Power Farming.

The free picture exhibit and lecture demonstration put on at the Rialto last Tuesday afternoon by the T. & T. Motor Co. to acquaint the farmers and others with the advantages of power farming had drawn an audience which filled every seat in the theater and taxed the capacity of the standing room near the entrance. Many farmers did not get in.

The meeting opened promptly as advertised by a soprano solo sung by Miss Della Thronson, sister of Mr. Thronson of the T. & T. Motor Co. She was accompanied on the piano by Miss Alice Olson. Their part of the program was cheered to the echo.

Some very interesting and convincing pictures were thrown on the screen showing the germination process of seed under different soil conditions. The idea brought out went to prove that soil that is thoroughly worked and packed has a larger power of capillarity than lumpy, unpacked soil. The picture showed the difference in the time it takes for moisture to rise through the fine and packed soil from that of loose, lumpy soil, and the consequent difference in the time it takes for the seed to germinate and grow in the two kinds of seed bed. This was, perhaps, one of the most convincing demonstrations of this nature presented to an Edgerton audience.

It had a purpose. There is an implement now in the farm machinery market called the cultipacker. It is used behind a disc harrow to level and pack the soil. Mr. Hatch, the gentleman who had charge of this phase of the program, gave a plain, sensible talk on the advantages of using the cultipacker, not only in the preparation of the seed bed, but also in packing soil heaved by the spring frosts, on pastures that are drying up, and in the field during the early part of the growing season.

Mr. Jerry Lynch, a farmer near Janesville, spoke on the advantages of power farming. He is a Fordson farmer and told his experiences since he had turned to this mode of farm motive power. Mr. Lynch may be a first rate farmer; if he is as good a farmer as he is a talker on the Fordson power proposition, he is hard to beat. He showed how the farmer in order to get away from drudgery, to gain more profit, and to have more leisure time for himself and for his family, must solve the problem of reducing the cost of production without decreasing the amount of production. The man who advises you to produce less in order to increase the cost to the consumer, is all wrong, said Mr. Lynch, and the farmers should not take his advice. But the man who can show the farmer how to increase production, and at the same time decrease the cost of it, is the one who is preaching the true gospel. He held the way to do this is by turning over to power farming. The manufacturer is successful in his line; the farmer should be. The manufacturer, the farmer and the banker by co-operation can make the new era a reality. He gave the banker credit for doing his part in furnishing funds where the farmer is of the right sort. Mr. Lynch argued that it would be better for the farmer to use power on the farm than to depend upon importing cheap labor from southern Europe. "We cannot use that kind of labor on our Wisconsin farms; we need skilled farm labor," declared Mr. Lynch, and this remark was greeted with hearty cheering by the audience. If the farmers neglect to introduce the new methods in their manner of tilling the soil, caring for it, harvesting and marketing their produce, they have themselves to blame if they fail, he declared.

The "Toonerville Trolley" was then shown to the delight of the audience. After this Mrs. Lynch gave a fine address on power farming and the home. Prof. Holt spoke in his vigorous and entertaining manner.

Nutbars by the bushel and cigars to all who wished to smoke were passed to the crowd.

The lucky number, 202, was held by Carl Schmidt of the town of Oakland. He got the barrel of oil given by the T. & T. Motor Co.

The crowd Tuesday afternoon resembled one of the big summer band evenings.

The sale of the $48,000 Rock county road bonds was successful. They were sold within the county; $32,000 of this money goes to pay the state for money advanced the county for the completion of the Janesville-Beloit highway. Several road graveling contracts within the county have been let.

Comforting Theme.

"What must I talk about?" asked the prominent citizen, who had been invited to address the inmates of a penitentiary.

"Oh, anything you like," said the warden, "but remember that you are going to speak to convicts, so don't hurt their feelings."

"Of course, I won't. I'll talk about the high cost of living. If there's anything that could make a man glad he's in prison it's the outside struggle for existence."—Birmingham Age-Herald.
