EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

FOR COUNTY CLERK.

I hereby announce that I am a candidate for the office of Clerk of the County Court of Wayne county, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

A. W. PRESTON.

We are authorized to announce J. G. Lambert as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the office of County Clerk, subject to the action of the Democratic Primary.

COUNTY COMMISSIONER.

We are authorized to announce W. W. Porter as a candidate for the nomination for Commissioner of the County Court, subject, however, to the action of the Democratic Primary.

DURING the fiscal year ending June 30, 1908, the government has spent for rent of buildings in the District of Columbia the sum of $415,622 03, or, in round numbers, $416,000. That is for the District alone.

SEVERAL years ago Gen. Corbin in his annual report said that the early marriages of officers in the army should be discouraged on account of the insufficient pay, and now President Eliot, of Harvard, urges the young college instructor to remain single until his salary "will enable him to support a wife and children comfortably but not in luxury." Truly Mammon is supreme.

ONE of the important matters to be taken up at the next annual meeting of the State railroad commissions in New York is the abatement of the tramp nuisance, and the railroads of the country are about to take concerted action with this end in view. Figures just made public show the seriousness of the problem the railroads of the country cope with in dealing with trespassers indicate that the Pennsylvania Railroad alone lost $436,006 last year in thefts by tramps.

It is announced that the President's present intention is to remain at the White House until the returns from the Chicago convention are in and then betake himself to Sagamore Hill where he will be simply an "interested observer" and that politicians will not be encouraged to make pilgrimages there. It is safe to venture the prediction, however, that President Roosevelt's last annual message to Congress and many other important tasks that will affect the country will be made to fit in perfectly with the rest and recreation sought for.

FROM Washington comes the report that President Roosevelt will spend the first year after his retirement from office in travel outside the United States. While his itinerary has not been determined, according to report, his plan is to see some of the little-frequented portions of foreign lands, and, of course, the prediction is made that the President will indulge his fondness for hunting big game. The President is quoted as saying in this connection: "If William Taft is nominated and elected President, it would make impossible any criticism if I were abroad, to the effect that I was dictating to him and that he was being followed, or that I had tried to dictate and had been turned down in my suggestions."

SOME of the local newspapers in reporting the proceedings of the New York Republican Convention have intimated that "Roosevelt influence" inspired the delegates to cheer the President to the echo and give Hughes a half-hearted send-off. It is obvious, however, that Governor Hughes himself is to blame for the lack of enthusiasm in his behalf. He has not lifted a finger for the Presidency and it is hardly reasonable to expect others to grow enthusiastic over or make sacrifices for a candidate who makes none for himself, and who seemingly mistakes indifference for independence. The Presidency is too fine a prize to be forced upon any man, and with available men in the field, great and ambitious to win, it is not at all likely that those who display neither a normal nor a healthy desire to be President will ever gain the support of their party.

It is now "neck and neck" with Scherr and Swisher, one of whom is likely to be the next Governor of West Virginia.

Mr. HEARNE made a clean fight while he was in the race and he made many friends, too, who will remember him some other day.

It begins to look like Bryan will have some trouble in securing the nomination for President for the third time, although he is still in the lead. Some of the most prominent Democrats in this State are opposed to his nomination.

C. WOOD DAILY, a prominent attorney and Democratic politician, who was mentioned as a candidate for Governor four and eight years ago, died of pneumonia at Elkins last Thursday. He was fifty-eight years of age.

THE second annual meeting of the West Virginia Fish and Game Protective Association will be held at Wheeling on the 29th inst., beginning at 10 o'clock, a. m. The Association wants the co-operation of every true sportsman in the state and to that end extends them a cordial invitation to be present and become members.

"IRONTON is to have another daily newspaper," says The Iron-tonian. It will be an evening paper, and will be edited by Prof. E. L. Marting, at present one of the faculty of the Ironton High School. James M. Howell, formerly with The Register, is to be city editor, and Roy Brammer, until recently business manager of the Huntington Dispatch, is to be manager.

