New Registration Was Ordered by City Council

Perhaps the most important matter to receive attention at the meeting of the city council last night was the ordering of an entirely new registration of the qualified voters of the city. All who have registered in Forrest county will be eligible to register in the city, and those who have already registered in both places this year will not be required to register again. The city clerk was instructed to order a new set of books and all qualified voters on the old books will be transcribed to this. This means an entirely new registration for both city and county and it was the fact that Forrest county was making a new registration that prompted the city council to make a new one for the city.

The matter of the crematory was discussed, the contracting firm of Lewis & Kitchen of Chicago, having presented a bill for the balance due on the crematory. The clerk was instructed to notify the firm that the work was not satisfactory.

The pound committee was instructed to secure a location for the pound pen and have it moved. Geiger & Brannon were selected to keep the pound pen and attend to all the matters in connection therewith, for which they are to be allowed $50 per month each.

An order was made to open up Redus street.

Balance of the fine against Harrison Jones was ordered remitted.

Weekly pay-roll (free labor) was abolished.

The finance committee was instructed to arrange with the banks of the city for securing a loan of $20,000 to pay current expenses until taxes are collected.

Convicted By a Jury for Unlawful Sale of Liquor

Another blind tiger conviction was made in Justice Wall's court yesterday.

This time it was a Syrian Tom Abdulhud, who was tried on same charge in Justice Wall's court some time ago and at which time the jury disagreed, a mistrial being entered.

Yesterday the case was called again and another trial was arranged.

A jury was secured and the case went to trial. Attorneys Neil Currie and E. A. Anderson represented the defense and District Attorney McLaurin represented the state.

After hearing the evidence and the able argument of the attorneys in the case, the jury returned a verdict of guilty.

Justice Wall fixed the punishment at $300 and 90 days in jail. An appeal to the circuit court was taken.

The blind tiger dealers, their agents and abettors, seem to be having a hard time these days.

"Would you send a man who uses profanity to congress?"

"I dunno," answered Farmer Corn-tassel. "Of course I don't approve of profanity; but, then, I'd want him to be able to hold his own in any of them arguments that come up."—Washington Star.

"Charley, dear," said a young matron, "the baby is trying to talk again. It's wonderful how he takes after you."

"What is he talking about?" "I think it must be politics. He started very calmly, but in a few minutes he was as angry and red in the face as could be."

TOMB OF THE MINGS.

It is a Risky Place For a Traveler to Visit Alone.

Every traveler in China goes to the tomb of the Mings if he stays more than a few days in Shanghai. The Chinese consider the Mings the greatest rulers of the ancient kingdom, and they rank second only to Confucius. The tomb is composed of two colossal figures facing each other and elaborately carved in the style affected by Chinese artists centuries ago. Seen in Central park or Versailles they would look grotesque enough, but standing as they do among bleak and lonely hills, outlined against the clear blue oriental sky, they have a rude grandeur and imposing simplicity which make them seem fit guardians of imperial dust.

It is not an easy journey the tourist must take if he wishes to pay his respects to the stone giants, nor is it a trip advisable for a woman to undertake, as it lies through a region where hatred of the "white devils" is considered as much a part of the Chinaman's religion as the worship of his ancestors. A donkey and a guide are necessary, and it is also wise to get a party of sightseers together for the excursion if possible and to go well armed, for once a foolhardy traveler started forth alone from the hotel on the Bubbling Well road, Shanghai, to visit the tomb of the Mings, and he was never heard of again. There are many places in the purlieus of Shanghai even where it is imprudent for a white man to venture alone in broad daylight. An extra donkey is also needed to carry provisions as well as the cameras, for most tourists want a picture of the towering images which have so successfully withstood the wear of the centuries.—New York Press.

Odd North German Custom.

In northern Germany a familiar figure of the rural districts is a quaint old gentleman whose hat is very much decorated with flowers and particolored ribbons and who carries a staff to the top of which is tied a huge bunch of real or artificial flowers knotted to it by long streamers of similar ribbons. According to the district, his costume also is old fashioned and unusual in other ways. He is the "hochzeitbitter," or person employed among the country folk to go from house to house and invite guests to attend a wedding. He delivers himself of a set speech in an old "Platt Deutsch" rhyme when he arrives at each place, accompanying it with wagging of the head and stamping of the staff, and is generally in rather a jovial condition by the time his day's labors are ended.

Plenty of Advice.

"What are you doing for your cold?" "Nothing. My friends are looking after it."—Harper's Weekly.
