE'S ADDRESS.

Mr. Burke congratulated the labor organizations upon their excellent showing made in the day's parade, but said that where there were 300 to 400 men in line, there should have been 150 or 200.

In other cities, said he, the labor unions show marked strength and activity. In Montreal, where he spent Sunday, he had a chance to see the preparations being made for the Labor day celebration there, and from the interest and enthusiasm shown by the Canadians, Burlington may well learn a lesson.

LABOR SHOULD ORGANIZE.

Mr. Burke urged upon his hearers the advantages to be gained from organization. He said that we must have capitalists and business men, but the labor men are also necessary. Everywhere we see the results of effective organization. Our town governments and our city governments are based upon organization, and the national government is the greatest organization that we have.

Among laboring men of all occupations conditions have been greatly improved in the last few years as a result of the formation and action of labor unions. Here in Burlington, said Mr. Burke, there is much to be accomplished by labor unions, and the laboring men should get together more actively than they do at present.

LET CITY OWN WATER FRONT.

Taking up some of the local problems which confront the citizens of Burlington, the ex-mayor said that the city should own water front of its own on the lake, and that the laboring men should advance the movement to obtain it.

"The Free Press," said he, "is advocating 'Burlington-on-Lake-Champlain' as a slogan for this city to use in advertising its attractions before the world. But Burlington is not an island city. It is an inland city, and it will remain such until you, its citizens, can reach the water over land which you own yourselves."
