U. S. MARINES TO LAND AT FIRST DANGER SIGN

Mexican Officials Begin Anti-American Campaign With Intention to Force Intervention if Possible.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 11.—The rebel attack upon Tampico has been repulsed, according to an official statement issued Thursday by the ministry of war. Gen. Blanquet, the war minister, said the rebels had lost heavily.

TO FORCE INTERVENTION. MEXICO CITY, Dec. 11.—Fears for the safety of foreigners in Mexico City were increased Thursday by two startling developments as follows: 1.—The government officials began an anti-American campaign with the evident intention of uniting the hostile factions by forcing intervention, which the U. S. will order only if foreigners are attacked.

2.—Reports that Zapatista rebels, who have been held at bay south of Cuernavaca in the state of Morelos, have decided to attack the Inter-Oceanic railway next week. If the Inter-Oceanic railway line is cut the flight of Americans and other foreigners to the coast would be prevented, as this is the only connecting link of rail between the cape and Vera Cruz.

SEEK REFUGE IN U. S. PRESIDIO, Tex., Dec. 11.—By U. S. Army Telephone to Marfa)—The family of Gen. Pasquale Orozco, commander of the federal soldiers in Ojinaga, crossed the border Thursday and took refuge in the U. S. The party, consisting of Senora Orozco, her mother and Col. Rafael Flores, left for Marfa in an automobile as soon as they had registered at the customs house and declared their belongings.

Geo. Orozco will have command of the troops in Ojinaga until Gen. Merced returns from the south. Orozco angrily denied reports that he assumed supreme command of the head of his superiors and was preparing to establish a revolution of his own.

TAMPICO, Mexico, Dec. 11.—(By Wireless to Vera Cruz.)—Effective steps to guard the safety of Americans and other foreigners here during the fighting between the rebels and federalists were taken Thursday by Rear Admiral Fletcher, the commander of the U. S. squadron.

A zone of safety for all foreigners was assigned under the guns of the American vessels. The British citizens, the leaders on both sides that fighting would not be allowed near the neutral territory or near valuable property.

KISH SENTENCED TO JEFFERSONVILLE

John Kish, 21 years old, was sentenced to the Indiana reformatory at Jeffersonville for two to 21 years by Judge Funk in the circuit court Thursday. He was found guilty of criminal assault by a jury. Helen Kaman, a 14-year-old girl, was the prosecuting witness.

Along with his verdict the jury returned a recommendation for clemency. Although this was taken into consideration in the sentence, it had no effect in lightening the sentence. The recommendation was as follows: "We, the jurors in the case of the state of Indiana against John Kish, request that the sentence under the law be suspended under the law." It was signed by all of the members of the panel.

Before passing sentence the court said the jury's recommendation was doubtless the result of sympathy for the defendant, who is lame. Kish's attorneys moved the court that sentence be suspended, but this was impossible, the court pointed out, inasmuch as the statute forbids the suspension to anyone found guilty of the crime with which Kish was charged.

DID THIS GIRL MEET DOROTHY ARNOLD'S FATE

MISS JESSIE EVELYN MCCANN.

The family and friends of Miss Jessie McCann, the missing Brooklyn girl, have spread broadcast this description of her: Age—Twenty-three. Height—Five feet seven inches. Weight—One hundred and twenty pounds. Complexion—Light; hair, brown; eyes, blue.

What She Wore—Brown chamoisee dress, brown velvet hat, black furs. Miss McCann, a social worker, is the daughter of a wealthy New York grocer. Her disappearance into the "land of missing girls" resembles that of Dorothy Arnold of a wealthy New York family, who dropped out of sight a few years ago and who was never found.

HILDEBRAND MAY BE MONOMANIAC

Court Gives Farmer One More Chance to Vacate Property—Is Not Sure He Knows What He Is Doing.

Daniel Hildebrand, now believed by his attorneys and many others, to be the subject of a monomania, was given the last chance to vacate the farm taken at suit of the Merchants' National bank and escape further punishment for contempt by Judge Funk in the circuit court Thursday.

Hildebrand was given ten days in which to remove his implements, stock and grain from the farm to his own place adjoining. At the expiration of this time he is to appear in court to report.

