

BIG TEN DISREGARDS 1918 FOOTBALL ELIGIBILITY RULE

Notre Dame Secures Two 1919 Conference Games

Associated Press Service: CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—Intercollegiate athletics in the western conference were restored to a pre-war basis today at a meeting of the Big Ten faculty committee.

The freshman rule, wiped out when the war department assumed control of the universities to establish student army training corps, was restored, and the faculty committee again came into control of athletics. The committee decided to disregard eligibility rules pertaining to the 1918 football season, which makes it possible for those who played varsity football to compete for four years in that sport.

Although the committee voted to ignore eligibility rules for football players, the freshman rule will now go into effect, and no first year men will be permitted to take part in athletic contests for the remainder of the collegiate year.

Annual Field Meet.

The annual conference outdoor track and field championship will be held at the University of Chicago on June 7, and the indoor championships at Northwestern university on March 22. The swimming championships will be decided at Northwestern on March 21, and the tennis championships at the University of Chicago on May 29, 30 and 31.

Prof. G. A. Goodenough, of the University of Illinois, was elected chairman of the faculty committee to succeed Prof. W. V. Pooley, of Northwestern, and Prof. J. A. F. Pyre, of the University of Wisconsin, was re-elected secretary.

Prof. Thomas A. Moran, of Purdue, was appointed chairman of the committee to revise the list of eligible colleges, which are taken into consideration from an athletic standpoint. Prof. James Paige, of the University of Minnesota, and Prof. Thomas E. French, of the Ohio State university, were named to serve on the committee.

JESSE WINTERS

Jesse Winters, the most promising rookie of the Giants' pitching staff last season, will return to the Giants next year. Winters made good with the Giants from the start. The youngster is to be recalled at the opening of the coming season and great things are expected of him.

BASEBALL READY FOR BIG SEASON

With Official O. K. by War Departments, Magnates Make 1919 Plans.

BY JACK VETOCK.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—Baseball is coming back into its own next week. With the official stamp of approval placed on the game by the war department, the magnates will go about the business of making plans for the 1919 season with the realization that the stigma attached to baseball by the "work or fight" order has been lifted.

The annual meetings of the two major leagues will feature the week's activities. The National league club owners will get together here for their annual pow-wow at the Waldorf-Astoria on Tuesday. The American league will meet in Chicago Thursday. There is talk of a joint meeting of committees representing the two leagues, to be held at the close of the official league meetings.

Since the abrupt close of the 1918 baseball season, in compliance with the orders of the war department, plans for the rehabilitation of the game, when the time was ripe for bringing it back, have been discussed by the magnates. They mean to restore baseball, minus some of its erstwhile objectionable features, in a way that will satisfy fan and make the fans forget such incidents as the players' strike in Boston, the Perry case and a hundred and one petty squabbles that have marred the pastime in other years.

Watched With Interest.

The National league meeting here will be watched with interest. The club owners of the staid old league are about to elect a president to succeed John K. Tener. Just who will be chosen to lead the league out of the wilderness is a mystery. Branch Rickey, now abroad, might have a better chance to uphold the predictions of his friends as a candidate were he on this side of the pond. Judge McQuade, New York magistrate, and an ardent supporter of baseball for years, has also been mentioned. The Cincinnati club may dig up its mysterious Judge Brown of Louisville again, and John A. Heydler, who has been filling the office very capably since Mr. Tener resigned, may be returned to power after some years' absence from the official chair. Garry Herrmann has also been suggested.

Among other things the National league will take up the question of retrenchment in the way of players' salaries and the overhead expenses of its ball clubs, both at home and on the road. The International league also will meet next week. Pres't John H. Farrell has called the club owners together here Monday and plans for the 1919 season will be formed. The new International league was the only minor league to finish the 1918 season.

CHAPMAN PANNED FOR FOOTBALL ACTION

RAY CHAPMAN.

Ray Chapman, shortstop of the Cleveland American League team, whose actions at the recent football match between Pittsburgh and the Cleveland Naval Reserve team at Cleveland caused a sharp rebuke from Director of Athletics Miller, of Pittsburgh, who, according to a report from Cleveland, said: "There is no question but that we were robbed of the game in the interest of outsiders. One of the most disgusting exhibitions of unfairness was the actions of Ray Chapman, shortstop of the Cleveland Americans, who in every way possible harassed the head linesman and attempted to stop him from calling Cleveland men off-side, using some of the foulest language ever heard on a ball field." The match resulted in Pittsburgh suffering its first defeat in four years, the score being 10 to 9.
