RALPH PATTERSON OFF FOR MANILA.

His Regiment Fully Recruited and Equipped in Five Weeks.

Four weeks ago Ralph Patterson, son of Thomas Patterson of this place, enlisted in the United States Army service and was sent at once to Jefferson Barracks, Missouri. He was placed in company M, Thirty-eighth U. S. Infantry, and has been drilling eight or nine hours a day since. Ralph says he likes soldier life very much, and the vigorous drilling that he gets every day only serves to give him an appetite.

A very important part of a young soldier's education is that of learning to shoot with precision; hence a daily practice in target shooting. What most of all astonished the world in our late Cuban war was the skill with which our troops could use fire arms. Ralph says his regiment was first drilled on target practice of 100 yards range, then 200, 300 and so on. He says he plunked the bulls-eye five times in succession the other day at 500 yards. If Ralph ever gets his eye on Aguinaldo it will be all day with him—not with Ralph,—with the Heathen.

Last Thursday they had orders to break camp and leave for San Francisco, where transports are in waiting to carry them direct to the seat of action in the Philippines.

The Thirty-eighth is the banner regiment of the Spanish-American and Philippine wars so far as quickness in organization and excellence of behavior are concerned. The organization contained a total of only thirty-five men on August 30. On September 29, less than a month afterwards every company had its full strength and the regiment was complete.

From a newspaper clipping we get the following:

"In every way the regiment has been a surprise to me," remarked Colonel Anderson. "The boys are sincere, loyal and hard-working, and up to date there has been no hitch of any sort between the officers and the men. In the ranks I find a great many farmer lads, also former miners from Southwestern Missouri and Northern Arkansas, to say nothing of the Texas cowboys. The percentage of city-bred soldiers is extremely small. We go to the front with a representative American regiment.

The regiment is now in fine condition, thoroughly armed with the latest improved Krag-Jorgensen rifles, equipped and uniformed, and is in an excellent state of discipline. It has a distinguished officer of the regular army at its head. To Colonel Anderson's experience is due the fact that the regiment has been made ready for active service in so short a time. Two of the Majors of the Thirty-eighth are regular army officers. Colonel Anderson is a typical soldier of the American army, tall, powerful and possessed of much executive ability. He graduated from the West Point Military Academy in 1867, and two years later was assigned to the Sixth Cavalry as a Second Lieutenant. He served through various Indian campaigns in the Southwest and rose to the rank of Major. During the Spanish War he was detained at Tampa, Fla., and did not participate in the Santiago campaign, but when the provisional regiments were organized he was given a colonelcy in the volunteer army.

ANOTHER LETTER FROM CHAS. HENRY WISSNER.

His Impressions of Manila and its Surroundings.

MALATE, Manila Province, August 28, 1899.

We left the steamer Tarter on Saturday morning in the midst of a terrific rain storm. The lighter that carried us teamed along the breakwater and docked in the Pasig river a little ways from its mouth. A march of 1 1/2 miles along the seaport brought us to Malate, two blocks inland, and we came to the old exposition buildings. Our barracks are buildings built in Filipino style of bamboo and thatched sides and roof of palm leaves. They are water proof and built on piles of coconut palm. We seem to have struck the only muddy spot in Manila and its suburbs. Yesterday, Sunday, I secured consent to attend Mass and had a long stroll through the whole city. Malate, 2000 population, is inhabited mostly by natives and Chinese. The only large buildings are the British Consulate and the U. S. Hospital. The old town of Manila has a wall around it just like Nuremberg in Bavaria. There are four gates, a moat filled with water and crossed by four draw-bridges surrounds the wall. Inside the walls are the homes of the old Spanish Grandees, the palace of the Governor General, the four large churches and cathedral, the mint, custom house, court house and prisons. I found the 25th Kansas holding the old town and happy at the idea of returning home. I saw 500 Filipino prisoners of war guarded by two companies of the 6th Artillery. The door of the court-house was covered with Spanish official notices. I tried to steal one for a relic but was watched too closely. The houses of old Manila are built about court yards like any Spanish town. One could hardly realize that he was in the far away Filipinas but felt as if every moment he would see some Spanish knight issuing forth to do battle with the Moors. We entered the town through the gate of Charles (Puerto de Carlos) and left it through the gate Isabella the 2nd (Puerto de Isabel II). Leaving the town we found ourselves on the banks of Pasig river which we crossed on the Bridge of Spain. New Manila, the town across the river is entirely given up to business. Sunday, before the American occupation, was the busiest day here. Now, everything is tightly closed on that day. A short walk through narrow streets swarming with Filipinos in their best clothes, brought us to Tondo. This is the suburb where the natives rose against the Americans and where half the town was burned down. The services in the two churches which I entered in old Manila were sparsely attended and I could see by the contemptuous looks cast upon me that I was out of place.

