NOT OBJECTIONABLE.

Court Holds That a Boy Sitting on Steps Was Not Causing Annoyance and Was Not Guilty of Corner Lounging.

In the City Court, this morning, Thomas Nichols, a boy, had a hearing on the charge of corner lounging. He was represented by Attorney Robert G. Harman. Police Officer Boeck testified that Nichols and five other boys were lounging on the corner of Fourth and Franklin streets, last Sunday, and when he ordered them off the corner Nichols refused to go, claiming that he had a sore leg. He said he lifted the boy who was sitting on a step, whereupon the latter struck at him, and he then placed him under arrest.

Attorney Harman contended that the boy sitting on the steps did not obstruct the pavement in any way, and that the officer had no right to arrest the boy unless the people occupying the house objected to him being on the steps. The court dismissed the case.

Annie Archer, colored, charged with acting in a disorderly manner toward another colored woman, was dismissed, as there was not sufficient evidence against her. The woman was represented by Attorney D. J. Reinhardt.

Martin Siska, charged with non-support of his minor children, was dismissed, but the promise was held up against him. He promised that he would support his children in the future.

LACERATED BY A DOG.

Eight-years-old Fred Buckenhuys Injured at Fifth and Van Buren Streets Last Evening.

Frederick Buckenhuys, the 8-years-old son of Anton Buckenhuys of 1023 West Fifth street, had an encounter with a large dog, early last evening, near his home, as a result of which the boy's face was lacerated.

The boy told his mother that he and another boy were running along a street when the dog approached in an opposite direction and jumped up on him, knocking him down, after which, according to the boy, the dog bit him on both cheeks, causing the blood to flow. It was reported that the dog's claws had cut the boy, but the little fellow feels sure that the dog bit him.

Dr. Willard Springer was summoned and cauterized the wounds, which appeared to be a trifling swollen, but when inquiry was made at the house this morning it was stated that the boy's condition was favorable and no serious result is looked for. So far as is known, the dog has not shown any signs of rabies.

years," he explained, "and did all that I could to land him in the Senate, without accomplishing it, and I could not do any more."

At this juncture a Philadelphia train came along and the Senator boarded it.

DEMOCRATS TO MEET AT DOVER.

When it became known that the governor had issued the call for a special session of the Legislature for Thursday next, Democratic leaders began discussing the best policy to be pursued by the Democratic members of the General Assembly. Willard Saulsbury, chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee, issued the following call:

"To the Democrats of the State of Delaware:

"The unprecedented action of the Governor of this State in calling the special session of the Legislature for May 31st, demands the earnest and patriotic consideration of every Democrat and independent voter in the State. Therefore, all Democrats and independent voters are requested to assemble in the town of Dover on Wednesday, May 30th, 1906, at 7.30 o'clock, p. m., for the purpose of consulting and advising with this committee and the Democratic members of the General Assembly concerning the attitude and course of the Democracy on this extraordinary occasion."

BALLAD OF A SPECIAL SESSION.

The Court House Poet.

Jed Addicks, with his scheming mind 'Pon the Senate still inclined, And eyes alert for any move, He was elected to the Senate by the vote of the General Assembly.

"I have it now, I'm sure," said he; "The way to win, to my impression, Is found right here: A special session!"

"But how to get it called?" He frowned. "To make a move and then get downed Would make me no more than a clown."

"I have it, I have it and bawled For Henry A. for Senator. I'll swear I want the job no more— And, hearing this, the great P. Lea Will call a special session—see?"

"But when that special session meets We'll see 'bout Senatorial seats; That vacant place will come my way; My good friends can the caucus say; They'll surely make me the nominee And then the Senator I'll be."

My scheme is good—it cannot fail, In spite of Little Frank and Cale."

The word passed round, the suckers bit, "A special session—sure, that's it!" And eagerly they signed the plea That made request of Governor Lea— All save Doc Moore, that foxy man, Who hid aloof, part of the plan, To see that none should be elected In case Jay Ed's name was rejected.

Meanwhile, Jay Frank and Dr. Cale, With bulging eyes and faces pale, Scared half to death by Jay Ed's game, Strove frantically to join the same. They thought the thing was fixed for sure, That Henry A. would be Senator, And so they followed the grand procession That led the way to a special session.

Then Jay Ed roared and laughed and Till he tore big holes in his Sunday pants, And he said: "My scheme is working well— I'll go to the Senate, they'll go to—; Just wait till my clans in Dover meet, And I'll get that Senatorial seat."

And when it's all over we'll easily see That that whoever is elected, Jay Ed won't be.

Back from the North came Governor Lea; Surprised to learn of the move was he; But he failed to tumble to Jay Ed's scheme. And took it all in like a weird pipe dream. The call he issued, the members will meet, And Jay Ed will juggle for that fine seat, And when it's all over we'll easily see That that whoever is elected, Jay Ed won't be.

MYSTERIOUS MR. SQUIGLES.

Man of Mystery Arrives From San Francisco to Visit Fair.

Mr. Squigles is in town ahead of schedule. He was not booked to arrive until tomorrow morning, but made good connections in Chicago and is here today to conduct a new and novel contest for a valuable bedroom suite for the Industrial Fair at Brandywine Springs.

Mr. Squigles will be on the fair grounds every day at specified places at specified hours, and to any person who can detect him as the mysterious man from San Francisco he will give one hundred chances on the bedroom suite.

The contest bids fair to be an amusing one and someone is going to be a bedroom suite in after the fun is all over. Mr. Squigles will likely be caught many times; he will play no favorites. The rules of the contest are:

Every 25c purchase at McMahon Bros. store entitles you to one chance. Every coupon cut from the daily newspapers and presented at the store entitles you to one chance.

Every time you catch Mr. Squigles he will present you with a coupon good for 100 chances.

Mr. Squigles will only give 100 chances away each day, as it will be necessary for him to leave the grounds when once caught to change costume.

DEMOCRATIC MEETINGS.

Wilmington Hundred Convention Will be Held This Evening.

The delegates elected in the several wards of the city to attend a Wilmington hundred Democratic convention, for the selection of county committee, will assemble tonight at the headquarters of the Young Men's Democratic Club, when three committeemen will be elected, Wilmington being entitled to that number.

No prediction could be made this morning as to who are likely to be elected, as there appears to be a great deal of rivalry. It seemed quite likely, however, that ex-Mayor Charles D. Bird being entitled to that number, and also that John F. Malloy would be chosen. Mr. Malloy is secretary of the county committee. For the third place those mentioned are City Councilman James Kana, Representative Frank M. Sevier, Building Inspector William M. Connelly and ex-Auditor John Boughman.

The County Committee will hold a meeting at the same place on Thursday morning and effect organization for the ensuing term. William F. Kurtz is the retiring chairman.

AMUSEMENTS.

Rain prevented the elaborate opening which had been arranged for the Unique Theatre last night. The opening will take place tonight, and the programme will be as arranged for last night.

"In Brightest America" was produced at the Garrick Theatre last evening by members of Company A, National Guard of Delaware. The play is really a musical show with variations and the work of the amateurs in the first part was a feature.

"Texas Hank" was interlarded, and it may be of interest to state that his part as a cowboy comes natural, for before he took up his art studies at the studio of Howard Pyle, he was a cow puncher on the ranges of Texas. He is now a rising young artist and his pictures appear at intervals in the leading magazines. There will be another performance tonight.
