THE DAILY BULLETIN.

W. C. AND L. ASSOCIATION COLUMN.

Edited in the interest of the Public Library.

MEN, WOMEN AND BOOKS.

The library has again been made the recipient of a handsome present from Mrs. A. B. Safford, consisting of the following valuable books sent from Leipzig, Germany: "Buckles History of Civilization;" "Thorn and Fruit Pieces, by Richter;" "The Life of Goethe, by George Henry Lewis;" "Re-Echoes, by Cobbe;" "Life of Schiller, by Carlisle;" "Longfellow's Poetical Works, two volumes;" "Selection of Poetry, by Mrs. Browning;" "The Subject of Woman, by J. S. Mill;" "Wadsworth's select poetical works, two volumes;" "Tennyson's poetical works"

PERNICIOUS LITERATURE.

Our boys suffer most from the blood-and-literature scattered broadcast over our land. The confession of young Pomeroy was that the stories of successful crime first suggested to him the fearful crimes which he himself committed, and he is not the first or only one who has been led to take up a criminal career from the fascination thrown around it by the writers of coarse fiction for boys. Hardly less mischievous is the delusion wrought in boys' mind by fanciful pictures of life at sea. The romance of the story and the stark reality of life on board of a ship are two things widely apart. One of these deluded boys, on a schoolship, writing home, said: "There are three things a boy wants as soon as he gets to sea—first, to go home; second, a good square meal, and, third, to get his fingers on the fellow who wrote 'Sack Harkaway.'" Something to remember, boys.

WOMEN, PAST AND PRESENT.

Christine of Pisa was the first woman in western Europe who sought to live by her pen. She was the champion of her sex and of public morals, against the attacks of the Roman de la Rose, and the lecherous spirit which was daily gaining ground. In 1405, when civil war seemed inevitable, Christine entered politics with energy, as the champion of peace. She sent the queen of Bavaria an expostulatory letter, entitled, "The Weeping Request of Loyal French Women." A few days afterwards the peace of Vincennes was declared. Six persons were dependant upon the labors of Christine's pen.

Mrs. Harriet Lewis, who recently died in Rochester, earned it is said, more money each year by her pen, than the salary of the president of the United States.

The Countess Russell who received a delegation of Nonconformists in her husband's stead, when he was ill, replied to their address in a felicitous and graceful speech.

Mrs. Fildes, an English lady, sent this year for the first time, a picture to the Royal Academy. It was much admired, and was the first picture sold. Only a few years since, women's pictures were not received at the Royal Academy unless sent under a man's name. Catherine Beecher was called by the Hartford Courant "a whole Social Science Association in permanent session." She lived single all her life because of the death of the man whom she was engaged to marry, Professor Fisher. She was a woman who thoroughly believed in herself, and in "the Beecher family."

COLLEGE BOYS WHO NEVER READ A BOOK.

Mr. Charles Dudley Warner says in the "Christian Union;" Those who have to deal with the education of the young get revealing glimpses into the state of culture in the households of our highly intellectual country. A professor in one of our leading colleges told me not long ago that a freshman came to him, after he had been recommending certain books in the literature class, and said he had never read a book in his life. This was literally true. Except his text-books, he had never read a book; he had passed a fair examination, but of reading he knew no more than a knave. Another professor in another college, also one of the highest in the country, told me more recently that a sophomore, who stood well in his class, came to ask him where he obtained certain facts which he referred to in the classroom. It came out that the young man had never read a book, did not know what the sensation was, or how to set about it, and had not the faintest conception of literature. He had no notion of the pleasure or profit to be got from reading; the world of books was absolutely beyond his imagination, and he could not conceive what people found in it. The professor at length induced him to read one of Scott's novels, but the boy found it a very tedious and uninteresting occupation. These two instances are extreme, but only in degree; a taste for literature is not common, and ignorance of it is common even among college undergraduates.

God be thanked for books. They are the voices of the distant and the dead, and make us heirs of the spiritual life of past ages.—CHANNING.

AMONG THE MOUNTAINS.

The following from a letter, written from Littleton, by a lady relative of one of our esteemed readers, conveys a very good idea of the mountain scenery of that region, and is very readable:

