ive Ceremonies at the Metropolis the Capital and Other Cities...The G. A. R. Posts Salute and Dip Their Colors to Mr. Cleveland A General Observe of the Day Reported Everywhere.

NEW YORK, May 31.—Decoration Day opened cloudy and warm, and the sky had a threatening appearance the greater part o the day. Business was almost entirely suspended, the banks were closed and the custom house and postoffice were only open for a few hours for the entry and clearance of vessels. The city bore a holiday appearance, the flags flying at half-mast from the public and many private buildings. All the statues in and about the city were decorated with flowers and the city were decorated with flowers and flags. The sport-loving patrons attended athlectic games, base ball matches, horse races, regattas and other amisements of which there was an abundance.

which there was an abundance.

The procession was one of the largest and most successful that has ever turned out on a similar occasion, and thousands from all parts of the city thronged the sidewalks on either side of the line of march and the large plazas in Madison and Union squares, through which it passed.

President Cleveland, who reviewed the procession mass at Tolclock in the recent procession, rose at 7 o clock in the morning and breakfasted with Secretary Whitney and his family at the Whitney mansion, on Fifth avenue, where he spent the night. At 9:10 o clock the President, accompanied by J. C. Limbeck, Chairman of the G. A. R. by J. C. Limbeck, Chairman of the G. A. R. memorial committee, entered an open carriage and was driven to the head of the procession on Fifth avenue. Following in other carriages were Secretary Endicott, Ex-Mayor Grace, Secretary Fairchild, Secretary Whitney and Private Secretary Lamont. A citizen's committee, under command of General Curtis, and the Old Guard, commanded by General McLean acted as mand of General Curtis, and the old Guard, commanded by General McLean, acted as escort to the President and his party.

At 9:20 o'clock the procession started down Fifth avenue. The Presidential party alighted opposite the reviewing stand on Madison Square, and took the places reserved for them. As the President appeared on the stand he was greeted by cheers from the throngs of people that filled the square.

The president bowed several times in response. He then shook hands with several reporters and told them he felt well. "I hope to return to Washington to-night," he said to them, "as I have business of importance to look after." The First Brigade, N. G. S. N. Y., commanded by General Louis Fitzgerald, acted as escort to the Grand Army of the Republic and was next to pass. The Richmond Greys accompanied the Ninth regiment. As they passed the President, every man saluted and their colors dipped. The President bowed several times in response and the crowd of spectators cheered the Southerners. Grand Marshal Loeser, who rode at the head of the G. A. R., Posts, was accompanied by "Buffalo Bill."

There were iffteen divisions of Grand Army Posts. All of them sainted the President. There were colored posts, every man of which raised his hat as he passed the President. Accompanying Naval Post 516, G. A. R., was a vagon on which was mounted a ministure man-of-war. As it passed the President, three salutes were fired. The floral division was the last in the procession. In this there were forty large wagons and trucks filled with flowers to be placed on solders' graves in neighboring cemeteries. In this division were also the square.

Washinoton, May 31,—The exercises attending the decoration of 22,000 soldiers' graves in the vicinity of Washington, were conducted here yesterday according to the usual programme. Posts, and of the veteran corps in the city, together with thousands of citizens, visited the different cemeteries in and about Washington, and renewed their annual tribute to the memory of dead comrades and soldiers. At Arlington Cemetery, Senators Manderson and Palmer delivered eloquent orations, and Congressman McKinney, of New Hampshire, orated at the Congressional Cemetery. WASHINGTON PAPER MAKES SOME SURPRISING CHARGES

A Claim That Senator Sherman and A other Presidential Candidate Conspired to Get Blaine Out of the Way, and to Effect This End Wrote Some Wonderful Letters to the Maine Statesman.

Washington, May 31.—The Washington Post this morning publishes the following:
"The Post has the most respectable and the most reliable authority for the statement that two or more candidates for the Presidential nomination at the Chicago convention put their heads together some time ago, and contrived a plan to get Mr. Blaine out of the race. The result of this contrivance was that when Mr. Blaine reached Paris be found several letters awaiting him and not the least important were letters from these rresidential conspirators as they have been termed, to the knowledge of the Post. The writer of one of these letters was Senator John Sherman. The name of the eminent gentleman who wrote the other will probably be made known later, and before it is very much later his Florence letter; but pointed out that the misinterpretation of that letter by some of Mr. Blaine's friends (whose friendship was too ardent for political discretion) was emparement of contractions of the properties of the particular of the properties of the proper his Florence letter; but pointed out that the misinterpretation of that letter by some of Mr. Blaine's friends (whose friendship was too ardent for political discretion) was embarrassing everybody, I demoralizing party organization and threatening the utter disentegration and hopeless defeat of the Republican party. Both letters appealed to Mr. Blaine to do something at once to relieve the party of this embarrassment. Loxdon, May 31.—There was little or no news here yesterday. Everything in London, probably everything in England was subordinated to the time-honored derby. Every one who owned a vehicle of any kind or who pretended to be anybody, apparently took their way to Epsom Downs yesterday to witness the annual race. The papers all report large numbers there, which indeed was the case, but nevertheless the popularity of the race is gradually though surely declining. The betting was largely in favor of one horse and nearly every year the winner is so generally selected to put money on before the race that the excitement of the affair has lost much of its old-time inspiration. Indeed, if is were not for the antiquity which is connected with the derby, and which makes the race a grand event in the Englishman's year, it would excite no more favor than any other first class race. The coach stands lacked the usual number of Americans but those who were there. more favor than any other first class race. The coach stands lacked the usual number of Americans, but those who were there asserted themselves more than in any previous year. Both expressed the utmost contidence that Mr. Blaine meant every syllable of what he said in Both letters spoke of the eternal friendship of the writer for Mr. Blaine in the past and an assurance of a continuance in the future. Both writers swore by all that was political that they would stick to Mr. Blaine while there was a button on his cost, and that they never would have entered the field as candidates themselves if they had not had the assurance of his Florence letter that he was entirely out of the race. Both urged Mr. Blaine to take such action immediately as would make it impossible for some injudicious friends here to put him in a false position before the country, and deprive the party of that reasonable certainty of its ground which is necessary to success in the preparation for a great political campaign.

Knowing that these letters had met Mr. Blaine to the writing of this last letter, especially when he read this significant part of it. On the other hand friends equally devoted and interested have construed my Florence letter as it should be construed, to be an unconditional withholding strued, to be an unconditional withholding of what is frequently termed a "put up job." The Post's informant regards the act of the joint letter writers as an unfair and a disingenuous trick; and he blames Blaine for having written his letter at the prompting of his rivals, without waiting to hear from his friends.
