Names That Mant Speed to Make Comebacks

WORLD RECORDS on land and water once meant Mauretania and Bluebird. Now the famous names are news again. Rising against the sky (right) is the bow of 35,677-tons liner Mauretania, undergoing at Liverpool, England, reconversion to a peacetime luxury

The British vessel, completed in 1939, replaced her famous namesake which held, from 1907 to 1929, the record for the fastest North Atlantic crossing. During 7 years of war service she safely carried 330,000 Allied troops across Atlantic, Indian and Australian waters. Her reconversion includes the scraping and painting of her hull, the overhauling of her 25-tons propellers, and the inspection of her three 9-tons anchors.

Smiling below is Sir Malcolm Campbell, once holder of the vorld land-speed record, and still, at 62, holder of the world water-speed record. His hand rests on a scale model of a new jet-powered speedboat when its advanced, streamlined design was being wind-tunnel tested for him at Hayes, Middlesex, England,

When his new boat, to be called Bluebird, like all his record-breakers, is finished, the British speed king hopes to better his present 141.74 m.p.h. for a dash across water.
