ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Phyllite is a rock intermediate between mica schists and slates. It is in fact a mica slate.

Dacite is a quartz andesite. The name is derived from the ancient Roman province known as Dacia, now included in the Kingdom of Hungary.

Novaculite is an exceedingly fine grained quartzose rock, which is supposed to be a consolidated silicious slime of sedimentary origin. Its practical use is for making high grade whetstones.

To keep iron pipe from rusting it is recommended to coat them with coal tar, and then fill them with light wood shavings, then set the latter on fire. Provided the heat is not too intense or prolonged the tar will be absorbed by the pores of the iron and rusting will be prevented for a long period.

The first cement copper was produced in Spain at Rio Tinto in 1752 from heaps of low-grade sulphide ore that had undergone decomposition through natural process. The copper was leached out by water, the metal being precipitated on iron. It was first thought to be merely a coating of copper on the iron, but it was found that if left long enough the replacement became practically complete.

One thousand feet (board measure) of well seasoned mountain lumber will weigh from 1,200 to 1,800 lbs, according to the proportion of resin in them. The yellow and browner the pine, the more resin it contains. Freshly cut green lumber from the hills will weigh nearly twice as much. The whiter the pine board is when produced, the more water it will give up during the process of seasoning.

Rich lode gold mines do not always produce rich placers, and rich placers are often known where the lodes do not pay to work. Although millions of dollars have been taken from the telluride ores of the Cambrian strata, near Lead, in South Dakota, these deposits do not produce valuable placers.

During the last week or two the public has been treated to a flood of reading matter by the daily press relative to alleged new strikes. Most of the declarations of great finds are to say the least premature. Many are merely spread-eagle accounts of small pockets which a miner naturally expects to run on to in the ordinary course of mining. It is, of course, a good thing to chronicle these fugitive finds, but it is truly harmful to chronicle them as "great strikes." The evil side of this phase of mining journalism is that when a really splendid discovery is made it is buried in a mass of false alarms. A little more conservatism is needed in the daily mining news published by newspapers in the Rocky mountain states.—Denver M. Reporter.

COWS AT THE WORLD'S FAIR.

In a recent 10-day test of the cows competing at the World's Fair in St. Louis, 15 Holsteins produced an average of 57.7 pounds of milk daily, and this milk yielded 1.97 pounds of butter-fat daily. The pounds of solids not fat produced was 4.48 pounds.

The Jersey cows gave an average of 44.5 pounds of milk per day, and averaged 1.97 pounds of butter-fat. The total pounds of solids produced per cow per day was 3.77. There were 25 cows in the test.

Only five Brown Swiss cows competed. These produced an average of 51.7 pounds of milk daily. The milk contained 1.66 pounds of butter-fat and 4.41 pounds of solids other than butter-fat.

In the Shorthorn herd competing there were 29 cows. These produced an average of 36.8 pounds of milk, and this milk contained 1.23 pounds of butter-fat and 3.06 pounds of solids other than butter-fat.

All of these records are good, but when the production per 1000 pounds of cow weight is figured out and the relative cost of production the specific dairy breeds will doubtless be seen to be far ahead of the others. The Shorthorn cows especially seem to have suffered by the test.

Ants are the most brainy of all creatures. In proportion to its size, an ant's brain is larger than that of any other living being.

Men who have worked a lifetime in fashioning cast iron under the lathe are greatly surprised on learning that the same material, when employed in the heating pipes of a blast furnace stove, grows from six inches to a foot in length from constant use. And the furnace man is equally unprepared to hear that the core bars used for casting pipe lose as much as three inches in casting twenty or thirty pieces.

In proportion to the others the most profitable of the United States government departments is the patent office. It has a balance of over $5,000,000 to its credit.

The population of the world is now estimated at 1,503,000,000.

MARLIN

THE MARLIN RIFLE, Model 1892, .32 calibre, is the best rifle made for the farmer, combining the good points of the old muzzle-loading squirrel rifle with the convenience and rapid fire of the most improved repeater.

It is so constructed that the same rifle uses the following cartridges: .32 short and long rim fire, .32 short and long center fire, and is the only repeater made using rim fire cartridges larger than the .32 calibre. The short cartridges are just the thing for small game while the long ones kill hogs and beef hands. On the first 5000 cartridges used you have saved the cost of a Marlin.

The Marlin Hand Book for shooters explains why this is so and tells how to care for, and how to use, fire arms. This valuable book free if you will send stamps for postage to THE MARLIN FIREARMS CO., NEW-HAVEN, CT.
