Is a winner. The prices are not met anywhere, and the goods are new and up-to-date. The variety is bewildering. One can hardly imagine the articles that are shown for the money.

For One Cent—many things that have always brought 5 cents. For Two Cents—the bargains appear greater, the range larger to select from hundreds of articles that you always pay 5 to 10 cents for. For Three Cents—Larger, better and more of a variety, better quality, but the bargains are not excellent—and for Five Cents many articles that bring 10 and 15 cents. The surprise becomes greater when you see the large, the good, the fine, the unusual, quality, size, style, and value, for such a small amount, and the Ten Cent offerings are wonderful when compared with the usual prices asked for the same goods elsewhere. The unfortunate result they say could not be foreseen before the unfavorable symptoms declared themselves and could not have been prevented by any human action. Pending the completion and publication of the official reports of the postmortem, they state they refuse to make any further statement.