The people, the natives, are under-sized, if contrasted with Americans. They have straight black hair and in all kinds of weather are neatness personified. They wear the lightest and gauziest of materials. Their feelings towards Americans seem to be that of hatred even more bitter than against their old masters, the Spaniards, besides they, if they should happen to be friendly, are afraid to show their friendliness. Aguinaldo's spies throng everywhere and it has been the experience of the natives in the country who have been friendly to the Americans that they are liable to be assassinated at any time. The hauling here is done by means of East India buffaloes. The drivers are always under escort of soldiers, and at night are placed in a fortified building. So many of them have met death at the hands of Aguinaldo sympathizers that they are practically prisoners in the hands of Americans.

News and Rumors.—One always thinks one can hear anything; but, on the other hand, there are some facts which any ordinary observer can easily glean. First, this climate is not so unhealthy as people suppose. If we drink boiled water and keep out of the rain, we are apt to keep well. The bulk of the sickness here is due entirely to the habit of the men. It is reported that Aguinaldo has inoculated some of the U. S. prisoners in his hands with leprosy. This rumor has fired the boys and I can safely say that there will be few prisoners taken in the next scrap. The 13th Regulars who planted the Stars and Stripes on the Heights of San Juan, at Santiago, have proved cowards here. The rebels use a combination knife and boomerang called a bola. A bola attack on the 13th frightened them so badly that they threw away their guns in their haste to escape. They are now in disgrace and will remain so until they have proved their courage in some field of battle.

The rebels are very much in want of food as these islands do not produce enough rice, the staple article of food, to its people. The war has cut off the supply of the inland towns that the rebels hold. They have plenty of the latest pattern Mauser rifles supplied by German traders and Spanish sympathizers; but according to all reports they are short of ammunition. A very intelligent Sergeant of the 14th regiment told me yesterday, (he is himself a Catholic) that the Filipino prisoners have repeatedly declared that the Friars and Monks are at the bottom of the whole rebellion and are furnishing Aguinaldo with the funds to carry on the rebellion in the hope of disgusting the American public with the whole islands. Conquest means missionaries and missionaries mean the downfall of the power and wealth of Franciscan and Augustinian Monks. Catholicism with its elaborate ceremonial, is, in my opinion, the best religion for these people, if the church would be wise enough to let politics alone. The league between the church and the rebels was so close at one time that the church bells were used for signal purposes by the natives. Anyone found ringing a church bell now is shot at sight.

Owing to the immense amount of rain here, for 5 months of the year, all the Filipino houses are built on piles. Under their houses they have their pigs, chickens and ducks. One company of the 10th, goes out for post work today. We leave to-morrow, according to report, for the town of Pasig where we will go into the trenches and then the fun will begin. Pasig is at the headwaters of the Pasig river and is a town of 15,000 inhabitants. There is a large lake 12 miles from here called Laguna de Bay, the Pasig river runs from this lake to Manila Bay. The bulk of the fighting will be along the shore of this lake. The town of Pasig is where the river leaves the lake.

The cheapest thing here is tobacco, 500 cigarettes cost 25 cents. Everybody smokes. I saw a blind beggar woman yesterday, sitting near a church door, a big cigar in her mouth, with the hand outstretched for alms. Bananas and coconuts are as dear as in America, owing to the fact that the natives hold the outlying country.