How many women know that cards of hooks and eyes can be bought that require neither needle nor thread. Such a card containing either black or white hooks in all sizes, one and a half dozen to the card, may be had for a few cents. They are made on the principle of the price tags attached to articles in the shops and can be fixed to any garment in a second so that they will never come off. Think of this for a time-saver!—The New Idea Woman's Magazine for May.

SENATOR SCOTT, of this State, chairman of the committee on public buildings and grounds, in a recent speech on the floor of the Senate, made the following statement: "I do not believe that the expenditure of a single dollar for the city of Washington in order to beautify the capital of the nation and erect its workshops has ever been criticized by an American taxpayer or an American voter. I do not believe that if today the Congress of the United States was to pass a bill appropriating even $32,000,000 for the purchase of sites and the erection of buildings to complete the plans I have detailed there would be a dissenting voice in the United States. I do not believe there would be one criticism from any paper in the United States. On the other hand I think it would be one of the most popular measures ever passed by Congress, and one that would be met with the heartiest approval everywhere."

It has been announced from the White House that the President has selected for the Comptroller of the Currency, Lawrence O. Murray, Assistant Secretary of the Department of Commerce and Labor, vice William B. Ridgley, who resigned on March 28th. However, Mr. Murray, who has been ill at Atlantic City, has not yet been appointed and for the first time in many years the office of Comptroller of the Currency is vacant. The office is, meanwhile, in charge of Thomas P. Kane, the deputy comptroller, and Mr. Kane is said to know more about national banks and the banking system than any other man in this country. Mr. Kane entered that service as a stenographer in the Post-Office Department and he has advanced entirely on his own merit to his present position and today has the fullest confidence of President Roosevelt and the Secretary of the Treasury.

To Suppress Anarchy.

In one of the shortest messages which he has yet transmitted to Congress, President Roosevelt a few days ago called the attention of that body to the necessity for further legislation on the subject of anarchy. With the message he transmitted a report reviewing the legal phases of the question by Attorney General Bonaparte.

The message of the President is as follows:

"To the Senate and House of Representatives:

"I herewith submit a letter from the Department of Justice, which explains itself. Under this opinion, I held that existing statutes give the President the power to prohibit the Postmaster General from being used as an instrument in the commission of crime; that is, to prohibit the use of the mails for the advocacy of murder, arson and treason, and I shall act upon such construction.

Unquestionably, however, there should be further legislation by Congress in this matter. When compared with the suppression of anarchy, every other question sinks into insignificance. The anarchist is the enemy of humanity, the enemy of all mankind, and his is a deeper degree of criminality than any other.

No immigrant is allowed to come to our shores if he is an anarchist, and no paper published here or abroad should be permitted circulation in this country if it propagates anarchistic opinions.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT."

The Story of Tony.

Tony is a little Italian boy whose sad history is similar to that of thousands in New York City. When he drifted into the Receiving Home of the Children's Aid Society, he heard, for the first time in years, of fathers and mothers. These characters appeared so often in the matron's stories; they were so kind, and they loved little boys so much, that Tony became filled with a longing that he had never known—a longing for a father and mother of his own. And every night he prayed that he might find parents.

Some months ago Tony's story and picture appeared in the Delineator. There were many who desired the little boy and many of the homes were such good ones that it was hard to arrive at a decision. The letter that finally turned the balance read:

"When your letter came with the doubt in it, our little boy could not eat his dinner. He says he shall never believe God loves him any more, because he prayed so hard to have Tony for his brother, and even got the playthings ready, and almost every other boy in town has a brother or sister.

Unless he is given out to people of wealth and you could still give him to us, I feel sure our home offers great advantages for fresh air, near to nature on every side, and a chance to learn music, and loving care together with other requirements."

We are told on high authority that the "earnest prayer of a righteous man availeth much." The prayers of two innocent children must be measured by the same measure, for Tony has gone where father, mother and brother love awaited him, and the hearts of two children have been made happy.

Would Please Us.

