THE Police Gazette ought to "sign" WILLIAM EDWIN HASKELL, the young blackguard editor of the Minneapolis Tribune.

The British taxpayers will be delighted to learn that there is another Hattenberg baby, and that there is to be, therefore, another demand on the Imperial treasury for its support and maintenance in a style becoming its royal parentage.

A DAY or two ago, in the interior of New York State Mr. GEORGE, being pushed by penetrating inquiries, "let the cat out of the bag" when he told the farmers that, under his scheme, their taxes would be next to nothing, but the city lots would have to pay nearly all the taxes of the State, and that "city savings banks would have a bad time," inasmuch as their investments are so generally in mortgages.

This price of our artificial gas can be reduced considerably and yet margin enough left to pay all the cost of manufacture and other expenses of that department of our public works. This being the case the present price of our gas is exorbitant, no matter what may be the price of artificial gas in other cities. Wheeling may be furnishing gas cheaper than many other cities can do, but if Wheeling can produce her artificial gas still cheaper why should she not take the unnecessary burden of the gas consumers?

Several thousands of dollars are now taken from the pockets of the gas consumers to make up the expenses of the city government which should come through other - the proper - channels. Let Council remedy this manifest injustice to the people.

THE recent refusal of the Grand Orient Lodge of Free Masons of France to restore the name of the deity to its documents and insignia has excited no little interest in Masonic circles all over the world. The St. Louis Republican says the estate was made some years ago on the suggestion of M. LITTEK, who united to his reputation of distinguished encyclopedist that of a very aggressive sceptic. He proposed that the letters A. N. G. A. U., signifying "In the name of the Grand Architect of the Universe," be removed from all Masonic emblems and symbols - and the proposition was adopted. A few years after this was done M. LITTEK died - a devout Catholic; but his work remains, and the Grand Orient Lodge of France, at its recent session, formally voted down a proposition to restore the obliterated ancient letters. The French Masons now stand separate and apart from those of other lands, and the Grand Lodges of Germany, Italy, Great Britain, Spain and the United States decline to hold fellowship with a body of men who deliberately repudiate the idea of a Supreme Being.

THE DOOMED ANARCHISTS. Until the Anarchists are disposed of Chicago must be uneasy, though she has shown herself amply able to take care of her people and property.

The final appeal to the courts of Illinois has been made and the verdict of the convicting jury has been approved, and only the Supreme Court of the United States stands between the doomed men and the death penalty, which the Illinois courts have decreed shall be paid on the 11th day of November. A very few hours more will decide the fate of the Anarchists. The Supreme Court decision may be rendered to-day, hardly later than to-morrow. The last hope of the Anarchists is an exceedingly slim one, and the efforts of their attorneys derives its importance more from the promise of an early decision on the probability of interference with the decree of the courts of Illinois.

General ROGER A. PRYOR, RANDOLPH TUCKER and General BUTLER, as counsel for the Anarchists, base their argument before the Supreme Court, in applying for a writ of error on two grounds:

First, the unconstitutionality of the jury laws of Illinois, by which disqualification for jury service is not based on a juror having formed an impression from rumor or newspaper statements, provided he has expressed no opinion and states upon oath that he can render an impartial verdict, and

Secondly, that the defendants were put upon the witness stand and compelled to criminate themselves, and that their private papers were seized and used as evidence against them, which was in the nature of a violation of their own evidence. In this connection it may be said that the defendants were placed on the stand by their own attorneys, and their so-called self-criminating evidence was given in the prosecution's cross-examination to correct false impressions made by the defendants in their evidence.

On the constitutional limitation of the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court, which provides that its "judicial power shall extend to all cases in law and equity arising under this constitution," General PRYOR appeals to the highest court of the land, basing his application for a writ of error on the constitutional points presented above, and claiming the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court over the cases on the ground that the two considerations on which the appeal is made did not, in the trial of the defendants, allow them a fair hearing under "due process of law," which is guaranteed by the Federal Constitution. The attorneys for the Anarchists argue that as that Constitution extends to every one the right of trial by an "impartial jury," and guarantees the right of reservation of self-criminating evidence, and forbids States making laws abridging the privileges or immunities of citizens, as they claim Illinois has done in its jury laws, that the seven men were not convicted under due process of law nor in conformity with the requirements of the Federal Constitution.

Should the decision of the court be in conformity with the argument of the attorneys of the convicted men, the whole matter will be again reopened and the tedious trial will have to be gone over again. If, on the other hand, the State courts are sustained, the last barrier will have been torn down between the doomed men and the caffold, unless Governor O'LESBY extends executive clemency, the hope of which has long since been abandoned. Whatever may be the decision of the Supreme Court in the matter it will be a source of sincere regret to the law-abiding citizens of the whole country if these red-headed ruffians and assassins are, by any means allowed to escape the gallows.

"The Collapse of Coercion." Boston Journal. Sooner even than was anticipated, the government policy in Ireland has broken down. The coercion law fails to coerce. The temper of the Irish people is as undaunted as ever, and the only effect of the rigorous measures of the government has been to make the resistance of the Irish more determined and uncompromising. The constabulary is halting and bewildered in its impossible undertaking of suppressing a popular movement which springs up in a hundred places at the same time, and is everywhere defiant and defiant.

The old saying: "In time of peace prepare for war," has another version in the case of Ireland. It is "Give the growler an extra rush on Saturday night." - Washington Critic.

Sectional Hate. Richmond State. The New York Tribune, the leading Republican newspaper in this country, says: "The President has appointed thousands of ex-Confederates and thousands of notorious copperheads to the exclusion of Democratic veterans who sought the same positions." That he has appointed thousands of Democratic veterans, such as Villas, Black, Rosecrans, and others, who had succeeded in showing how eager still are Republicans in high places to place a ban upon ex-Confederates. For appointing them to office the leading Republican paper in the country tries to hold up the President to scorn. Is it possible that with such striking proof of the South-hate that prompts Republican utterances there can be any self-respecting Southerner who is willing to cast his lot with a party whose leaders have such a record?
