

THE DAILY HERALD.

"FIRST OF ALL, THE NEWS."

ISSUED EVERY DAY EXCEPT SUNDAY.

JESSE O. WHEELER, Editor and Prop.

Entered at the Postoffice, Brownsville, Texas, as second-class matter.

MONDAY July 25, 1892.

The water works question is not dead, but sleeping.

Brownsville is the most southerly town in Texas but by no means the hottest.

The Haggites continue to bolt but when the convention meets they will get their last bolt. It will be a thunderbolt and strike them speechless.

The San Antonio Express says no editor has any business to run for office. Editor Price has evidently no political itching for honors to be gained from the ballot box.

It requires a large and enthusiastic audience to arouse eloquence. No one can speak with fire and eloquence to a small and unsympathetic gathering.

You can probably enjoy a hack ride for less cash in Brownsville than in any other town in the Union. For a real, twelve cents Mexican money, you can ride to any part of the city.

Corpus Christi is justly proud of her crack company, the Light Guard, and gave the boys a grand reception on their return from Austin. This is one of the companies chosen to represent Texas at the world's fair, and they will doubtless reflect credit upon the Lone Star State and the beautiful Bluff City.

The formal notification of Cleveland and Stevenson that they had been chosen as the standard bearers of the democrats took place in New York City on the 20th inst. It was a grand ovation for the leaders, and contrary to former customs it was made the occasion for a grand popular demonstration. Heretofore such notifications have been made in the presence of a favored few and only a few stiff platitudes uttered, but on this occasion throngs of democrats, both rich and poor, high and low assembled and Madison Square garden when the ceremony took place was made the scene of wildest enthusiasm.

The state encampment with all its mimic wars came near being the scene of real blood shed upon the day of its closing. A difficulty between Col. A. J. Houston of the Fourth regiment of the state troops and Capt. Ford of the Fort Worth Fencibles took place and Col. Houston fired several pistol shots at Capt. Ford, none of the shots taking effect, however. The trouble grew out of some personal feeling of long standing. It is greatly to be regretted as both men are of high standing. Col. Houston is the nominee of the lily white party for governor. He holds a place in the hearts of the people of Texas because he is the worthy son of a worthy father, our own Sam Houston.

You must pardon us if we say a great deal about ourselves. News paper, like people, enjoy being talked about, and the Herald has not yet heard anything about itself, that is, from abroad.—Brownsville Daily Herald.

So says the BROWNSVILLE DAILY HERALD, of July 7th, edited by Jesse O. Wheeler, formerly of Victoria. Considering friend Wheeler that you cannot expect much to be said of you until we are fully satisfied that you are, and did not die "abornin'." The only ones who could commend the beauty and form of the infant, are those who have watched its start in life. But we know the parent, and if the child does not develop into a thoro'bred, as its manifested precocity pretends, we will always believe that it is due to its own neglect and lack of effort. Come again, HERALD, we gladly welcome you on our exchange list.—Cuero Bulletin.

The San Antonio Express says that Jeff McLennore, of the Corpus Christi Caller finds little poetry in Tennyson's "Locksley Hall," its touching lines having no effect on him, but says "dearer to him far and fonder will be the following dialogue which is apt to take place next January in the session of the twenty-third legislature: "Mr. Speaker!" "This gentleman from Nueces." "I move that the house take recess sine die." The Express may be right, but we think a few tender lines from Bobbie Burns or a passion laden stanza or two from Lord Byron whispered in his ear would even reconcile our friend Mac to the tedious process of law-making.

Another strike and labor riot is reported, this time at Hicksville, N. Y., in a pearl button factory. As every one must know who has had occasion to purchase pearl buttons since the famous McKinley tariff went into effect, pearl buttons went up considerably in price in consequence, as one merchants informed us, of the McKinley bill. Another evidence of the beauties of protection which puts the dollars into the manufacturer's pockets and leaves the poor laborer out in the cold.

The DAILY HERALD recently established at Brownsville, by Jesse O. Wheeler, is a dandy little sheet and The Progress predicts the day is not far distant when it will rank equal in prominence with such papers as the Galveston and Dallas News.—Jackson County Progress.

We appreciate what you say friend Dick, because we know it comes from the nethermost depths of the organ that propels the blood through your system. Don't spread it on too thick, however, or you might turn our head. The Progress is an old friend and always welcome.

The Dallas News says that "If you know you are right do not forget to go ahead," which is a travesty upon the Port Lavacaen's paraphrase of Davy Crockett, "Be sure you are ahead, then go right."—San Antonio Express.

The Port Lavacaen's paraphrase of Davy Crockett's maxim is some thing of an improvement on the one which originally appeared in THE HERALD, which read as follows: "Be sure you are ahead, then get right if you can."