Really Tom Theodore McDougal would suit the State Journal better for State Treasurer or Auditor than any other man in all the big State of West Virginia.—Parkersburg State Journal.

The writer certainly appreciates the above (coming as it does from one of the State's leading Republicans), even if he is not a candidate.

Died.

Miss Belle Luther died at her home on Docks creek, Wednesday, April 15, 1908, of paralysis, aged 50 years. The body was buried Friday in the Skean cemetery, near her home.

Does Not Favor Bryan.

In speaking of the action of the Democratic State Committee in endorsing the candidacy of W. J. Bryan for President, John J. Cornwell in his paper—The Hampshire Review—says:

"The action of the State Committee in endorsing, officially, the candidacy of W. J. Bryan, for President, at Parkersburg was ill-advised and, in our humble judgment, a grave political mistake. If Mr. Bryan has had a more loyal supporter in this State than the writer, or a warmer admirer, we cannot now name him. Months ago we declared, in these columns, that we favored his nomination and advised against any effort to obtain delegates from this State hostile to him, because we believed him the most available candidate. We admit that since that time his availability has been greatly lessened by the action of the Populists and Hearst's Independence League, which means that the progressive or radical vote of the country will be divided between three candidates, which will certainly lessen Bryan's chances for election.

It has ever been a serious handicap to Mr. Bryan in his past campaigns that in the forefront of his processions have appeared too conspicuously two classes of leaders, the socialistic, unreasoning enthusiast and the demagogue and political time server who will endorse anything and everything to be in control and in popular favor. In both of these the sane and patriotic people of the country stand in awe and if this campaign is to be by and for these two elements the result can be easily foretold."

In another article Mr. Cornwell says:

"The nomination of Tom Watson, of Georgia, for President, by the National Populist convention, will mean the loss of many votes to Mr. Bryan throughout the western states. That is a lamentable fact to Democrats who have entertained high hopes of Bryan's election, but a fact it will prove itself to be, although it may not cost him any states or electoral votes. Watson is a very brilliant man, a stirring speaker and it is more than likely that he will make Bryan the special object of his attack, rather than the Republican candidate. Just as Mr. Bryan charges President Roosevelt with appropriating his policies, so Watson and the Populists denounce Bryan for utilizing theirs and it must be confessed that their national platform does not vary much from the personal platform, on several occasions enunciated by Bryan."

A Good Loser.

Hon. Presley W. Morris is a good loser. Anyone can be sweet, generous and bright when he wins; but it takes a thoroughbred to come up smiling after going through Harry Woodyard's machine from hopper and shaker to chaff-blower. Our chief complaint of the whole affair was its effect upon the State Journal while Morris was "going through."—Charleston Gazette.

Committee Meeting.

There will be a meeting of the Republican State Central Committee at the Chancellor Hotel at Parkersburg at 10 o'clock, a. m., on Tuesday the 28th day of April, 1908, for the purpose of considering the temporary organization of the Republican convention to be held at Parkersburg on the 29th of April and for the purpose of making up the temporary roll of said convention and for the further purpose of transacting any business that may properly come before the State Committee.

HARRY C. WOODYARD,
Chairman.

FRIEND TO FRIEND.

The personal recommendations of people who have been cured of coughs and colds by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy have done more than all else to make it a staple article of trade and commerce over a large part of the civilized world.

WHY WORRY?

What is the use of worrying over the making of a spring dress when you can come to our store, see hundreds of dresses, already made, try them on right at the time, get just exactly what you want and get it cheaper than you can buy the goods and make it?

Never Before

Have the ladies of this community had such a selection to choose from, and more than that they are The acme of style. Isn't it more satisfactory to see just how you are going to look in the dress and THEN buy it? Well, that's the advantage of buying of us. We never sell you anything that is not exactly suited to you in looks and in price.

Marvelous Hat Sale.

Our sale of hats for spring wear has been wonderful. We jumped into popularity at the very start; and stylish dressers have learned that when we sell a hat it is authentic so far as style is concerned.
