SHE OBJECTS TO WAY NEW YORKERS TALK

You may hear a lot about Chicago nasal twang and the blatant voice of the Westerner, but Mrs. Louise G. de Quesada, translator and linguist, declared that they have nothing on the genuine New York voice when it comes to making both night and day hideous. The subway scream and the Broadway babble are so incomparably worse that they aren't in the same class at all.

COPP ELECTED AS CHAIRMAN OF NEW RECREATION BODY

Plan Organization of Business
Girls' Recreation League.

C. W. Copp was elected chairman of the municipal recreation committee at the meeting of the committee held Tuesday evening at the school administration building. Mr. Copp succeeds Judge L. M. Hamersmidt, who retires after serving as chairman for four years.

The office of secretary-treasurer was divided, Mrs. E. Krueger being elected secretary and Mrs. C. S. Smogor, treasurer.

Plans for the organization of The Business Girls' Recreation League were discussed at the meeting. The committee will provide a director for the league who will supervise all volleyball, base ball, basketball, tennis and other contests of the league. Col. Bullock, recreational director, will hold a meeting at Leeper park Wednesday afternoon for the purpose of organizing the league.

G. O. P. HEAD SAYS SEN. HARDING WILL REMAIN AT MARION

Will H. Hays Declares Presidential Nominee Will Adhere to Campaign.

By Associated Press: MARION, O., Aug. 10.—Unaltered adherence to Sen. Harding's front porch program of campaigning was announced at his headquarters Tuesday night after the progress of the plan had been reviewed at a consultation of the republican nominee with active leaders of his party.

The announcement was made by William Hays, the national chairman, who said the candidate and all of his close advisers were agreed that most of his addresses should be delivered here, though he might go to other cities for "a couple of special speeches for exceptional events." He added that so far no speaking dates away from Marion had been arranged.

Agree on Subject.

Harry M. Daugherty, who was Sen. Harding's pre-convention manager and now is a member of the campaign executive committee, also declared that there was perfect agreement on the subject, and that Gov. Cox's plans for a whirlwind campaign would result in no alteration of the plan.

Both of the leaders said they had brought the candidate gratifying reports of the impression made throughout the country by his stay-at-home method of campaigning, which more than offset the "great pressure" that had been brought to bear to induce him to speak in various localities.

There has been no thought of a change in plans relating to Sen. Harding's part in the campaign, said Mr. Hays. "It has been a conviction of Sen. Harding that he can speak deliberately at home and beat the cover variety of interesting topics, and neither he nor his close friends have found a reason to change their minds."

It was said at the start that the decision is not unalterable, but there is no program in contemplation which involves a change. A complete change of plan for exceptional events are not unlikely when the proper time comes.

Hold Conference.

Besides Chairman Hays and Mr. Daugherty, the conference conferred during the day with Edmund M. Wasmuth, republican state chair-elect for Indiana and the possibility of a speech during October in Indianapolis was understood to have been discussed. Mr. Wasmuth also talked about plans for delegates to come here from Indiana and told Sen. Harding that he expected at least four or five large groups of voters from that state would make pilgrimages here during the summer.

His talks with party leaders occupied virtually all of Sen. Harding's day and he left his office only to cast his vote in the state primary.

Many details of campaign management were considered at the nominee's conferences with his party leaders. The suffrage ratification situation in Tennessee is understood to have been one of the subjects discussed and it was indicated that the republican organization probably would bring increasing pressure to bear for ratification of the League of Nations. It also was considered and Mr. Hays said afterward that he considered the lines of the fight daily were becoming more definite.

Gov. Cox's View.

"Gov. Cox," said the chairman, "has thoroughly embraced the Wilson doctrine. He stands unequivocally for the Wilson administration without any reservations as well as for the Wilson league. It is square up to the electorate to endorse or repudiate the last seven years of American history. He is in Washington. The people require an accounting of the democratic stewardship, and nothing that the opposition can do will prevent the demand of the people for that accounting."

"We are ready for the election today. The extent of the republican success will be measured in the direct proportion with the knowledge on the part of the people of the facts. The people know the facts. There is no doubt about republican success."

visions of vital importance to it, and especially those concerning its sovereignty over the territory of the former Russian empire, to be held in abeyance.

