Stogies Go Down Again Before Quinlan's Tars

INITIAL APPEARANCE OF SAILORS HERE WAS HEART-BREAKING.

Smokes Unable to Connect With Matteson, While Graham and Heiseman Were Touched Often.

Seven straight! And what an awful seventh!

It seems as if Wheeling will never be able to break the spell or hoodoo which controls their playing when they face the Erie "Sailors." Six times have Ryan's gladiators faced them this season and just so many times have they bit the dust, in bitter defeat. Time and again we have sent our best hurlers against them, switched our batting order, and even went to the extremity of pitching our first baseman, but the result has always been the same.

In yesterday's contest our old friend and a former "Stogie" Matteson had the pleasure of handing us a bitter and salty dose, and from the way this gentleman performed, when the locals needed a hit, one would have thought he was a duplicate of his near namesake. Wheeling got almost as many hits as Erie, but when it came to runs there was a sad difference. This was mostly due to the fact that all of the locals eight bingles were kept scattered and in only one inning, the second, did the "Smokes" gather more than a single safe hit. In this frame, they secured three singles, producing their first run, the others being scattered one by one, through the rest of the game.

When that Erie bunch clouts the ball, it is almost painful to see how hard they hit it. Every man but Dawson took one or more good healthy swats at the pills administered by "Doctors" Graham and Heiseman and there was nothing stingy about the way they did it. From the second inning they kept swinging with a vengeance, which drove one of our erstwhile stars from the mound and almost broke the second heaver during the first two innings in which he officiated.

His Graham's Best.

We started off with "Peaches" Graham in the box, but, sad to say, Graham's reception was short and disastrous. "Peaches" seemed to have his usual stuff on the ball and good control but when this was matched against the unusually strong batting eyes of the Erie aggregation it availed him naught.

His trusty left got him through the first inning in great shape, letting the visitors down without a hit and leading the fans to believe that chances looked good for a win. But in the second—well, somehow they seemed to have solved the secret of the delivery of "Peaches." One of the Colligan boys put the first spike in our hopes when he shoote one to left center for three sacks, which went between Priests and Moren at a mile-a-minute rate. This wouldn't have been so bad had not "Rose" Quinlan duplicated the feat with a three sacker to right, which took a bad bound to the side of Green and rolled to the fence. To make the slaughter worse, the second son of Erin, E. Colligan, clouted out a two sacker, scoring Quinlan.

With no one down Schang sacrificed him to third, from where he promptly registered on Miller's infield out. In the next inning Nixon, with two down, led off with a two bagger and scored on W. Colligan's single.

Our last glimmer of hope vanished in the third, when these mighty wielders of the club again fattened their averages to the tune of four hits and three runs. "Peaches" end came in this frame, when Schang started off with a single, he retiring in favor of Heiseman.

When Heiseman entered the box, with Schang reposing on first, he threw to first in an endeavor to catch him off, but when "Molly" let the ball get away from him the runner was advanced to second. Miller flew out to center, Schang going to third on the throw-in.

Matteson Starts Work.

Matteson, who had been easy before, sprang a surprise by batting out a single, scoring Schang. A slight lull in the storm appeared when Dawson struck out, but just as the suspense seemed ended Gygli uncorked another single. With two men on the sacks Nixon then made his second extra base bingle counting both of them. The end came on an infield out.

The visitors' last tally came in the fifth inning on a base on balls, a sacrifice and a single. In the meantime Wheeling had been traveling along pounding out a single or so, an inning, but without much result, except in the second. In this frame Hammond led off with a safety and Prieste next up, singled to left. Green, however, failed to keep up the merry work, forcing Prieste at second. On this play, though, Hammoni went to third, from whence he scored on Molly's infield single.

Our second and only run came in the eighth when Hammond with two down, reached first by virtue of an error, going to second when Quinlan's throw went wide. Priests then scored him for the second run with a dandy two bagger.

NOTES OF GAME.

Catcher Schang for the visitors, without doubt has the best throwing arm of any team stop appearing here this season, although our own Harry Welcher ran him a close race in this respect yesterday. Schang shoots the ball on a dead line to the middle sack on a level with the pitcher's shoulder and in most instances even makes the umpire duck to get out of the way.