FOR THE LAUNDRESS. Always wash woollens separately from cottons. Wash in quite warm water, add a tablespoonful of borax to each pail of water, rub soap into the water—not on the woollens—and rinse in two quite hot waters. Iron before dry, and they will look like new until worn out. Do not soak clothes over night. It sets the dirt when the water gets cold. Look over the soiled pieces and rub soap on the worst spots and put them in the tub with hot water to cover. Let them soak until the black stockings and woollens are washed and out of the way. Then wash the white clothes next and then the colored ones.

A REMARKABLE CAREER. The most remarkable official career in the United States was that of John Quincy Adams. It extended over 48 years, and embraced 15 years in the diplomatic service as minister to Russia, Prussia and the Netherlands, five years as senator, eight years as secretary of state, four years as president and 16 years as a representative in congress.

Dead leaves are being cremated.

OURS. Sympathizers with the Boers in their present war with Great Britain must find almost its sole justification in that natural disposition which, without reference to the cause of a quarrel, lends every man instinctively to side with the weaker party. As a matter of principle it violates all our American beliefs to contend, as the Boers do, that twenty white men should be ruled by six; that religious discriminations should exist; that men should be taxed without representation; that the colored race should be enslaved, and that the productive portions of a community should have no voice whatever in its government in order that a stolid, land-owning oligarchy might rule without question.

At this, however, has so often been noted that it is not our present purpose to comment upon it; but we do wish to say a word about this South African question with a strictly American point of view. The Muscovite and the English-speaking races are gradually dividing the earth between them. America has become the most energetic exemplar of English push; but it is Great Britain alone that gives to this country free access to all the markets which she controls. For this reason, if for no other, it is to our advantage that the British Empire should be extended. And as to the future—is not the heritage all to be ours? Certainly, unless Great Britain herself should prefer that her great empire shall pass to strangers to her blood, institutions and language.

Great Britain's pre-eminence has been built by her sturdy sons upon her iron, coal and fleets when the iron and coal shall be gone. The centre of empire must then drift to the United States—the centre of power-giving production. With all Europe hating her, the United Kingdom can get from America alone the support which she must soon have. Thus the work of the Revolution will have been fully accomplished.

Putting aside the consideration of the larger view, our interests certainly demand that the products of our skill and labor shall not be excluded from any part of the world. The measure of Great Britain's success in this particular is the measure of ours.

PHOTOGRAPHING A TIGER. Mr. Gambler Bolton, the famous animal photographer, says that one of his best studies was a tiger at the London zoo, which nearly put an end to his life. Mr. Bolton was inside the barrier which prevents the public from going too close to the cages and was taking a photograph of another tiger, when one he had not noticed came strolling from behind some rocks and made a spring at him. A child called out, and Mr. Bolton darted back just in time. His head was underneath the focusing cloth when the tiger made the attempt, and as the camera was utterly ruined it is pretty well certain that the photographer's head would have been smashed to pieces. However, Mr. Bolton paid the animal out, for he egged it on to make a second charge and took a photograph of it in the act.

A LETTER AT EVENTIDE. BY PHERA A. HOLDER. Up the steep path I was toiling, To gain the far-distant height, Weary and faint with the climbing, When, lo! a rapturous sight! Right in the pathway a fountain Bubbled up all sparkling and clear; The rush of the pure mountain stream-let As music was sweet to the ear. I drank from the cool, shining crystal, And, strengthened, went glad on my way, Till the summit was gained and the glory Before my eager sight lay. Thus came to me in the sweet gloaming, All wearied with toil of the day, A letter with heart throbs of memory, From one trusting, faithful, away. Right into the midst of the winter It brought summer sunshine so bright, The joy and gladness of Lakeview Made my heart aglow with their light. So precious among the rich blessings, Our heavenly Father doth send, The letter that comes 'mid our longing, Love-laden from the heart of a friend.