By this feeling of friendship and honorable obligation to the great nation whose brave and heroic sacrifice contributed so much to the successful termination of the war, the government of the United States was guided in its reply to the Russian note received on October 15, 1919, and in its persistent refusal to recognize the Baltic states as separate nations independent of Russia. The same spirit was manifested in the note of the government of March 24, 1920, in which it was stated, with reference to certain proposed settlements in the near east that "no final decision should be reached without the consent of Russia."

Without Approval.

"In line with these important declarations of policy the United States withheld its approval of the decision of the supreme council at Paris recognizing the independence of Georgia and Azerbaijan and Armenia. Rear Admiral Newton A. McCully, finally while gladly giving recognition to the independence of Armenia, pointed out the position that the final determination of its boundaries must not be made without Russia's cooperation and agreement. Not only this, but a considerable part of the territory of the new state of Armenia, when it shall be defined, formerly belonged to the Russian empire, equally important is the fact that Armenia must have the good will and the prospective friendship of Russia if it is to remain independent and free."

These illustrations show with what consistency the government of the United States has been guided in its foreign policy by a royal unwillingness to help in the grip of a non-representative government, whose only sanction is brutal force. Russia shall be weakened further by a policy of friendship and cooperation in other than Russian interests.

May Support Move.

"With the desire of the allied powers to bring about a peaceful solution of the Russian problem in Europe this government is of course in hearty accord and will support any justifiable steps to that end. It is equally true, however, that a recognition of the existing regime would promote, how less accomplish this object, and it is therefore averse to any dealings with the present regime beyond the most narrow boundaries to which a discussion of an armistice can be confined."

The present rulers of Russia do not rule by the will or the consent of any considerable proportion of the Russian people is an incontestable fact. Although nearly two and a half years have passed since they seized the reins of government promising to protect the constituent assembly against alleged conspiracies against it, they have not yet permitted the election of the constituent assembly. In the nature of a popular election at the moment when the work of creating a popular representative government based upon universal suffrage was nearing completion, the bolsheviks, although in number an inconsiderable minority of the people, by force and cunning seized the reins of government and have continued to rule with savage oppression to maintain themselves in power."

Express Hope.

"Without any desire to interfere in the internal affairs of the Russian people or to suggest what kind of government they should have, the government of the United States does express the hope that they soon will find a way to set up a government representing their will and purpose. When that time comes the United States will consider the measures of practical assistance which can be taken to promote the restoration of Russia, provided Russia has not taken itself wholly out of the hands of friendly interest of other nations, by the pillage and oppression of the Poles."

It is not possible for the government of the United States to recognize the present rulers of Russia as a government with which the relations can be maintained. This conclusion is based upon the fact that there is nothing to do with particular political or social structure which the Russian people themselves may wish to embrace. It rests upon the whole of the facts. These facts, which none disputes, have convinced the government of the United States, against its will, that the existing regime in Russia is a regime of negation of every principle of honor and good faith, and every usage and convention underlying the whole structure of international law; the negation, in short, of every principle upon which it is possible to base harmonious and trustful relations, whether of nations or of individuals. The responsible leaders of the regime have frequently and openly boasted that they are willing to sign agreements and undertakings with foreign powers, while not having the slightest intention of observing such undertakings or carrying out such agreements. Their attitude of disregard of obligations voluntarily assumed, into, they base upon the theory that no compact or agreement made with a non-bolshevik government has any moral force for them. They have not only avowed this doctrine but have exemplified it in practice."

Promote Revolution.

Indeed, upon numerous occasions the responsible spokesmen of this power, and its official agencies, have declared that it is their understanding that the very existence of bolshevism in Russia, the maintenance of their own rule, depends, and must continue to depend, upon the occurrence of revolutions in all other great civilized nations, including the United States, which will overthrow and destroy their governments and set up bolshevik rule in their stead. They have made it quite plain that they intend to use every means, including, of course, diplomatic agencies, to promote

FEARED HE MIGHT SHOOT RELATIVES, BERGDOLL'S ALIBI

Draft Evader Testifies Tuesday at Court Martial Proceedings.