Prieste, as usual, produced his rooting hits yesterday. In the second Moren followed Hammond's signal with one of his own, and again in the ninth scored the third marker with a bunch.

Some how we can't help but think back a year or so, when Burden would be equal to the task of putting over the first run on Erie. Both boys are traveling in great shape at present, and it will take some tall hustling by Erie to defeat them.

Newhouse had the fans hooting at him all through the game yesterday and it looked as if he got just a little too much attention to them. Twice he stopped the game by the other fans rank a fast one from the field.

Some of the local coachers lapsed a little yesterday and base runners had several narrow escapes.

Sadler, the former Wheeling infielder, now with Steubenville, showed yesterday's game from the grand stand. His crippled leg is rapidly rounding into shape and it will not be long before he will probably be seen at short for Montgomery's aggregation.

The attendance yesterday was fairly good for a Monday afternoon. However, a good many of them, no doubt, held rain checks from Saturday.

The Jinx is still with us it seems. But just come over this afternoon and see the "Stogies" put the kibosh on 'em. We're bound to do it.

Manager Quinlan on steps for Erie sets a great pace for his team. He calls everything that comes his way in great shape and incidentally is no weakling at the bat.

INTER-STATE LEAGUE.

TWO OUTFIELDERS FOR WHEELING

MANAGER RYAN SIGNS FAST MEN TO RELIEVE PITCHERS.

Thomas, of State University, Here Today and Jones, Formerly With Boston Nationals, on His Way.

It now appears that the outfield question, which has been a source of worriment to Manager Ryan all season, has been settled with the signing of R. C. Thomas, the West Virginia university boy who has been putting up such a great game with his college team all season, and "Billy" Jones, outfielder, formerly of the Boston Nationals. Both these players come well recommended, and it is almost certain that they will add to both the playing and batting strength of the local team.

Word was received from Thomas yesterday that he would report in time to enter today's game and a telegram from Jones also stated that he had started on his way here yesterday, and it is possible that he, too, will be seen in action today.

Thomas has been playing both in the outfield and behind the bat for his team, and is considered one of the best pitchers in college baseball. In the line-up he has been batting all season in fourth place, or clean-up position, and there is no doubt but that he will be able to show a batting strength that will worry more than one Inter-State pitcher.

Jones, the other outfielder, last year was tried out by the Boston Nationals and later let out to Memphis. However, owing to some disagreement, Jones refused to report to Memphis, and has been playing with teams in the Lake Champalain region. Ryan was particularly lucky in landing Jones, as he is considered a corking good sticker and fielder and will help wonderfully to ward bringing the team out of the present slump.

Wants Improvement.

There is probably no one more dissatisfied with the present slump of the locals than Manager Ryan, and in an endeavor to get a fresh start he has been constantly on the lookout for additional players to strengthen his outfit. The outfield in particular received the greatest attention, and every effort was made to land two first-class outfielders that Green and Prieste might be used in regular turn in the box. Playing in the field soon puts a pitcher out of proper condition, and those two players could not be expected to work in the field one day and then take a turn in the box the next. In the signing of Thomas and Jones it looks as if this question has been settled, and from now on the Wheeling outfield will rank equal with any other in the league.

WHEELING HIGH

Is Victorious Over St. Xavier's Manual Training School—Game Was Close Throughout.

In one of the most exciting and closest games played in this vicinity, Wheeling High triumphed over St. Xavier's Manual Training school yesterday afternoon by a rally in the last two innings, tying the score in the eighth and batting out the winning run in the ninth.

Both pitchers twirled good ball, only eight hits being apportioned off each. Woods, for the High school, was invincible up to the eighth, but in this inning he weakened slightly and was relieved in the ninth by McCullough, who entered the box with two on and one out and retired the next two batters on strikes.

Howard, in the box for the Manual boys, also pitched well, but was given very poor support.

This makes the second time this season the High school boys have defeated St. Xavier's, the former game resulting 12 to 6 in their favor. The score:
