THE DAILY BULLETIN. OFFICIAL PAPER OF ALEXANDER COUNTY. Only Morning Daily in Southern Illinois.

ANNOUNCEMENTS. CITY TREASURER. We are authorized to announce the name of ALFRED COLEMAN as a candidate for City Treasurer at the ensuing City election.

LOCAL REPORT. SIGNAL OFFICE, CAIRO, Ill., Dec. 31, 1878. Time Bar Ther Hum Wind Vel. Weather.

NO PAPER TO-MORROW. That the employees of THE BULLETIN may take part in the observance of the day, and the editor have a brief respite in which to recuperate, no work will be performed in the newspaper department of the office until Thursday. This involves, of course, the dropping of one issue of the paper, in lieu of which we give our readers, one and all, a "Happy New Year's."

LOCAL HAPPENINGS. —Mr. John Tanner, now a full-fledged Missourian, was in Cairo, yesterday, glad to meet his friends who seemed equally glad to meet him.

—No less than fourteen lucksters were in a strife yesterday morning over a case of dressed turkeys that had arrived per Illinois Central railroad.

—Winter, the artist has just put the finishing touches on a handsome oil painting portrait of Mr. Harry Schultz. It is a splendid picture and life like.

—Mrs. Julia Munn, daughter of Col. Reardon, and widow of Charly Munn, who was the son of Capt. Ben Munn, is in the city to spend the New Year in her old home.

—Among other consignments of freight at the Illinois Central depot, yesterday, was a car load of New England rum. It would require an armed guard of not less than fifty men to get a like shipment safely through Paducah.

—Dr. Gordon received no serious injury from the Mississippi Central railroad mishap. His head is slightly bruised, and the jolting he received was quite lively. From what we hear the call upon him was a fearful one.

—Mr. Andrew Coleman, of Louisville, Ky., manufacturer of his non-explosive coal oil remedy, is in the city, introducing his compound. It is guaranteed to prevent coal oil exploding, or cracking the lamp chimney by heat. This being true, it will prove a great blessing to coal oil consumers.

—There was quite a pleasant party at Turner hall, last night, given by the Ex-celsior Social and Literary Club, as a compliment to Miss May Harman and Miss Jennie McKenzie, who are about to take their departure from the city.

—The concentrated essence of seventy-five tanks of crude petroleum must have been brought to the vicinity of the I.C.R.R. round house, yesterday afternoon, and let loose upon the offending nostrils of the habitues of that locality.

—Mr. Taylor, to whose sickness we referred yesterday, died yesterday morning, about nine o'clock. He was a man of whom quite everybody spoke well. For many years he had filled the position of head miller in the Cairo City mills, and his employer bears willing testimony alike to his skill, industry and integrity. We understand that the funeral rites will be solemnized to-day.

—There was quite a collision on the Illinois Central, near Dongola, yesterday evening, between a freight train drawn by engine 112, with Tom Catlett at the throttle valve, and another freight, hatched to engine 117, with Mr. Rasbach in charge. Both engines were thrown from the track; but nobody was hurt, and no serious injury was sustained by the engines. Who is to blame for the mishap has not been determined.

The Egypt Lodge, No. 1667, of colored Odd Fellows, holds a banquet and public installation of officers in School's hall, this evening. The colored people have won considerable reputation for the smooth and systematic manner in which they conduct their installations. It is claimed for them that they "lay their white brethren completely in the shade," in that respect, but as the public is invited, everybody can attend and judge for himself.

—There is a vague rumor abroad that one of our citizens, wishing to end his participation in the cares and tribulations of this life, swallowed a two-ounce dose of laudanum. By the prompt interference of friends who seemed to have a greater care for his life than he, himself, had, and by the use of powerful antidotes, he was saved. We should not have given place to this rumor, in the columns of THE BULLETIN, but for the fact which we soon discovered, that we would not, thereby, add greatly to its publicity in Cairo. We heard it in all parts of the city.

—While Frank Swoboda was in the act of putting a revolver in his pistol pocket about 9 o'clock, night before last, a cartridge in one of the chambers was by some means exploded, sending the ball plowing through the flesh of his thigh, to a point about midway between the hip and knee. The strangest part of the affair is that Swoboda didn't know he was hurt until next morning. Receiving a sudden jolt he felt a keen pain in the wounded part, and examination being made it was ascertained that the ball had not, as was supposed passed into the floor, but was still in the leg. From that time forth the pain was considerable. The ball was extracted by Dr. Sullivan.

—Charles Williams, a stout lusty-looking "broth of a boy," was brought before Judge Bird, yesterday afternoon, on a charge of having violated ordinance so-and-so, prohibiting snow balling. He had selected the street in front of the Springfield block as his field of operations, and occasioned more dodging, for the space of five minutes, than was done among Cairo Republicans when the draft was pending. Before the judge he insisted that he be pardoned because he didn't know he was breaking the "audience," calling the judge's attention to the fact that in St. Louis no man is punished unless he knows his crime is in violation of law. Neither the prayer nor the plea was effective; and Charles having no money, went over for five days.

