Thanksgiving Day at Gage.

The second annual reunion of the Cactus Dodgers took place at the Kilby school house where over fifty people showed their appreciation of the Club's efforts by turning out to assist in the entertainment.

Promptly at 1 o'clock dinner was served on a wide and substantially built table, extending the length of the room. A large "Dry Land" pumpkin, filled with red apples graced the center of the table. Everything usual at a Thanksgiving spread could be found on this groaning board from the royal bird down to the dainty mints and hot coffee.

Pa likes to theorize about sympathetic understanding of the viewpoint of the children, but when the kid doesn't act to suit him he takes him for a visit to the woodshed and induces the kid to look at things from a different angle.

*****
Ma thought she was all togged up if she had a new gingham dress when she was a girl, but daughter would consider herself disgraced if her beau should see her in anything but a draped broadcloth; and pa says it's time the tariff was revised and the cost of living reduced.

*****
There are two things that pa regards with utmost suspicion, and that is daughter's beau and box of cigars he gets from ma for Christmas.

*****
Daughter goes into raptures when her beau gives her a gold plated bracelet for Christmas but pa thinks he would have shown more sense if he had given her a pair of shoes.

*****
Pa doesn't mind paying for a drum for the kid, but he gets ready to commit murder when the two kids organize a fife and drum corps about the time he wants to read the morning paper.

*****
Ma looks forward to a great holiday on Christmas if she has a turkey to roast and some mince pies to bake.

Saint Nickolas must be the man that fills the stockings of the pampered rich, while good, old Santa Claus attends to the wants of the rest of us.

The kid may not have a very high opinion of his dad, but it would be unhealthy for the neighbor's kid to intimate anything of the kind.

*****
Pa thinks he has performed a great feat if he stays home one night and looks after the kids while ma goes out somewhere.

*****
Pa has several reminders of Xmas coming to him on the first of January.

*****
Pa can't see any sense in daughter's wanting to entertain her beau after nine o'clock at night when everybody ought to be in bed.

A number of new books have been purchased for the library, among these being Redpath's History of the United States Bryce's American Commonwealth and Stevenson's Works. A share of the money secured from the plays will be devoted to building up the library along historical lines.

The high school play, "Mr. Bob," was given at Klein Saturday night to a good sized and appreciative audience. The players performed very creditable considering the stage difficulties, and the Indian club drill was also well given. Mr. Marcey again donated the services of his orchestra which was much appreciated. Mr. Jameson, Mr. Shaw, Dr. Baird and Seymour Gorsline who took the crowd out and back in their automobiles have our thanks. After returning from Klein the party gathered at Lewis' Candy Kitchen where lunch was served and a general good time enjoyed.

The man who worries because the day is too short to get all his work done, never is seen with one foot hoisted on the rail in front of the big mirror, with a glass of foamy suds in his hand, railing against schedule "K" of the tariff bill.

A holiday to ma means about four hours less sleep and about ten times the usual amount of work.

*****
Pa groans about how tired he is after supper and thinks ma is heartless because she doesn't stop to coddle him when she has to rustle to beat the band to get the dishes washed by bed time.

RYEGATE MAKING IMPROVEMENTS

GRADING OF STREETS MAKES GROWING TOWN HAVE DIFFERENT APPEARANCE.

Ryegate Reporter: There are probably few towns of the age and size of Ryegate which has made as many improvements on their streets, where the town is unincorporated and where all of the expenses of this has to be borne by the residents without any chance to be reimbursed. Ryegate now has seven blocks of streets graded and five of these well graveled and the other two it is hoped will receive the same treatment. Ryegate is also building a better class of resident buildings than she has up to this time, most of the latter ones being built on the bungalow style. There has not been as much building done here this fall as was anticipated, probably due to the abundance of moisture which put the roads in such shape that very little grain could be hauled and thus not making the long green very plentiful.

New Jewelry Store.

E. H. Loney, formerly of Orchard, Neb., has opened a jewelry repair shop in the little building adjoining the Wyman saloon and while this is rather small for the business which Mr. Loney hopes to establish in Ryegate, it is the best that there was to be had at the present time.

Dairying

There has been recently completed on the Wheelock ranch in this city a fine large barn and silo connected for the housing and feeding of the large number of dairy cows which are kept on this ranch. This is the first silo to be built in the Ryegate country and the Wheelock's are taking the lead in this the same as they have in everything else in the development of this section of the country. The Wheelock's are making money in the dairying end of their business here, altho they have to ship their products to Butte a distance of 225 miles. The profits would be larger, of course, if there was a dairy in Ryegate, as there is hoped for some time in the future. This is a real starter of dairying in the Ryegate and it is hoped that in another year that many of the farmers will have entered into dairying at least on a modest scale.

Ryegate Farmers Can Afford Automobiles.

Ryegate farmers have only harvested their second crop and in a "dry country" too but a number of them are owners of fine automobiles and go scooting around the country with as much ease as do their city brothers. Ryegate has her first crop of farmers as yet, very few transfers of farm property having been made, since the country was first opened to settlers four years ago. It is one evidence that the people are satisfied and have no desire to seek homes further. It is the history of most new countries that the first settlers have to walk out and sometimes it takes a third crop before the country can get developed enough to give the inhabitants the incentive to stick. This is not true of the Ryegate country. He is still on the job and indications are that he intends to remain so and if he should take a notion to go, he would wiz out in his auto.

PROFESSOR MUMFORD COMING TO MONTANA

Prof. Herbert W. Mumford of Illinois University is coming to Montana next January to give some lectures during Farmers' Week at Bozeman, January 21-29.

Prof. Mumford was president of the board of cattle judges at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition at St. Louis, 1904, and has been a prominent short-horn breeder and exhibitor as well as one of the leading authorities on animal husbandry in the country. He has built up a strong live stock department in conjunction with Illinois University. His coming to Montana is very timely. Great interest is being manifested in live stock and diversified farming. A critical transition from grazing to arable farming is in progress. Much misdirected effort and expense are apt to occur in stocking up the small farms where men are less expert than the old stockmen.

Professor Mumford's analysis of the live stock and meat situation in America will attract great interest. He will demonstrate the judging of animal types as well as discuss general stock topics.

Great! Wonderful MURPHY

EVERYBODY--young and old, rich and poor, are happy because Christmas is coming. Santa Claus brings presents for them all. Christ was born the Messiah, Redeemer, to save the people and everybody is happy.

I have first class goods for Ladies and Gentlemen. We also have first class goods for boys and girls—not job lots or odds and ends, but first class stylish shoes and suits of all kinds and latest styles. Come see our great line of Christmas toys.

A few words to the society people. They shouldn't be offended because I am happy and give away out of my own pockets $50 worth of products for the poor without asking them to co-operate. It is not because I am only the poor man's friend, but everybody's friend now. But if you can accommodate me and bring me some names of poor people, widows or some one without a job or some old maids, I will give to the poor and needy three ton of coal, three sacks of potatoes, three turkeys, three sacks of flour and meat. I give to the old maids a matrimonial dinner on Christmas and also the old bachelors. Please look for some names between now and Christmas. I had lots of both to find some poor and needy a year ago. Now, remember the number, time and place for the matrimonial dinner on Christmas day. Wishing you all a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.
