SATURDAY MORNIDG, MARCH 1, 1856.

ENGLAND AND THE U. STATES.

For some days past, we have been publishing extracts from the English journals, showing the views taken by them of the questions of disagreement existing between the two governments, and giving a fair sample of the war feeling prevalent in England. Some of these articles are flercely arrogant, and very obnoxious to the American reader. While we believe there exists a strong probability of a war, we are not of those who desire to see it, and the disastrous events accompanying it; but, while we desire peace, we prefer war rather than have our government submit to conditions adverse to amaintenance of honor and dignity, in the eyes of our people, and of other governments. The tone of the English Press, is well calculated to stir-up the worst passions of the English people, and hasten a calamity which they pretend to be desirous to avert: while not a single citizen of this country will feel the least intimidation at their rounded periods and threatening words. The Americans, themselves, are great talkers, and it will require something more than mere words, however high-sounding, to drive them from a maintenance of principles handed down from the earliest periods of our government, and instilled into their minds in boyhood.

We see nothing in the threats to burn our seaboard cities, from one end of the Union to the other; to sink our navy by a single broad-side; and the possession of the lakes by an English fleet. It sounds no more terrible now, than it did in 1812; and even then, hampered with our swaddling cloths about our loins, it was found much less difficult to write them on paper, than to execute them in fact. The British Press seem to forget the experiences of 1812 ;-they entirely look over the lessons of the Mexican war. Comparatively, we have no Navy at this time to sink; no Army to be annihilated; but let war be declared, and a new scene will present itself. The magic of American ingenuity will place ships, bristling with canon, in every sea, to annoy the commerce of our enemy, and to protect our own; and soldiers, armed and equipped for the strife, will spring from the womb of our nation, till their numbers will deter the haughty Briton from placing a foot upon our soil. America is not a nation to be whipped. Her people have too much to fight for, her institutions are too dear to every heart, to yield to soldiers dispirited by the abjectness of their position, and without love for the Government that hunger forces them to serve. We desire peace and abhor war, but if war must come, let it come quickly. We want a foe worthy of being the antagonist of the American people.

MR. BUCHANAN'S DISPATCHES. - The dispatches received from Mr. Buchanan by the last steamer are said to be unimportant except as showing that all the questions relating to American affairs remained unchanged. The improbable rumor of a personal flare up between Mr. Buchange and Lord Clarendon is not alluded to in his letters, and are therefore assumed to be un-As confirmation of the fact that no new difficulty had arisen between our Minister and the British Minister, we may quote the following extract from a letter from an American merchant now in England:

"I felt more than usually anxious to go back with the Atlantic that takes this. I had an interview with her commander, Capt. West, who was in London on Saturday. I met him at the Embassy of Mr. Buchanan, the American Minister, where I went to consult about the new embraglio between England and the States. He relieved my mind of the fear I had begun to entertain that war might ensue between the two countries, and led me to hope that after a little more bluster, all would be settled amicably.

ARREST OF ALLEGED MAIL ROBBERS AT CUM-BERLAND .- We learn that at the instance of Col. James L. Maguire, the efficient United States special mail agent, two men named George Newell alias Anneville, and Floyd Dowden, were arrested at Cumberland, Md., on Tuesday, by the Deputy Marshal for that town, on the charge of committing depredations on the mails passing through the Cumberland Post office.

I fear, even now, that I cannot give the afflictedworld a just iden of the good I have derived from its use; the benchts have been so great that I feel insulequate to the task. I was attached with the chronic riseunatish in its most malignant form, at the early age of two and a half years, and con tinued to be so afflicted until I crossed the Atlantic Ocean on my way to America, at which time it changed its form into a gathering. I had at this time attained my growth, and never expected to be well again, as the disease came, in the first place, of my being vaccinated from a child who had a white swelling. When my gathering first broke it did not discharge less than one quart, and conlinued to trouble me every time I took cold or was in the least fatigued; my bodily strength was reduced to the weakness of infancy. I was several times very near the grave; my hip joint had been out of place ever since the first attack. At the age of thirteen my hands became dislocated.