—We have, in Cairo, as many as a score of young men, who, having made costly Christmas presents to young women, are ruefully contemplating the condition of their collapsed purses. On salaries that are merely adequate to a decent support, some of them ventured upon presents that absorbed the income of a full month. The consequence of such thoughtless liberality will be seen in freshly contracted debts, if nothing worse, until the practice of sensible economy brings matters square again. Now that these young men feel the folly of their presents, know that the sensible recipients reprobate the spirit that leads them into such excesses—since they feel and know this, why not make this New Year's day the occasion for a set of wholesome resolutions? Prominent in the set let there be a resolution to limit the cost of future holiday gifts to their ability to give, always bearing in mind that rich presents from impoverished sources beget damaging suspicions. Just such ostentatious extravagance as characterizes the gifts of salaried young men, has landed hundreds of poorly paid clerks, salesmen and mechanics within the walls of the State's prison. Let our young men remember this, and not forget that no sensible girl can think the better of him for giving her a present which she knows is beyond his means; let those facts be remembered and, possibly, the memory may have the effect of inaugurating in Cairo an era of sensible holiday gifts.

—It is said that between two and three hundred men and women in St. Louis drink daily from a half to a pint of blood, piping hot from the veins of slaughtered cattle. More blood drinking by consumptives and aged persons is done in September and October than during the remainder of the year. The blood of young steers is the best, and should be caught as it comes from the animal, and drunk while the foam is still on, and the steam rising. Consumptives are advised, in addition to drinking the blood, to sit in a slaughter house for a couple of hours every day at killing time to inhale the "steam" of the running blood. Of the efficacy of this treatment during the incipient stages of consumption, evidence is not wanting even in Cairo. We have in our mind's eye at least two young persons who owe the preservation of their lives to a free use of warm beef blood. The dose is revolting at first, but an appetite is soon required that esteems a bowl of warm, frothy blood as a most palatable luxury. If any of our readers have in contemplation a use of that nutritious liquid, the day suggests a splendid starting point.

—In Cairo, to a less extent perhaps, than in any city of the Ohio valley, do we see the terrible results of enforced idleness among the working classes. While this is true, however, it is also true that the poor are among us in unusual numbers. Scores of families that had small accumulations of money with which to provide for the winter, were driven, as they thought, to an expenditure of the last dollar of the sum, in protecting themselves from the epidemic of the summer. Some of these, with scores of others who are always destitute, with others who have been unfortunate, with others who by age, sickness or mishap are rendered incapable of taking care of themselves—all these form a large total that deserve and expect the help of the better-to-do citizen. But what is an occasional thing in Cairo, has become a thing of alarming frequency in all the larger cities, especially of the North and East. We refer to the sight of heads of families begging bread. Since the advent of cold weather the destitution among the poor of the large cities has become appalling. In New York, Boston, Brooklyn, Philadelphia, Cincinnati, Pittsburg and Chicago, the headquarters of the departments of charities are constantly besieged by great crowds of hungry, shivering men, women and children, who are, as the crowds before them were, turned away empty-handed. The streets are thronged by storm-drenched, dispirited men and women, vainly passing from house to house in search of work—hundreds offering their labor for the bare food that will keep their souls and bodies together. In New York, where one would, judging from appearances, suppose that all the poor of creation had congregated, the charity department of the city government has not been supplied with funds. As a consequence of this most reprehensible delay or oversight, thousands of families—15,000 so the papers say—are brought to the very verge of starvation. Strong, healthy, vigorous men plead for the work that will buy coarse bread for their children; women, old and young, willing to sell themselves to damnation for the scant necessities that will stave off cold and hunger. And yet, in view of this hopeless, terrible destitution almost under our eyes, we look three thousand miles away for scenes of want and suffering to touch our sympathies. While we are speculating what dire sufferings may come to the people of England and Scotland, there are thousands and tens of thousands of suffering human beings clamoring at our doors for bread to stave the gnawings of present hunger. The picture presented by a recent New York Herald, of the prevailing destitution in that city, is sombre enough in its colorings to throw shadows upon the hearts even of the most miserly. But to New York we commend the poor of New York. The people of Cairo have to do with the poor of Cairo, and upon this blessed First Day of January, 1879, is a most fitting time to inaugurate a movement looking to the relief of those who are destitute. Neither the county nor the city has organized systems; and if the poor had no other source of help, they would starve and die by the wayside. How many of those who are able to dispense charities, will divide their calls to-day, between the homes where the sick-bed clad hostess dispenses smiles and cakes and water, and the huts and hovels of those who breakfasted upon their last morsel of food, and know not how or from what source shall come the supply that is to appease their already growing hunger? We can't keep a record of the calls; but there is an eye that has a care for the poorest of mortals, that will keep the record, and if we could only FEEL that that eye is constantly upon us, we would intersperse duty with pleasure in a manner that would be astonishing even to ourselves.

—In babies could talk, they would often express their thanks to their nurses, or relieving them of pain and suffering, by the use of Dr. Bull's Baby Syrup.

No necessity for sending to other cities for Jewelry, Diamonds and other holiday goods. Buder has an immense stock, and will furnish them at eastern prices.