When called before the court Thursday morning to answer to the charge of contempt the farmer maintained a negative but asked Atty. Dudley Shively, who has represented him in other matters, to appear for him. Shively at first declined to act, stating that he did not believe Hildebrand spent 30 days in the county jail after being brought in twice for refusing to give up the farm south of the city of which he was dispossessed by bank's suit.

A note given by Andrew Dierneyer was signed by Hildebrand as surety. Hildebrand swears the note was for $500, but judgment for $5,000 was taken on the note.

WOMEN SCRAMBLE FOR ADMITTANCE TO SCHMIDT TRIAL

Father and Sister From Germany Visit Priest in Cell—Refuses to Answer Question Regarding His Innocence.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—Women stormed the court of Judge Foster, Thursday in an attempt to attend the trial of Hans Schmidt, the renegade priest, accused of murdering Anna Amuller, and precipitated a near riot.

When the trial began Judge Foster barred the crowd and curious from his room, but more than 100 women appeared Thursday and moved on the door in a body. They were ordered away by the bailiff on guard at the door and then they "rushed him." Several got by the guard, but other court attendants rushed to his aid and they were driven out. When they were ejected several of the women became hysterical and had to be led from the building.

Slow to Meet Father. Schmidt's aged father was spurned by the defendant Thursday. The old man, who came from Germany with his daughter to aid his son, wept when he was told that Schmidt would not see him.

Threatened to Shoot Her. Mrs. Iglar said the Amuller girl threatened to shoot her because she upbraided her (Miss Amuller) for her relations with Schmidt.

Schmidt Unmoved. To these exhibits the state he paid no heed. He was unmoved when a stenographer read the confession he made to the police and when a physician told minutely of the manner in which the victim's body had been dissected.

By that, Miss Hert said, Schmidt meant he would leave the priesthood. The witness knew of Schmidt's relations with the Amuller girl. Once Anna Amuller had asked her if she would be godmother to the child Anna was expecting.

"I told her maybe," the witness said, "but never did Schmidt, but Anna used to tell me about him. She called him 'The Baron'."

EPWORTH FUND IS $5,570.15 AT NOON

Committee Members Turn in Good Reports at Luncheon—Women Want More Work.

Table with columns: Name, Thursday, Total. Includes Team Capts., Dr. S. A. Clark, Dr. H. M. Miller, etc.

The results of the first day and a half's soliciting shows the $5,000 Epworth hospital fund increasing steadily, the total having been boosted to $5,570.15 by the reports Thursday, at the noonday luncheon at the Y. M. C. A. headquarters.

Not content to get the small territory laid out for them the women asked the executive committee for a larger territory. The plan will be altered to give the women a larger share in the work.

Mrs. Milburn Studebaker has charge of a plan of securing $1,000 to endow a room for the Visiting Nurses' association. Every member of the association will be seen individually by Mrs. Studebaker and when the room is endowed six persons sent to the hospital by the association will be cared for free of charge in this room.

At present there are hospital campaigns on in seven other cities in Marion, Ind., for the purpose of building a hospital. $15,000 was raised by a committee that started out on a seven day effort to raise $40,000. In New Rochelle, N. Y., a town of 11,000 persons, a similar campaign is in progress for raising $90,000 for St. Joseph's hospital.

Invite Preachers In. On Friday of next week the pastors of the local churches will be the guests of the campaign committees at their luncheon.

Several new committees were made Thursday morning. Those added were: Drs. E. J. Lent, J. B. Berteling, Von Barandy and Lewis LaPiere, Atty. Dan Pyle, Fred W. Woodward and C. A. Elliott, of Dr. F. H. Hill's team; Drs. C. C. Terry, Clem Shilder, Chas. Varier and Rev. C. A. Lippincott of W. A. Hager's committee; J. R. Houghton, Guy Staples, Richard Wood and Don McGrover of W. O. Davies' committee; and R. B. Dugdale, C. P. DuComb, F. L. Axtell, A. Hildebrand, Rev. C. A. Decker, F. Storor, C. P. Pettigill, Chas. Stickler and Perry Staley.

