COLLEGE CELEBRATES

Interesting Program of Exercises Carried Out at Whitman College, Walla Walla, Wash., Today.

(Herald Special.)

Walla Walla, Wash., Feb. 16.—An interesting program of exercises was carried out at Whitman College today in celebration of the semi-centennial of the college and the centennial anniversary of the birth of its founder, Cushing Eells. The jubilee was made the occasion for a large gathering of former students from all sections of the northwest, together with public officials, visiting educators, churchmen and other friends of the institution. Addresses were delivered by a number of prominent speakers, who highly praised the work of the college in the past and present, and predicted a birght future for it.

Cushing Eells, who founded the college in memory of Dr. Marcus Whitman, whose disciple he was, was born one hundred years ago today in the town of Blandford, Mass. He was ordained a Congregational minister in 1837, and soon afterward he and his wife offered themselves as missionaries to the American Board of Commissioners of Foreign Missions and were appointed to Oregon. They arrived in Walla Walla in August, 1838, having made most of the journey from Missouri on horseback. For ten years they served among the Spokane Indians. Then they removed to the Willamette valley, where Dr. Eells laid the foundation for Willamette University at Salem. He was also the first teacher in what was afterward Pacific University at Forest Grove, Oregon, and taught school in other places until 1860, when he returned to Walla Walla and founded Whitman College. He gave to the college $10,000 of his own money and spent a year in the east working in its behalf. In 1888 he retired from active work and went to reside in Tacoma, where his death occurred on his eighty-fourth birthday, Feb. 16, 1893.

Whitman College prospered from the start and its development was greatly aided by liberal benefactions from Dr. D. K. Pearsons and others. The institution occupies more than a dozen buildings and a campus of thirty acres located in the heart of the city. The standards maintained are high, the Carnegie Foundation ranking the college with sixteen entrance requirements, the same as Harvard and other large eastern universities. At present the college has upward of five hundred students divided among the college of liberal arts, the school of music and the preparatory department. The number of students continues to increase each year, notwithstanding the fact that the tuition fees are the highest charged at any college or university west of the Rocky mountains.

WATTERSON 70 YEARS OLD

Veteran Editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal the Recipient of Many Congratulations.

(Herald Special.)

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 16.—Henry Watterson, the veteran editor of the Courier-Journal and often referred to as the foremost journalist of the south, celebrated the seventieth anniversary of his birth today and was the recipient of many congratulations. Family bereavements and failing eyesight have combined to cause the veteran editor to relinquish active work almost wholly during the past year, but his interest in public affairs is as active and his pen as ready, when he chooses to use it, as in the stirring days of his youth when he was editor of the saucy "Chattanooga Rebel."

Mr. Watterson was born in the storm-center of national politics, at Washington, February 16, 1840. In consequence of defective eyesight, which has always troubled him, he was sent but little to the public schools, but received much careful education at home. At the commencement of the war he enlisted in the Confederate army and became chief of scouts for Gen. Joseph E. Johnston. At the end of the war he made his way practically penniless to Louisville, where a few years later he joined W. D. Haldeman in the newspaper enterprise which made fame and fortune for both of them.

Mr. Watterson became active in politics in 1872, and between that time and 1892 no democratic platform was written without his aid and counsel. He presided over the convention that nominated Tilden, and was prominent as a leader and platform-framer until the convention of 1896 which nominated William J. Bryan upon a free silver platform, and called forth from Mr. Watterson, then in Switzerland, the famous telegram, "no compromise with dishonor"—a message that confirmed W. N. Haldeman, owner of the Courier-Journal, in his determination to oppose Mr. Bryan.

TERRIBLE CROUP.

One Who Knows Recommends a Remedy to Anxious Mothers.

My little boy, who is four years old, had suffered a lot with croup. On several occasions we thought he was gone.

After trying all the old time remedies and most of the new, I came home one night at midnight, and my wife said, "The boy has the croup again—suppose you get a bottle of Hyomei." "More junk," I said, "but we will circulate our money so they all will get some."

I hastened to an all night drug store, brought it home. In five minutes he was breathing easier. In fifteen minutes he was sound asleep. It broke the croup so quickly it scared me.

Anyone wishing to cure the croup of a child I hope will give Hyomei a trial.

Wishing you the best of success, which you surly deserve, I remain, Jos. E. Clark, 204 6th St. S. E., Washington, D.C., Oct. 7, 1909.

Hyomei is a remarkably effective remedy in case of croup and it should be in every home where there is a croupy child. Full instructions how to cure croup comes with each outfit.

Complete Hyomei outfit, including inhaler, costs $1.0 at druggists everywhere, and at Bitton Drug Co. It is guaranteed to cure catarrh, coughs, colds and sore throat.