A SLEEK SWINDLER. On Monday afternoon last a tall, slim and feeble old man near 70 years of age, called at the Carey boarding house, in Huntingdon, representing himself as Doctor Hammond and engaged in selling valuable medicines on the road through the State, and arranged for boarding for himself and two others who would arrive the next day with his team. After remaining one day and his team and men not arriving, he quietly stepped out forgetting to pay his board bill. A traveling man who chanced to stop at the house Tuesday night and hearing the case stated said that a few months ago while he was at a boarding house in Harrisburg this same old man came to the house and made the same statement of his business and name and of a team with two of his men on the road and soon to arrive and engaged boarding for them. Bad weather came and he remained four or five days waiting for the team and men, which never arrived. He then sneaked off quietly leaving his board bill behind him. No doubt he is going through the country in this manner, beating his board and stealing whatever may come in his way, hence the public should be posted on his game and he should be trapped and an end put to his career.

WISDOM'S ADVICE TO HUNTERS. As the game season is now on, and in view of the many human lives that are taken yearly by careless sportsmen, the following from the Sportsman Magazine for September is worth reading by all who go gunning: Do not shoot at a noise or moving obstacle in the bushes, but wait until the object is clearly recognized before you pull the trigger. Better lose your only chance at a deer than to lose your peace of mind forever through remorseful consciousness of having caused the death of a human being. Aside from the costly lessons that have been taught, remember there are other hunters roaming the forest as well as yourself.

HIS MISTAKE. A parrot, in a remote English country district, escaped from its cage and settled on the roof of a laborer's cottage. When it had been there a little time, the laborer caught sight of it. He had never seen such a thing before, and after much gazing in admiration at the bird with its curious beak and beautiful plumage he fetched a ladder and climbed up it with a view of securing so great a prize. When his head reached the level of the top of the roof, the parrot flopped a wing at him and said, "What dy'e want?" Very much taken back, the laborer politely touched his cap and replied: "I beg your pardon, sir; I thought you were a bird."

WEALTHY MINISTER MARRIES. The Cumberland (Md.) Allegonian a few days ago published an account of the marriage of a wealthy Bedford county minister and a lady who formerly resided in Everett. It said: Rev. Jacob Feichter, of Palo Alto, Bedford county, Pa., and Mrs. Katherine Keady, of this city, were married at Bedford yesterday. The marriage was a great surprise. The groom, a local minister in what is known as the Albright denomination, is very wealthy. He owns the village of Palo Alto, together with one of the finest farms in Bedford county near Cook's Mills. The bride is well known to the traveling public, having kept a boarding house on Front street for many years. She has the reputation of being the best landlady in Allegany county and her boarding house was patronized by people far and near. She is a good woman and having secured what she deserves, a good husband, congratulations are in order.

The aged minister is now a firm believer in fortune telling, as is also his wife. Rev. Mr. Feichter stated to our reporter that a short time ago he went to a fortune teller who told him that he would soon marry a woman whose name commenced with "K." At that time the minister was not engaged to be married. He also stated that his wife was visited by a fortune teller some time ago who told her that "a black curly headed man" would want to marry her, but to pay no attention to that one as there was an "old gray headed man coming" and for her to take him.

Rev. Feichter is estimated to be worth from seventy-five to one hundred and fifty thousand dollars. Besides owning the village of Palo Alto and a large farm he owns a lot of property in and around Ellerslie, and 2900 acres of land in West Virginia.

According to the crop returns of a high authority, the wheat yield of the United States of 1899 will aggregate 564,000,000 bushels. This is 111,000,000 short of the phenomenal crop of 1898. It is the third largest crop in the history of the country and the reserve carried over is fully 42,000,000 bushels more than in 1898, the stocks then being only 15,892,000 against 57,066,000 this year. The requirements from America for Europe, according to the best authorities there, will not exceed 200,000,000, and America is meant to include Canada, which has a surplus of 50,000,000 bushels. From this it would appear that the supply is ample and that no great advance from present prices need be expected.

The Lumberman's Association must have a lot of board meetings.

God Save the Commonwealth. PROCLAMATION.