POLICE ON HUNT FOR MISSING JEWELRY

CHICAGO, Dec. 11.—The police Thursday began the search of pawnshops for jewelry valued at $20,000, stolen two weeks ago from an express car enroute to New York. It was shipped by the Crescent Jewelry Co., Indianapolis, Ind., to Meskwitz Bros., New York.

The package was missed when the express car reached New York and a secret search was begun by the Adams and Southern Express companies. The jewelry consisted of a necklace with 55 diamonds and 129 diamonds attached to a pendant, a necklace with 189 diamonds and 492 diamonds and a lavalliere containing 21 diamonds.

SEEK MISSING GIRL IN PHILADELPHIA

Father of Jessie McCann Hears That Daughter Was Seen in That City Wednesday.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—Robert G. McCann, the wealthy merchant whose daughter Jessie is missing under circumstances similar to those of Dorothy Arnold, went to Philadelphia Thursday to run down a clue, that Miss McCann is in that city. Inspector Faurot, who has charge of the search for the girl, told Mr. McCann that his daughter had been seen there Wednesday night and detailed two detectives to accompany the merchant upon his mission.

Mr. McCann said he would call upon relatives in Philadelphia on the theory that his daughter may have taken a sudden notion to visit them without notifying her parents.

YOUNGSTERS GIVE 52 PENNIES TO FUND

Oliver School Starts Penny Day in Anticipation of Dime Day Tomorrow—Prizes for School Children.

Thursday was Penny Day in one of the lower grade rooms at the Oliver school. Catching the spirit of Dime Day on which all the higher grade school pupils will give a dime for a fund for the Children's Dispensary, 52 youngsters out at the Oliver school early Thursday morning launched a Penny Day campaign and everyone brought a penny to make a special collection for the dispensary.

Not feeling that she could get all of her companions to give ten cents apiece and still wanting her room to take part in the city-wide contribution, one little girl suggested the plan that all the class bring pennies and have a penny day in the school. Patriotism to her school room and a deep interest in raising money for the dispensary led her to ask her teacher, Miss Ailsa Carlson, to ask her plan.

The matter was approved and it was arranged that every one bring a penny. When school began in the afternoon nearly every pupil present had contributed, and 52 pennies had been brought in. Stimulated by the fact that the proposed new dispensary will probably be erected in the vicinity of the school, practically every one in the class remembered to bring a penny to help raise the fund.

Many of the pupils knew all about the present dispensary, some having little brothers and sisters who have been cared for there while others were well acquainted with the library. The report of the results of the contribution was promptly phoned to the News-Times office after it had been taken up at noon and later one of the pupils came to the office with a little sack of pennies.

Contest for Dolls. The interest shown in the campaign by the school children has resulted in the dispensary directors deciding to give a special list of nine prizes to the school children bringing in the largest number of subscriptions to the dispensary fund.

This doesn't mean the greatest amount of money. The prizes go to those who succeed in getting the largest number of people to help out in the fund. The prizes are such as to make the children's mouths water. Three great dolls, the largest worth $45, will go to the children who are first, second and third on the list. Then come three sturdy outfits, out of which the boys and the girls can devise wonderful things. And the last present is a duck for the kindergarten.

The children who go into the contest must go to the dispensary, 1621 W. Division st., or to the Orphanum, where the dolls are now on exhibition, and get subscription books for the fund. Then they are ready to start.

FEAR AL. HARLIN'S BOOKS MAY SHOW $100,000 SHORT

Anxiety Grows Among Creditors Since Real Estate Man Filed Petition in Voluntary Bankruptcy.

MATTER MAY GO UP BEFORE GRAND JURY

People Who Entrusted Money to Him Are Dissatisfied With Accounting and Want an Investigation.

Incident to the petition in voluntary bankruptcy filed last Friday in the U. S. district court at Indianapolis by Al. G. Harlin of South Bend, developments are coming to light that may result in a number of his transactions being submitted to the grand jury at its February session.

Among the obligations scheduled, as is now asserted by creditors, there are several that involve money received by Harlin in a fiduciary capacity, and which bankruptcy cannot discharge. These creditors also claim to the misappropriation of funds on the part of Harlin may aggregate a total of more than $100,000.