"We are about two hundred miles from Boston, and only a few hours ride from Mt. Washington, Lafayette, etc., the White mountain range. The 'House' is located upon a hill a few rods above the village, giving us a very fine view of the Franconia range. The mountains are designated as the Franconia and Crawford ranges. I would like to describe the scenery to you, but I could do it so imperfectly that you could not begin to appreciate its grandeur or magnificence. The distant views are perfectly charming with their ever-varying lights and shadows, but one must drive through the notch to the Profile house, situated in front of the base of Mt. Lafayette, and get a view of that mountain, in order to appreciate the immensity and grandeur of the mountains. Just beyond the Profile house is the 'Old Man of the Mountain,' which is a perfect wonder to behold, it is such a perfect profile of a man's head and face in size, etc., but the aggregate length of the rocks that form the face is eighty feet. I presume you remember your geography sufficiently to bring to mind the picture and description of the Old Man, The Plume, Emerald Pool, Silver Cascade and Willet House, all within a short distance of each other in the notch, are places of great attraction. The Willet House is of interest on account of the sad fate of its occupant some years ago; it is located on the road with Mt. Willet, at its back and Webster in front. There had been a great many heavy rains, and the people in the vicinity had been predicting a land slide from Mt. Willet, just in the rear of the house. The family had prepared a cave for shelter, expecting the slide to bury the house without a doubt. It came at last and as is supposed the family heard it coming, and rushed from the house to meet death, instead of safety. A rock, thirty feet high in the rear of the house, divided the slide and left the house, standing without a blemish. There were nine of the family. They all perished, only five bodies were found. They have built a railroad on one of the side of the mountains, through the notch. The first day of October was a perfect day here. I went with friends down through the notch that day. The trip is beyond description. The foliage had on it most gorgeous colors, and in some places we looked down eighteen hundred feet upon an occasion of colors. The evening previous, there had been a slight fall of snow, upon the top of Mt. Washington, which added a new feature to the scenery. We had made a tour among the mountains some six years since, so we have only visited a few points of great interest. The mountain season is nearly to a close, only a few afflicted with hay fever linger here.

FINANCIAL LETTER

OF THE INDIANA INVESTMENT COMPANY, BANKERS, BROKERS AND FINANCIAL AGENTS, NO. 38 WEST WASHINGTON STREET, SECOND FLOOR FRONT.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., October 1, 1880.

We offer for subscription an issue of $15,000 first mortgage improvement bonds of the Colorado Co-Operative Prospecting and Mining company, issued by them in denominations of $100 each, dated November 1, 1880, due in three years from date, bearing ten per cent. semi-annual interest. Principal and interest payable at our banking office. Bids for these bonds entire or in part will be received by us until and including November 1, 1880, when all bids will be opened and awards made; we reserving the right to reject any or all bids. These bonds are secured by a first mortgage upon mill site, mill, machinery, buildings and water rights, belonging to the company, which said mortgage was duly authorized by resolution of the board of directors, executed and placed of record. This company was duly organized and incorporated under the laws of Colorado, December 3, 1879, and has no other bonded or mortgaged indebtedness, and are working their mines and making substantial improvements on good property belonging to the company, these bonds having been issued for improvements in erecting stamp mill and other works to facilitate the further interest of the company.

Sample of bonds and other information may be had at this office.

BOGUS CERTIFICATES. It is no vile drugged stuff, pretending to be made of wonderful foreign roots, barks, etc., and puffed up by long bogus certificates of pretended miraculous cures, but a simple, pure, effective medicine, made of well known valuable remedies, that furnishes its own certificates by its cures. We refer to Hop Bitters, the purest and best of medicines. See another column.—Republican.

ORDINANCE NO. 54. An ordinance amending Section I Chapter XV of the Revised Ordinances. Be it ordained by the city council of the city of Cairo, that section I of chapter XV of the revised ordinance be amended so as to hereafter read as follows:

Sec. 1. No railroad company or conductor, engineer or other employe of any railroad company, or other person managing or controlling any locomotive, engine, car or train upon any railroad track, shall, within the corporate limits of the city of Cairo, run or cause or suffer or permit to run any such locomotive, engine, car or train, under his or their charge or control upon any such railroad track at a speed exceeding the following: Passenger trains at a speed not to exceed ten miles an hour; all other trains, cars, engines or locomotives at a speed not exceeding six miles an hour. Approved October 7th, A. D. 1880.

Attest: D. J. FOLEY, Mayor. N. B. THISTLEWOOD, City Clerk.

PUBLIC NOTICE. CITY CLERK'S OFFICE. Cairo, Ill., Oct. 6, 1880. Whereas, the committee appointed under ordinance No. 45, approved May 14th, 1880, to fix and report to the city council the price at which the lots held off in portions of the strip of ground 1 1/2 feet wide, known as railroad strip, lying between Fourteenth street and St. Charles street, should be sold, did report to the city council at its regular meeting, held October 7th, which report was approved by the city council, fixing the price of note 27 and 28 in block 13 of railroad addition being the ground situated between the St. Charles hotel property and Railroad alley; which said report is on file in my office.

Public notice is hereby given to the owner or owners of the property abutting on the said lots above mentioned that they have the right and privilege for sixty days from the date hereof to purchase the said lots 27 and 28, above described at the price fixed by said committee.

D. J. FOLEY, City Clerk.
