Calamity Jane.

Another old timer has crossed the range—famed in song and story, and unique in class and sex—almost the sole remaining personage connected with the stirring scenes and incidents which comprised the passing show which we call life as exemplified in early days when the paradoxical, pistol-pulling pioneer was trying to eliminate the frontier. "Calamity Jane" is dead, and what was left of the wasted form and sin stained soul has at last found rest in Mount Moriah cemetery at Deadwood.

Local history relates that in the early '70's Jane was one of the army of amorous Aphrodites who filled Black Hills dance houses and saloons—whose life was one dizzy round of illicit pleasure and dawning dissipation. Later she acquired the prefix of "Calamity," which clung to her during life. She frequently visited Wyoming, and during the boom of '86 was a resident of Douglas. Three weeks ago she boarded a train running into Deadwood on which were a half-hundred members of the National Editorial Association, many of whom were ladies, and all of whom were anxious to see this strange type of the half-world of the once wild and woolly west. Wasted away to little more than a skeleton, hair gray and unkempt, sans teeth and reasonably sober, Jane received her visitors with a dignity and decorum befitting the occasion, even though she occasionally thoughtlessly blew a whiff of smoke into their faces from the two-for she was smoking. "You are a lady—I am only a woman," was the reply to a good wife and mother who tried to talk to her—a distinction and a difference as wide as the ocean, as the poor soul well knew. She made the Hills her home during recent years, and wanted for nothing—not even her favorite brand of booze. She was the one person in all that country who could ride on railroad trains without being bothered about fare. Food and raiment—and it was little she required of either—were furnished by those of her class, who though bearing the black brand of the bar-sinister, too often set so-called society an example in charity and kindly care of those in distress. She died as she had lived—fearless of the future, and without complaint.

At her request, she rests in the same plot and beside a former admirer and pard of her girlhood days—"Wild Bill" Hickock, murdered at Deadwood in 1876.

A precious pair, say you? True—and yet when that day comes, if ever, when life's book is balanced, who knows what the Deity may set down in their behalf on the credit side of the ledger?

Happily Wedded.

A wedding took place Wednesday evening of two young people which will interest a large number of our people. Jesse Dunn and Miss Lizzie Williams were the high contracting parties and the ceremony was performed by Bishop Clark at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Crane.

The groom is one of Montpelier's best known and popular young men.

The bride is one of the city's fairest daughters and is held in high esteem by all.

The Examiner extends its best wishes to Mr. and Mrs. Dunn.

Alias Summons.

In the District Court of the Fifth Judicial District of the State of Idaho, in and for the county of Bear Lake.

Bank of Montpelier, a corporation, plaintiff, vs. Almon S. Root and Helen A. Root, defendants.

State of Idaho to Almon S. Root and Helen A. Root in the name of the people of the state of Idaho:

You are hereby notified that there is now on file in the office of the Clerk of the district court of the fifth judicial district of the state of Idaho, in and for the county of Bear Lake the complaint of the Bank of Montpelier, a corporation: said action is brought to recover from you the sum of $617.00 balance found due on the 24th day of July, 1901 on a certain note executed and delivered by you to Mary Selstrom and assigned by her to this plaintiff, prior to filing the complaint herein; also for interest on said balance from said date; also for $80.94 taxes paid by said plaintiff on your land; $100 attorney's fees, and that a decree of foreclosure be entered as to the premises mortgaged by you to secure payment of said indebtedness.

The particulars more fully appearing in plaintiff's complaint, a copy of which is served herewith and made a part hereof, and you are hereby warned that unless you appear and answer to said complaint within ten days after the service thereof, if served within Bear Lake county, and within twenty days if served out of said county, but within said judicial district, and within forty days if served out of said district [exclusive of the day of service], judgment will be taken against you by default, according to the prayer of said complaint, for the sum of $797.94 besides interest and costs of suit; and that decree of foreclosure be entered as to premises mortgaged to secure payment of said indebtedness.

In testimony whereof, I, James E. Hart, clerk of said district court, have hereunto set my hand and affixed the seal of said court at Paris, Idaho, the 23rd day of July, A. D. 1903.

The State's Valuation.

The report of the assessor of Nez Perce county, showing the assessed valuation of that county, has not yet been received and the state board of equalization is unable to proceed with its work. Estimating the valuation of that county at $3,500,000, the total valuation of the state, as returned by the assessors less railroads, telephone and telegraph lines is $54,112,434.78 or an increase of $3,828,730.18 over the valuation of last year as returned by the assessors and before being equalized.

The railroads, telephone and telegraph lines were assessed last year at $9,382,619.58, making the total for the state, after equalization, $61,290,875.66.

Fatal Words.

McJigger—Poor fellow! He's terribly cut up because Miss Oldenritch rejected him.

Thingumbob—Rejected him! I thought she'd jump at a proposal.

McJigger—She was going to, but first she asked him if he would love her when she was old, and he absent mindedly replied, "I do."—Brooklyn Life.

Thespian Recollections.

"You do not take much interest in baseball?"

"No," answered Mr. Stormington Barnes. "I never could understand why it should be so hard to throw a ball straight when it is so easy to send an egg straight to the mark."—Washington Star.

Good Business Sense.

"Is Simpson, the tombstone maker, a good business man?"

"Good! I should say he is! Why, that man's business foresight is simply wonderful. He has just started a lunch restaurant by way of extending his operations."—Baltimore News.

At the Hub.

"Here," cried the irate passenger, "you've took me past Tremont street!"
"Pardon me," replied the Boston street car conductor, "you mean 'taken,' not 'took.' Now, then, sir, move with more expedition, please."—Philadelphia Press.
