TALKS ON THRIFT

HOW TO DRAW A CHECK.

The first thing a depositor in a bank should learn is how to draw a check, for if a check is improperly drawn it may lead to confusion and might bring a loss to the bank and annoyance to the depositor. In the first place, the figures should be plainly made, so that no question can arise as to the amount. If a figure is carelessly made, so that it confuses those who handle the check, numberless hours of work may follow. For instance, if a bank receives a check for $1.88 with a poor "8," and a clerk lists it as $1.08, it may take many hours' time to find the difference and the entire day's work may have to be gone over. The rule should be: Never make a figure that may be mistaken and never pass one that is in doubt—correct it by crossing out the bad and making a good one alongside.

Second, the words and figures should agree. The law says that if the two are different, the written words govern, but make both carefully and then all is well.

Third, begin the writing to the left of the writing space and fill in the unused space with a wavy line. Begin the figures well up against the $ sign and make the character 00-00 after, but close up against the figures. Use a good black ink and write firmly, so that plenty of ink gets into the fibre of the paper.

Fourth, Always write your name exactly as you wrote it on the bank's signature card. "Mrs. William Smith" may be the same person as "Mary V. Smith," but the bank account doesn't stand that way.

Adopt one signature and stick to it. Do not flourish, nor make a fancy signature. Handwriting experts will tell you that a plain, distinctive signature, with no flourishes, is the most difficult to forge.

The law of forgery is that the bank is bound to know your signature, and pays a forged instrument at its peril. The risk is all theirs. But that is not to say you should not help eliminate the chance of forgery by taking care that your checks are properly drawn. If you are grossly negligent, you might have to stand the loss yourself. Better be safe than sorry. There are numerous protecting devices on the market, some better than others, and these may be used as added safeguards; but there is no rule of law that compels you to do so. You are safe if you use a protecting device, for then you cannot be charged with any negligence in making your checks forgery proof. Do not make it easy to work a fraud through your account. Do not give checks to strangers. Do not leave your check book lying around. Do not leave a signed check where it may be filled in and used. Your banker will bless you if you follow the foregoing suggestions.
