WOMAN'S GREAT CHAMPION

How General Spinner Opened Public Offices to the Employment of the Fair Ser. Writing of "Women In the Government Departments" in The Woman's Home Companion, Mary Nimmo Balentine says:

"It is a curious fact that this glorious country grew and prospered from the days of 1776 to the period of the civil war and founded and perfected the greatest government upon earth before women were in vited to bear a hand in the public duties, even in the most casual manner During all these years there was a total exclusion of women from the work of the executive departments. Now they are seen wher-ever government work is being conducted, in places of high trust, superior skill and high emolument. 'It was in 1862 that General Francis E. Spinner, treasurer of the United States, succeeded in opening the government departments to the employment of women. The civil war was at its height and every ablebodied man was needed in the front of battle for the protection of the country. 'If ever I strike a successful blow for women, now is my time, said General Spinner. The first legal tender notes had been issued; they were printed in sheets of four notes each, and men were employed to cut them apart with shears. General Spinner maintained that women could handle the shears more deftly than men, and Secretary Chase finally consented to let him experiment with women employees. The first one engaged was Jennie Douglas, and her first day's work settled the matter in her favor and that of womankind. Other women were employed. The men left, and the women took their places. Soon, however, a machine to cut the money was invented, and the women were discharged. General Spinner now convinced the officials that the nimble fingers of women were peculiarly adapted to the counting of notes. He had employed his daughters in his own bank and knew they could work more rapidly than men. He was permitted to engage seven women, who were regularly appointed as counters of United States money. The seven pioneers did their work so well that it was not long before congress was mak-ing appropriations for the employment of women in all of the executive depart ments. It is true the women received but half the salary paid to men for the same work at the beginning, but the salaries were gradually increased until now a woman receives the same salary as a man in the public service when she does the same work. It was a grand achievement for women. All honor to the hero who fought it to completion! Small wonder that women are at work raising a fund to erect a statue to his memory.

Eggs May Be Kept Fresh For Months. "It is impossible in some sections of the country to get perfectly fresh eggs during the winter season," says Mrs. S. T. Rorer in The Ladies' Home Journal. "To guard against this, in summer time, when they are cheap, pack them in lime water, and they will keep in good condition for three months. Pour one gallon of boiling water over a pound of lime; when settled and cold, pour it carefully over the eggs which you have packed, small ends down, in a stone jar, and stand in a cool, dark place. Eggs may also be packed in salt; anything that will close the porce of the shell sud prevent evaporation will preserve eggs." A DOG THAT OWNS JORKINS.

The Cauine Is Tyrannical and Mrs. Jor

Jorkins owns a dog, or, to be more plicit, the dog owns Jorkins, and they both live with Mrs. Jorkins in a flat, much to the discomfiture of that good woman, who does not as a general thing tolerate dogs

"Piper has more sense than most people," Jorkins says when expatiating on the virtues of his favorite.
"Yes," Mrs. Jorkins adds, sarcastically,

"he knows enough to come in when it rains, because he hates to get wet.'

Piper is a dog of parts-part terrier, with a strain of bird dog and a dash of water spaniel He dislikes to get his feet wet and is afraid of a gun. He seldom barks at night and would wag his tail at sight of a burgiar and accompany him through the house noiselessly. He has one accomplishment, and one only. He goes down three flights of flat stairs every morning to bring up the daily paper, which Mrs. Jorkins gets from him by strategy in the course of the day after he has chewed it to pulp. Jorkins had often intimated to Mrs. J. that it was no trouble to bring up a canine hybrid by hand and believes that now, when he is brought up and they can neither sell, lose him or give him away, that her ministrations should continue, and that if she cannot go out and take Piper with her it is her duty to stay at

The other day Mrs. Jorkins struck. She had often threatened to, and on one occa-sion had struck—the dog. She now re-fused to attend to Piper's diet another hour. She declared she might as well live in a ricefield as to be eternally cooking rice in the flat kitchen for that dog. She said that Piper ate a gallon of boiled rice per diem.

"I'll see him further," she said to the astonished Jorkins, "before I turn myself into a Hindoo, cooking rice for him. Try it yourself and see how you like it." Jorkins was crushed. He asked meekly where the rice was kept and spent the rest of the day cooking it, while his wife retired with a bad headache. He filled every tub, pan, pail and basin in the flat with boiled rice, the proportions of which appalled him. Hiding as much of it as he could, he took in a steaming mess to give Piper, who had concealed himself under Mrs. Jorkins' lounge.

"You can't give a dog redhet food," said his wife. "You must cool it for him. l always do."

Her husband looked at her with admiration. He was beginning to think her a martyr. He took the rice and the dog into the kitchen, whither Mrs. J. presently followed him. She found him on his knees, with his bicycle pump, bard at work. He was cooling the rice, while Piper sat by and howled.—Chicago Times-

Wasted Eledness.

Three young women were standing on the curb at the corner of Euclid avenue and Erie street, peering down the avenue with anxious faces A respectable looking young man noticed their anxiety and approached them. "Are you waiting for a car?" he asked

The girls looked up in astonishment. Then they glanced at one another.

"Ye es," said the tallest one
"Well," said the young man. "the cars do not come up the street because of the sewer excavation. You will have to go to the corner of Prospect and Eric " he passed on

'Did you ever!" a bystander heard one of the girls say. "Wasn't that cheek?"
"Wonder what he takes us for?" inquired another.

"Guess he thought we'd walk with him." said the third. "V'ell, he ain't smart enough to fool us," said the first speaker. And they continued to stand on the curb and neer down the street -

R obbed the Grave.

A startling incident of which Mr. John Oliver of Philadelphia. was the subject, is narrated by him as follows: "I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appettite-gradually growing weater day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately a friend advised trying 'Electric Bittere,' and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail them. Only 50 cents per bottle at D. T. MacDonald's drug store.

To my Customers.

I shall feel extremely obliged if persons having any empty bottles belonging to me would hand them to my teamster, or if they send me word I will gladly send for them, as I want all I can collect for my holiday trade. Persons would, in order to prevent a rush just at Christmas, confer a favor on me by sending in their orders as soon as possible.
