LACK MORAL COURAGE.

One Great Reason For Women's Failure to Make Progress.

"That was a fine dinner we had at the club," Jones remarked to his friend Brown.

"I wonder why we don't have entertainments like that at our club," remarked Mrs. Jones to Mrs. Brown.

"Ask me something harder," retorted that slangy but experienced woman. "Women don't hang together, that's why. They are always quarreling, always jealous, and then, too, they lack moral courage."

"I never heard that last thing mentioned before as the cause why women's clubs are not more successful!"

"That's because you haven't a thoughtful mind, my child. I'll prove it to you that it is at the bottom of a good deal of the trouble. In men's clubs does the

"I'M SORRY TO CUT HER, BUT"—poor man get snubbed because his talent is less gorgeous than that of his rich brother? Let a woman appear in a last year's tailor made at a smart club, one she has been seen in a good deal, and her speech will not receive half the attention her old gown will excite.

Men Are So Different.

"Then, again, friendship and club feeling mean very little to women. Men will stand by each other regardless of misfortune, poverty, scandal even. Women—well, they simply haven't the moral courage. They take their opinions first from their parents and then from their husbands. The other day I was walking with a friend, and we met a woman with whom she had been intimate for years. To my surprise, when this woman bowed my friend cut her dead. I expressed surprise. I couldn't help it. She looked very embarrassed and said: 'I am very sorry to cut her, but she has had trouble with her husband and has left him, and John says I mustn't have her at the house any more.' 'But,' I exclaimed, 'has she done anything wrong?' 'I don't know anything about that. It's the scandal,' she answered. 'People are talking about her.'"

"Now, isn't that the limit? Would a man desert his friend just at the time the latter needed him most? And would he do it just because his wife asked him? Not much if he were a real man." HELEN CLIFTON.

the most. The color effects are usually good, and there is an absence of stiff "interior decoration" effects.

The room in the picture belongs to a girl who is on the editorial staff of a magazine. The walls are covered with striped paper in a soft tone of yellow. Colored magazine illustrations framed in brown or gilt ornament the wall.

Counsel for Thomas J. Stanton has instituted proceedings in the Supreme Court to compel the Pennsylvania Railroad to tear down its retaining wall on the elevated tracks from in front of 35 Haddon avenue, Camden. Stanton claims he has a deed showing he owns the ground on which the wall now stands.

This is to be owned by the colored people only, who will become stock holders in a corporation already formed. On this land houses and stores are to be erected.

At a meeting of the taxpayers of Mount Holly last week it was voted that a five year contract be entered into with the Public Service Corporation with the understanding that gas to light the city be furnished at one dollar per thousand feet instead of one twenty-five. ### THE TAIL OF A COMET.

Its Ever Changing Mass and Why It Flees From the Sun.

The tail of a comet is not formed of the same particles which composed it yesterday or even an hour or a moment ago. It is constantly being renewed at the expense of the nucleus. As the long stream of black smoke from the neighboring factory or mill is being continually renewed by fresh particles of carbon released by the combustion going on in the furnace below, so is the wonderful luminous train of cometary bodies being constantly replenished by particles flying from or rather driven from the nucleus by the intense heat of the sun.

Then, again, how infinitely small and how intensely luminous must these particles that go to make up the tail of a comet be! This thought is suggested by the fact that it has been proved that in some cases the nucleus of comets which are only a few hundred miles in diameter will have enormous fanlike tails stretching across space for a distance exceeding 200,000,000 miles and having a bulk exceeding that of the sun by more than 10,000 times! Professor E. E. Barnard beautifully illustrates the formation of a comet's tail by "supposing" thus: "Suppose, for example, that the nucleus of a comet is composed of ice. Then suppose the heat of the sun to be so intense as to rapidly melt that portion of the ice globe exposed to the action of its rays, which are strong enough to immediately convert it into vapor, which ascends toward the sun."

"Imagine now a fierce wind blowing out from the sun, causing the vapor which meets it to be whirled out into space behind the comet. This will clearly illustrate the theory of the formation of a comet's tail, only that the nucleus of the comet is not ice and the vapor is not water vapor, neither is the force which drives it away from the sun a fierce wind."

The unknown force hinted at by the astronomer above quoted readily explains why a comet's tail, as a rule, points in an opposite direction to the sun. The Russian astronomer Bredichin distinguishes three different types of cometary tails—those composed of particles having the specific gravity of hydrogen, those having the specific gravity of hydrocarbon gas and a third class having all the peculiarities of an equal mixture of hydrogen and iron vapor.

BEAUTY SPOTS.

Japanese women glid their teeth. In Greenland women paint their faces blue and yellow.

The ladies of Arabia stain their fingers and toes red.

In India the women of three high castes paint their teeth black.

Borneo women dye the hair in fantastic colors—pink, green, blue and scarlet. A Hindoo bride is anointed from head to foot with grease and saffron.

In New Holland scars made carefully with shells form elaborate patterns on the ladies' faces.

In some South American tribes the women draw the front teeth, esteeming as an ornament the black gap thus made.

In New Guinea the ladies wear nose rings, piercing the nose in the same fenshish way that civilized women pierce the ears.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

His Working Clothes.

Lord Ellenborough once reproved a bricklayer for coming to be sworn in his usual habiliments. "When you have to appear before this court it is your bounden duty to be clean and decent in your appearance." "Upon my life, if it comes to that," said the bricklayer, "I'm every bit as well dressed as your lordship." "How do you mean, sir?" exclaimed the chief justice angrily. "Well, it's just this. You come here in your working clothes, and I come in mine."

It was very seldom, however, that anybody got the better of Lord Ellenborough. A witness dressed in a fantastical manner and who had given discreditable evidence was asked in cross examination what he was. "I employ myself," he said, "as a surgeon." "But does any one else," inquired the chief justice, "employ you as a surgeon?"

The Living.

Sis—Why did you throw up your situation, Ernest? Brother—Because I am going to get married. Sis—But what will you live on—love? Brother—Oh, no! We are going to live on my love's father.