Two of the largest creditors scheduled, in making up the $90,000 liabilities alleged in the petition, is the Thomas E. A. Beyerly estate, $30,000, and the Jason I. Damon estate, $30,000.

The administratrix of the Beyerly estate is the daughter of the deceased, Mrs. Matilda M. Foster, and it is asserted in her behalf that every dollar of the $30,000 scheduled represents misappropriations.

The beneficiaries of the Damon estate is the widow, Mrs. Wilda Damon, and her son, Fred Damon, both of whom now reside at 1436 Greenleaf av., Rogers park, Chicago. They tell a similar story to that of the Beyerly estate representatives with regard to money left with Harlin to loan, but on which they have never received any return aside from the interest.

The Damons claim the shortages in which they are concerned will run nearer $40,000 than $30,000. Rumors of queer business methods on the part of Harlin have been in the air for a couple months, but nothing very definite had come to light until after the petition in bankruptcy was filed.

It now develops that the petition was filed due to the efforts of various creditors to get their matters straightened up.

Harlin had acted as loan and real estate agent for Thomas E. A. Beyerly for some ten or 15 years previous to the latter's death, and but for the necessity of clearing up Harlin's transactions, which proved them to be faulty, the process might have gone on indefinitely.

The first transaction of Harlin's to arouse suspicion was a note for $1,000 given by himself as guardian of a young man named Kuntzman, to himself as Beyerly's agent. The interest had always been paid, but Kuntzman denies ever having received any benefit from the money; that his estate ever received it, or that payment was provided for in settlement of the estate. Further investigation developed that having received loans made from Beyerly's money had been paid and never accounted for, the interest, however, having been kept up, in some cases, even for a number of years.

Damon Findings Similar. The Damon people became wise to Harlin's proceedings in much the same way as the Beyerly's, the result of which they had always received a discharge of a $2,200 mortgage which she had paid upwards to ten years ago. It was Damon money loaned to Mrs. Marble some years previous, and which she had always received the interest, supposing, of course, that the principal amount was still running. The payments had always been made to Harlin. Mrs. Marble holds a receipt for the principal, dated May 23, 1907.

ESCAPES FROM "NEEDLE MEN"

Pretty Hammond Girl Forced to Forsake Companion in Flight From Gang of Young Men.

HAMMOND, Ind., Dec. 11.—Della Graves, 19 years old and pretty, Thursday tells the story of her escape from "needle men". Miss Graves was the companion of Rose Ryan, who eleven days ago was spirited away in an automobile, after having been drugged, supposedly by a "poison needle" in the hands of white slavers.

"Rose and I went to Gary, Ind., to roller skate a week ago Sunday," she said. "Two men, one of them very young, asked to skate with us. They were well dressed and appeared to be gentlemen. They asked where we lived and when we said Hammond, they said they were going there and asked us to ride in their automobile. We both refused to go with them, but they forced us into the machine.

"After we had been riding about 20 minutes I noticed we were going in the wrong direction. Rose was noticing nothing. She seemed to be in a daze. When I began to cry the men said they would take us right home. Another man joined us as we started back and after we five had ridden for maybe an hour, one of the men stopped the car and said he had lost his keys. I saw a light in the window of a small house, and I screamed for help as loudly as I could. The men laughed.

"Rose seemed to be asleep. Two of the men lifted her out of the car. When I saw what they were doing I ran. One man followed me. I had gone more than a mile when I saw a small crowd at a railroad station and ran among them. The man ran up but he couldn't see me hiding behind a seat in the station. I took a car to Gary and caught a train home. I have never seen Rose since."

MISTAKEN FOR ANOTHER. NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—Benjamin Clare, a professional tango dancer, was shot and killed early Thursday while standing with Miss Marie McGee in front of her home in Long Island City.

Clare is believed to have been mistaken for another man who had aroused the jealousy of one of Miss McGee's suitors.

KILL WATCHMAN, LOOT SAFE. AVOCA, Pa., Dec. 11.—Robbers killed watchman Stephen Lucas at the offices of the Pennsylvania Coal company early Thursday, rifled the safe, robbed the clothing of the dead man and escaped. According to the evidence at the scene of the crime, Lucas fought the robbers after he had been shot through the body, but was knocked down and his head beaten to pulp.