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—Erwin Rudolph Bergdoll, being court-martialed on Governor's island, charged with desertion from the army in evading the draft law, did not want to enter the army and be in position "where he might have to shoot relatives on the other side" according to testimony Tuesday by William E. Ellis, who was chairman of the local draft board of Broomfield, Pa., the first of his relatives.

Erwin, with two friends went to his home the night before Bergdoll was to be physically examined for the army and asked that he be excused from service, Ellis said, adding that Bergdoll's friends explained that he did not want to serve in the army because "if he went to the other side he might have to shoot some of his relatives."

Bergdoll disappeared after he was told that as he was an American citizen he must answer the draft call, and that it was his duty to submit to physical examination, Ellis said.

Three witnesses, all men associated with the operation of the draft, testified Tuesday that Bergdoll was properly induced, seduced, and ordered to report for physical examination.

When Mrs. Housewife Buys the Sunday Dinner

In the days when prices were lower than they are now, Mrs. Housewife went over to the corner grocery on Saturday afternoon and bought whatever she could find that would make a nice Sunday dinner.

She bought promiscuously—a little of this, a little of that. Before she went to the store she, perhaps, had little idea of just what food was going to be served at that Sunday dinner—the meal that is the biggest one of the week in most families.

—But today Mrs. Housewife buys differently. Higher prices and the advancement of the culinary art to a science has caused this change in her method of buying.

She does her buying as systematically as she does her cooking. She knows pretty well in advance just what is going to grace the table for that Sunday dinner. She plans it well and she knows just the exact amount of vegetables, flour, eggs and the many, many other necessary things, needed to make that dinner a success—and she takes just as much pride in making that dinner a success as her husband does in making his business a success.

After the dinner has been planned she starts her buying—systematic buying. She knows that the wide-awake grocers and butchers advertise so she looks to their stores as the place where she can find the best quality at the best price. She knows, too, that which appears in the Friday afternoon and Saturday morning editions, carries the advertisements of these wide-awake dealers in foodstuffs and she makes up her lists accordingly.

She also finds on that page the market quotations, recipes and other news that interests her—making another reason for her to turn to that page.

Grocers and butchers are given an opportunity by The News-Times to make their appeal to the housewife just at the time when she is buying and in the place to which she looks to find the articles she wants for that Sunday dinner.

Let the advertising department tell you how you can cash in on this Sunday dinner, Mr. Grocer and Mr. Butcher.

BRITAIN FEARS POLISH CRISIS

Premier Lloyd George Working Hard for Peaceful Settlement.

By Associated Press: LONDON, Aug. 10.—The Polish crisis is approaching its climax. Premier Lloyd George's speech to the House of Commons Tuesday showed he is still working for a peaceful settlement.

Leo Kaimanoff, one of the Soviet emissaries in London, refused to deny to the premier the Russian armistice terms and at the same time issued threats to the British press with the evident object, it is said, in some quarters of strengthening the hands of the British labor party.

They are hard terms, demanding demobilization of the Polish army and war industries and complete disarmament, except for fifty thousand men. Russia, on the other hand, undertakes to withdraw her troops from the Polish front, reduce her troops on the frontier and grant Poland a frontier stipulated by the British government, with additional territorial concessions to Poland in the Byalystok and Cholyn regions.

Mr. Lloyd-George in his pronouncement declared no action would be taken except to "support the struggle for Polish existence and independence. He admitted the Polish attack on Russia, was unjustified and that the Soviet government was entitled to demand guarantees against a repetition of such an attack."

tion to prevent the absorbing of the new republic into soviet Russia. Great Britain's views on this subject were outlined Tuesday in the British House of Commons by Premier Lloyd George.

There apparently, however, was a difference as between the views of the British and American governments on the questions of dealing with the soviet and preservation of the true boundaries of the former Russian empire.

The American note did not go into details as to the "available means" which might be employed in protecting the independence of Poland and there was no information as to the views of the United States government on the blockade and economic measures decided upon at Hythe. Likewise there was only an implied response to Poland's request for a declaration of the "moral support" of the United States in the fight against the soviet.

FERMENTED FRUIT JUICES MAY NOW BE USED BY FARMERS

According to a ruling made by J. F. Kramer, Federal prohibition director, farmers will be allowed the personal use of fermented fruit juices containing any amount of alcohol.
