The Bachelor's Last Hours. The following touching(?) "pome" was handed in by a man who had tears in his voice and a tremor in his eyes, with the request that it be printed, and he said that all of Harry's friends would catch on. It was afterwards learned that the contributor was a friend of Harry's and an old bachelor who was mourning his single unbles-sedness. It is entitled "The Bachelor's Last Hours" and runs thusly: Not a laugh was heard nor a joyous note, As our H rry to the bridal we hurried, Not a wit discharged his farewell joke, As the bachelor went to be married.

We married him quickly to save his fright, Our heads from the sad sight turning, And we sighed as we stood by the lamp's dim light, To think him not more discerning.

To think that a bachelor free and bright,

And shy of the sex as we found him, should there at the altar at dead of night, Be caught in the snares that bound him. Few and short were the words he said,

Slowly and sadly we marched him adown, From the top of the lowermost story, And we have never heard from, nor seen the whom we left alone in his glory.
