LABOR DAY THOUGHTS

NEXT MONDAY we cease our labors for a day to pay tribute to the laborer and his cause.

It has been the custom of mankind from time immemorial to erect monuments—monuments to great men and in commemoration of great deeds. Labor day is a monument to the cause of labor that has become embedded in our national customs and laws.

But after all the real monument to a great man is not the heap of marble or the pedestal of brass, but the result of his work, the impress of his character that is left to the world. And so it is with labor and the laborer. The laborer's monument stands everywhere. All the achievements of mankind rest primarily upon human toil. Factories, railroads, and all the complex agencies of modern commercial and industrial life are embedded in the substratum of labor.

The dogma "Labor creates all wealth" is historically true even if its application is limited in the present day. Capital and labor are co-ordinate factors in production today but it is to be remembered that every dollar of capital originated somewhere, at some time in human labor, physical or mental.

We are a nation of workers. The idle rich and the idle poor constitute very limited classes in America. In the stress of our busy national life, every man is putting forth his greatest exertions. "Do something" is the decree that is enforced by our national standards. The seal of condemnation is set alike upon the idler among the rich and among the poor.

It is unfortunate that conditions exist which have brought class distinctions, unfortunate that we must speak of a capitalist class and a labor class. The men who work with their hands and those who work with their brains, aided by the accumulated results of other men's labor and savings, are working for the same ends, the betterment of their physical, intellectual, social and moral conditions and the building of a great nation. That such distinctions have arisen is due to the fact that the inherent selfishness and "crookedness" in human nature prompt men to use unfair means in the race to outstrip their fellow workers. We are victims of the ethical heresy that might and cunning make right in peace as in war. The possession of great power either in the form of combinations of capital or labor is thought to confer the right to use it at will and the result is a clash between classes.

Mutual recognition of the principles of justice and fair play is the only basis upon an adjustment of this conflict can be reached and the invidious class distinctions be obliterated. Let us hope that the education of our people through platform, pulpit, press and schools, to the higher ideals of individual and national character will hasten the day when as a nation we shall be workers together with no strife of classes to impede us in working out our great destiny.

THE SUGGESTION IS POPULAR

THE SUGGESTION made in the EXPRESS recently that single statehood picnics be held seems to be growing in favor. It has been commented upon by most of the prominent papers of the territory.

The South McAlester Capital, a rank separate state organ, is taking notice and says:

"Single states are preparing an active campaign for union with Oklahoma and will give a series of picnics at some time in the near future, when adherents of separate statehood will be invited to discuss the issue with the single states. It is said picnics will be given in each recording district of the territory, where prominent men will be invited to address the people on the subject, the idea of the projectors of this plan being to get as near as possible the opinion of the people on the subject.

"The movement is well under way and if the challenge of the separate states has not already been forwarded to the chairman of the separate statehood campaign committee, it will be in the course of a few days."

GOOD SPIRITS.

Good spirits don't all come from Kentucky. Their main source is the liver—and all the fine spirits ever made in the Blue Grass State could not remedy a bad liver or the hundred-and-one ill effects it produces. You can't have good spirits and a bad liver at the same time. Your liver must be in fine condition if you would feel buoyant, happy and hopeful, bright of eye, light of step, vigorous and successful in your pursuits. You can put your liver in fine condition by using Green's August Flower—the greatest of all medicines for the liver and stomach and a certain cure for dyspepsia or indigestion. It has been a favorite household remedy for over thirty-five years. August Flower will make your liver healthy and active and thus insure you a liberal supply of "good spirits." Trial size, 25cts. regular bottles, 75c. At all druggists. West Side Drug Store.

Grover and Ed Vaughan were in town yesterday on their way home from Ardmore, where they had been to attend the marriage of their cousin, B. B. Dieterich to Mir. Ethel Payne. The wedding occurred last evening.
