INDUCTIONS AT WESLEY COLLEGE

Tuesday afternoon Lieutenant Camp went to Wesley College to take up the work of inducting the men there into the service. They will be put into the regular military drill and discipline. Wesley has two large tents on the grounds, in addition to the dormitories, and all are filled with men who are anxious to form the unit for the college in the Government service.

Some Interesting History We Should Not Forget

By B. Q. Evans.

Gilbert Motier Marquis de Lafayette, heir to one of the great French houses, fitted out a ship at his own cost, left his luxurious home and his beloved young wife, and despite the King's opposition and short imprisonment, sailed for America in April, 1777, at the age of nineteen, to offer his sword and purse to General Washington, serving as a private without pay in the cause of freedom. He became an intimate and admiring friend of Washington, who gave him the command of a division, after his daring bravery displayed at the battle of Brandywine.

Our treaty with France having provoked a war between England and France, he returned to his country in 1779. Six months later he again crossed the Atlantic and was given charge of the defense of Virginia and had his share in the battle of Yorktown, which practically ended the war of the Revolution.

He with many French officers came to our assistance, when Washington, with his half clad and foot sore soldiers were being hard pressed in their fight for independence by imported German and British soldiers. Having imbibed the liberal principles in the free air of America, he became eager for reform in his native land. Was called to the important councils of nations. And served his country in field and forum for forty years, laying the foundation for the great French Republic, bequeathing to them the principles of civil liberty for the preservation of which the French soldiers are now fighting.

In 1784, after the treaty of peace, he revisited our country, and was received in such a manner that his tour throughout the country was one continual triumph. So universally has his memory been cherished in the hearts of our people, that in 1898 the public school children of the United States contributed funds for a statue of Lafayette, that was erected and now stands in Paris, the Capital of the French Republic, as a beacon light to guide the footsteps of the human race in the pathway of universal freedom and democracy.

When a principle is involved, the true patriot offers his sword and purse in its defense. All true Americans at every age of our existence and history at any sacrifice and without counting the cost, have been ever willing to lay down their lives for their country. If the sublime example of Lafayette, a youth of tender years shall be perpetuated in history, who can be found that will say that our eighteen and nineteen year old boys shall be denied the opportunity and privilege of offering their swords in the defense of the same principles. Who would deny them the privilege to write a glorious page in history by offering their lives as a sacrifice to assist the sons and daughters of a great people to liberty and independence, whose ancestry befriended our forefathers while in the death struggle for liberty. King and the Bastille failed to restrain young Lafayette or to dampen the ardor of his ambition. And as he was given charge of the defense of Virginia, it is evidently a divine appointment that our President, a native of Virginia, should be privileged to organize an army for the liberation of the descendants of Lafayette from the domination and debauchery of a Kaiser, who is even worse than a king.

Why should not America restore to France her Alsace and Lorraine? These provinces were torn from France in 1870 as the first overt act in the preparation by Germany for universal empire and world domination. And the sound of American guns can be heard today in the great coal and iron fields in these provinces, that supply Germany with the coal and iron necessary to the prosecution of this war. And our army under General Pershing is striking at these bases of supplies, which, when taken, will practically end the war.

Our army is divided into two classes, the first are those of certain ages, who are required and permitted to go on the battle field in a foreign land, leaving behind them everything that is sacred and near to them, and hazard their lives and limbs in the defense of home and country. While the other class are all those remaining to produce and supply the army in the field. And our government has perfected a system whereby the burden of this government in supplying the army is divided alike and equally between the rich and the poor. The woman or child that can raise fifty or a hundred dollars, loans his money to the government, which will be returned with interest, but the man of wealth who has his income, great or small, who not only is privileged to make the investment by buying bonds, but is required to surrender of his profits a great percentage in proportion as he has prospered; and thus the burdens are equally divided. Have we a man left in this community that is still so affected with the commercial spirit that he would enment the part exacted from him? not be willing to lay down for his government, if so then he is a slacker and a coward, and a traitor to his country.

The responsibility for winning this war is upon the American people, and but for our army at Chateau Thierry, the Germans in their fourth drive would have landed in Paris and England would have been suing for peace. So that it is now plain to all men that our President did not commence his fight for an American army a minute too soon. And that the selective draft law is now recognized by all men as the only practical and just method of raising an army. So that now without a dissenting voice and with the heart of our people at the back of our army, victory will be perched upon our banner and universal democracy, freedom and independence will be established throughout the world. Can the sacrifice be too great for the results that we will have obtained? And it is my individual belief that this war will be ended with victory for the allied arms and a peace treaty written, dictated by our beloved President, whom God has appointed to lead his people, in this the darkest hour of the world, before time shall count another year. And I would not be surprised, if it should come even before that day.

"SLIM JIM" ART LARGE AGAIN;
BETTER WATCH YOUR AUTO
"Slim Jim," the notorious automobile thief, is at large again, having escaped from prison at Bartlesville, Ok. This notorious character gave Greenville police officers a thrill some weeks ago, hence the following story from a recent issue of the Dallas Times Herald will be of especial interest to Herald readers:

"The red-haired Dallas woman who so cleverly engineered the last escape of Tom Slaughter, noted auto thief and jail breaker, again has succeeded in getting the daring jail breaker free. A telegram received by Captain Charles Gunning announces that the famous 'Slim Jim,' as he is nicknamed, has escaped from the jail at Bartlesville, Ok.
"More than a dozen times Slaughter, who is a Dallas man, has escaped from peace officers in Texas. After making three escapes from the Texas penitentiary he was arrested in Oklahoma and while being brought back here he escaped and ran away with a big touring car and a police dog. Later he escaped from Huntsville and recently was arrested in Missouri and broke jail there. He was caught in Oklahoma and shortly after a red-haired woman appeared there to see him from Dallas. Slaughter opened his cell door, overpowered the guards and went across the street from the jail, held up a garage owner and took a car and drove into Oklahoma, where he was caught at Bartlesville. He broke jail there after the red-haired woman had visited him."

Cole's Original AIR-TIGHT Wood Heater

Guaranteed to remain
air-tight always.

The arrow points to the Patented Draft Control. Just as the engineer controls his locomotive so can you easily control the heat from this remarkable stove.

Owing to its air-tight stay-tight construction all air entering the stove must pass through the draft control. No control is possible with imitation stoves—Since their leaky side door and cast bottom construction can only be made temporarily tight with stove putty which soon dries and cracks, admitting air through numerous cracks, thus making regulation of the stove impossible.

We offer you quality goods at lowest prices. Prompt and courteous attention is our Motto. Inspect our stock before buying.
