COUNTRYMAN.

Several months ago we laid aside our duties as a correspondent for your valuable paper and gave way for another, thinking, perhaps, a change would be better for a while at least. But our friend Milfin has nied himself to other parts and now comes the cry again from many of our friends for us to again report the news from Rockett.

Speaking of the crop prospects at present we will say that it is anything but flattering. Poor stands of corn and what there is left is very If, on the small. In many places cotton is yet to be planted while many have other hand planted as often as three times and you know it ground. So, Mr. Editor, we have is Just What
